The question of sufficient water for greenhouse purposes in the arid west is usually a serious one and the location at Farmington was chosen because of the splendid water supply, good soil, and first-class railroad facilities. The greenhouses are built along the lines of the most modern construction. There are 150,000 square feet of glass, with a modern steam plant of 250 horsepower. The company has 25,000 rose plants, 25,000 carnations, smilax, and Asparagus Sprengeri, sweet peas for winter flowering, and a large plant department for the growing of decorative and winter flowering subjects. Queen Beatrice rose, of which the company has 5,000 plants, is proving popular with the trade, and other roses with which the company had success last season are Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Ward, Rhea Reid, Mrs. Taft, and the omnipresent Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond.

The success of the Miller company already has been demonstrated but Mr. Miller, who is extremely modest, says that only a beginning has been made and that he hopes to do something worth while later on.

OREODOXA SANCONA.

Although it is not as well known, perhaps, in America as in Europe, no doubt many readers and growers are familiar with Oreodoxa Sancona, or the royal palm of Mexico, in a small state. When young the leaf stalks are a reddish color, which shows up the bright green of the leaves, and it is altogether a most graceful and beautiful palm, well worthy of extended culture. But few have probably seen it in its native habitat, and the accompanying illustration will give a good idea of what it looks like.

It is usually difficult, owing to the dense surrounding vegetation, to get a good picture of palms growing wild, but the two plants shown were left when the clearing was made and naturally the photographer had a better chance. The height of the taller of these twin palms is sixty feet, and the manner of their growth and fruiting is distinctly shown. This interesting photograph was taken by Ed. Howard, of Los Angeles, Cal., during one of his botanizing and plant collecting trips in Mexico. H. R. R.

that were heavily fed were magnificent, far excelling that portion of the fields where little manure had been used. Mr. Wintzer says that the canna must have space, manure and water to do its best. Give all three, add early planting and the modern varieties of cannas will yield fifteen or sixteen flowers to each plant. It seems extraordinary, but it is often done.

The newer varieties of cannas are wonderful: Splendor, Beacon, Maid of Orleans, Woreley, to be classed with Mrs. Conard, Olympic, and many, many more. The visit was a treat long to be remembered, which I owe to my friend Robert Pyle, president of the company, whose unswerving devotion to his work has made possible these splendid results.

ROSE OLD GOLD.

One of the year's striking European rose novelties is Old Gold, hybrid tea, raised by Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland. At the recent Regent's park show of the National Rose Society of Great Britain the variety received a gold medal by the unanimous vote of the committee. The basket there exhibited is shown in the accompanying illustration. The arrangement is supposed to have been by one of London's widely known retail florists. In speaking of this exhibit one of the British trade papers said: "The flowers are of beautiful pointed form, and one of the most glorious bits of color that has ever been seen. The tint is a vivid reddish-orange, impossible adequately to describe, the dark foliage forming a delightful contrast. This should be a gem for table and other decorations, and we noted it was perfect when we left in the afternoon, so that it evidently has keeping quality."

THE EVERY-DAY WORK.

Early Cutting.

Those growers who find fault with early planting give as one of their objections the statement that the early cutting checks the plants and weakens them for flowering later, when the cut blooms are worth more money. Were the flowers cut with a full length of stem, there would be reason in this, and doubtless in some instances this is done, to the detriment of the stock. But the grower who persists in cutting the life out of his plants at a season when the flowers hardly pay the cost of expressing to the market has a lot to learn as to the fitness of things.

Producing flowers does not weaken or check vigorous young stock. It is taking away long stems, cutting out the very heart of the plant, that does the mischief.

The New Basal Shoots.

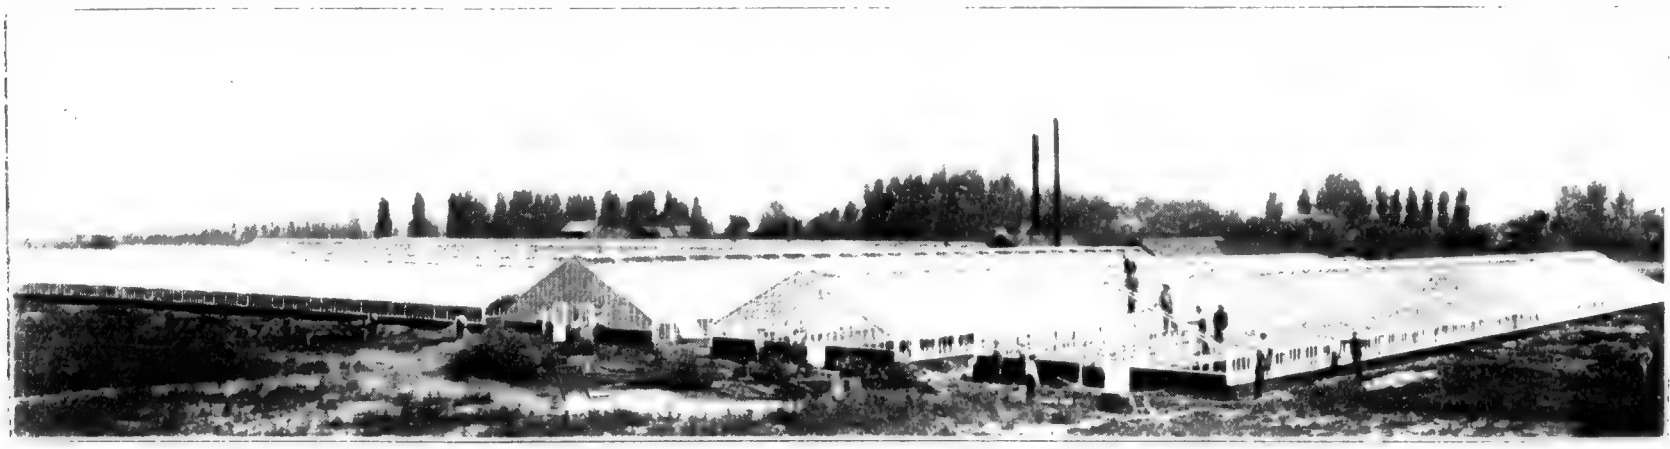
The earliest planted Kaiserins, Killarneys, White Killarneys and Richmonds are now pushing up strong basal shoots, showing that the roots have obtained a good hold of the new soil and are enjoying the good things provided in this larder or storehouse of nutriment.

These vigorous shoots are they that will lay the foundation of a vigorous plant for winter flowering and they should be encouraged in every way. The futility of cutting these out entirely with the flowers should be apparent to any thoughtful grower. The flowers are usually poor and the stems out of all proportion to them. If the flowers are cut for market at all, they should be taken with only a few inches of stem, and in most cases they would be best removed when partly open, as in disbudding. The way for these shoots should be made clear by removing any crossing wood or useless small shoot so as to give them every chance to swell up vigorous, prominent eyes.

Insect Pests.

This systematic pruning in the early stages of the plants' growth will prevent the formation of bushy centers which are useless to the plants and form a congenial home for all kinds of injurious insects. Were it always possible to plant the whole of a house at one time, the house could be heavily fumigated with cyanide beforehand and there would be much less risk of insects, but this is by no means the case and the best that can be done is to keep both old and young stock as clean as possible.

There are several good spray nozzles on the market, which, used with a good force behind them, create a fine but powerful mist that can be sprayed all over and under the foliage and stems reaching every bit of the plant and yet hardly wetting the surface of the benches. This treatment, given daily or even twice daily if insects are seen, is of great assistance in keeping them in check. Where thrips is present some insecticide will have to be used, but even this insect, troublesome as it is, is kept down by frequent spraying with cold water.



Plants That Are Held Over.

Plants that are being held over for another season should be cleaned up, pruned, mulched and put in order. The old plan of drying off is not as much practiced as formerly, and is especially unsuitable for the Killarneys. These roses should not be dried, nor should they be cut back as hard as some other kinds, but all superfluous wood and small, twig-like shoots can be cut out with advantage.

Should the soil appear to be sour and close on the surface, from constant feeding and watering, remove this to the depth of a couple of inches, or more no roots are seen, and replace with new, well enriched soil. Before putting this on, see that the soil beneath is moist, as it is difficult to get the water through the new soil without making it too wet for the roots to enter freely.

In the Beauty Houses.

In the Beauty houses the young plants are making an elegant growth now, and every precaution must be taken to keep them vigorous, yet hard and well consolidated, as they grow. A daily spraying is not necessary, provided the plants are clean. It may appear to do no harm now—in fact, to the inexperienced grower it seems to do good—but too much overhead moisture predisposes the plants to black spot and other fungoid diseases later.

American Beauty and Richmond need less syringing than any other roses, and the harder foliage produced under these circumstances is less liable to attacks of red spider. It pays at this time to go over the plants and remove any of the lower leaves that are attacked by red spider. Their loss will not be felt by the plants at this time and it will prevent the spread of this unsightly pest.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The American Rose Society has issued the premium list, as prepared by its executive committee, for cut roses at the approaching National Flower Show. For the best display covering not less than 200 square feet three premiums are offered, $250, $150 and $100. For 100 Beauties the three premiums are $60, $40 and $20. For 50 Beauties the premiums are $30, $20 and $10. For twenty-five Beauties the premiums are $20, $15 and $10. Two classes are provided for each of the roses grown commercially for cut flowers. The classes calling for fifty flowers offer first premiums of $20, and second premiums of $10. The classes calling for twenty-five flowers offer first premiums of $10, and second premiums of $5. There are some extremely liberal premiums for retailers' displays in which roses are used. Classes for the commercial roses are provided open only to private gardeners and amateurs, twelve blooms of each, in which the premiums are $4 and $2.

ROSE GROWING IN UTAH.

Up to a comparatively short time ago, two years, to be exact, it was a popular supposition in Salt Lake City and less important flower markets nearby, that first-class roses could not be grown in Utah. What little experimenting had been done was crude and consequently unsuccessful, and while a few realized how the local trade was handicapped by being obliged to wait from twenty-four to thirty-six hours between ordering and receiving shipments, there was apparently no one to take the initiative in demonstrating what might be accomplished in Utah until Robert Miller arrived on the scene and proceeded to form a company to grow roses. Mr. Miller had come from Cromwell, Conn., where he had been actively engaged in the same occupation. There was no question in the minds of those whom he approached with the project that he could carry the work to a successful conclusion provided local conditions were favorable, but many were dubious of the outcome. However, the company was formed and Mr. Miller, who was made president and manager, proceeded to acquire ten acres of the best land in Utah, at Farmington, a beautiful suburb of Salt Lake City.

That was two and a half years ago. The accompanying illustration shows the range as it now stands and the company is negotiating for an adjoining ten acres in order that there may be no lack of room for the extension of its facilities.

The question of sufficient water for greenhouse purposes in the arid west is usually a serious one and the location at Farmington was chosen because of the splendid water supply, good soil, and first-class railroad facilities. TO CLEAR OUT RED SPIDER.

Under separate cover we send you some shoots from a bench of Enchantress carnations. These were benched about August 1, but were rather weak plants. You will note that the leaves are rough and a little brown. We find they are full of red spider and we are spraying for this. Do you think the red spider has caused the trouble or is there something like fairy ring on them? About ten days ago we sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, but do not like to keep it up, as we want the flowers. These are the worst shoots we could find in the bench. Please advise us what to do. R. E. G.

I think there is no doubt that red spider is at the bottom of your trouble, as the leaves are fairly covered with them. You will likely have a hard fight on your hands for the next month or so. You will find that your plants will lose a good deal of foliage before they get to growing strongly, but with careful handling they should come out all right finally.

We have found the following formula effective in destroying this pest; in fact, the best remedy we have ever had, to dislodge them where the hose was insufficient: One-half pound arsenic, five pounds white sugar, enough water to make a thick syrup. First mix the arsenic and the sugar thoroughly, then add the water. If the water is warm it will melt the sugar and cause the mass to mix better. Use one ounce of this syrup to one gallon of water for spraying.

You can use this every third day, but I would advise you to syringe it off between each application. Two or three applications ought to be sufficient to destroy the worst case of spider. One application would be enough if you could reach every part of the plant the first time.

There are a few spots of stigmonose on the specimens forwarded, but not enough to weaken the plants. When you propagate your young stock this winter, be sure to pay attention to this disease. A. F. J. B.

TREATMENT FOR BENCH PLANTS.

I am sending to you, under separate cover, a carnation shoot with an affected bud. Can you tell me what caused this bud to get moldy? This plant was grown in a north gutter bench. The plants were benched four weeks ago. They seem to be rooted on pretty well and were fed with well rotted cow manure this week, because the soil did not seem rich enough. Was it right to do this at this time? Should the shade have been taken off entirely from the glass, after the plants had been benched for about four weeks?

H. B.

The moldy condition of the carnation bud submitted discloses two things: First, the bud blighted from one cause or another, and, second, your atmospheric conditions were not right, else the bud would have simply dried up instead of getting moldy.

I notice a good many stigmonose spots on the leaves. These are most likely the cause of the blighting of the bud. During the first few weeks after the plants have been housed, it is not always easy to determine just what caused this or that. There is a check in the growth, caused by the root disturbance, and during the first few days the atmospheric conditions must be kept in a state which would not be at all right for plants which are established. So that frequently disease is brought on through conditions which cannot be controlled just at the time.

In your case, however, it is quite apparent that you have not handled your plants right from the time you housed them up to the date of your letter. In the first place, you should have made your soil rich enough to start your plants into a good, strong growth without adding anything to it in the way of fertilizer for at least two months. The shade you put on should have been only a light one, and it should have been removed within two weeks after the plants were benched. The shade and the foulness of the atmosphere caused by the manure, with perhaps a good deal of syringing, are what caused the molding.

During the last few years we have reduced the quantity of shade on our glass during planting time each year, until now we put on only a little. We find that by keeping the atmosphere charged with moisture, by spraying and damping down the walks, under almost the full sunlight, our plants start away quicker and resume their normal growth quicker than they ever did under a heavy shade. In this way, the period of reëstablishing the plants is much shorter, and the chances for contracting disease on account of excessive moisture, etc., are much less than formerly.

That stigmonose will require attention when you go to propagating your young stock for next season. Avoid all shoots which show any of those light spots, else you will find the disease in your stock increasing each year until it has destroyed the vitality. If your stock is so badly affected that you cannot get sufficient clean shoots for your needs, then it will pay you to buy from someone whose stock is clean.

A. F. J. B.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DISEASED.

Enclosed you will find two leaves of Geranium S. A. Nutt. Kindly tell me, if possible, what disease they have and how to combat it. I grow three other varieties of geraniums, Poitevine, Ricard and Jean Viaud, but neither of these seems to be affected. My stock seemed clean all of last winter, but as soon as the warm days came in April and early May the S. A. Nutt commenced to show trouble. In planting out my stock plants I selected plants that seemed perfectly clean and healthy, but since about August 10 they have been getting bad and at this writing some of the plants have lost nearly all of their leaves. I have been growing geraniums for the last twenty years, but never have seen anything like this before. Any information you can give me through The Review will be thankfully received. W. C. K.

The geraniums affected are, I suppose, outdoors. This blight, or leaf-spot, as it is more commonly called, is neither new nor uncommon. It may be due to overpropagation and consequent weakening of your stock, which would render it more susceptible to leaf diseases in the open air. This trouble rarely manifests itself until we get damp, dark and muggy weather in late summer, and once it appears its spread is rapid. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture I have tried, but without avail. The same trouble often appears under glass, where, however, careful hand picking and watering, added to a dry, buoyant atmosphere, soon check its spread. I have always noticed that where geraniums are sprayed overhead frequently under glass they will take the disease. Where they are run a little dry at the root, and as dry as possible overhead, they are practically immune to it.

Cuttings from your plants stripped clean of affected foliage and placed in sand under glass will probably come perfectly clean and I would not hesitate to use them unless the plants are weakly. The leaf-spot is due, no doubt, to the peculiar weather. The variety affected may have been more heavily propagated than others and therefore have less vitality to withstand disease on the foliage. C. W.

ENFORCING CONTRACTS.

Columbus, O.—Charles R. Wheeler, as administrator of the estate of William Graff, the deceased North High street florist, has filed suit asking for $5,000 damages from Samuel Graff, a brother of William Graff, formerly connected with him in the business. According to the petition, Samuel Graff sold his interest five years ago to his brother, with the agreement that he was not to engage in a similar business in the city. Soon after William Graff's death, in February, Samuel Graff is alleged to have opened a flower store in East Gay street. Mr. Wheeler has continued to conduct the store on High street for the widow, and says that Samuel Graff has violated the contract, which he seeks to have the courts enforce.

Hutchinson, Kan.—An application for an injunction was made in the district court September 9, when Attorney Ray H. Tinder filed an application for a court order to prohibit Geo. M. Schurr and Harry P. Miller from engaging in the retail florists' business. The suit is brought by N. N. Kline, formerly engaged in business as a retail florist at 312 North Main street. He alleges that July 8, 1912, he contracted with Mr. Schurr, who operates a greenhouse at 1100 East Sixth street, by which the latter agreed not to engage in the retail business for a period of four years, and not to fill orders or do any shipping business. Under this contract Kline was to handle the retail end of the business, and Schurr was to stay in the wholesale business exclusively. Mr. Kline alleges that Mr. Schurr has broken this agreement and is selling flowers at retail again, with Harry P. Miller associated with him. He asks the court to render him judgment for $218.50 for damages, and to enjoin Mr. Schurr from selling and delivering cut flowers, contracting decorations, accepting or filling shipping orders, or maintaining a retail florists' business for a term of four years.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

There has been a noticeable shortage of stock during the last week. For some reason the asters went off the market much earlier than usual and the dahlias are slow in coming to perfection. This practically leaves only roses and carnations with which to do business. There are enough of these, short-stemmed, to meet all demands, but long-stemmed stock cleans up quickly each day. There are no red roses worth speaking of—only a few short-stemmed ones.

The early chrysanthemums in this locality are almost a complete failure, due to thrips and grasshoppers, which seem to defy the efforts of the growers to keep them off the plants. They seem exceptionally aggressive this year on the outdoor stock, and nearly all of the early mums are grown outside. Good indoor stock will, however, soon be ready.

Gardenias are better and in quantities sufficient to supply all demands. Orchids also are much more plentiful and are selling at lower prices than have prevailed during the month.

Practically every store in the city held a palm and fern sale last week, the prevailing price being 50 cents per plant or $5 per dozen. In a majority of cases they were legitimate bargains, used more for advertising purposes than as a source of profit.

Various Notes.

Miss Nellie Brueninger, with Gude Bros. Co., is spending a week in New York.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington is slated to be held October 1. October 8 Robert Pyle, of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., will deliver a lecture, illustrated by lantern slides, "Among the Roses in Europe."

Henry Pfister spent his vacation at Atlantic City during the month.

Z. D. Blackistone was a visitor in Philadelphia last week.

Among the recent visitors in Washington was Prof. Hugo de Vries, director of the botanical gardens of Amsterdam, Holland. While in this city, Prof. de Vries addressed the members of the local botanical society at a meeting held at the Cosmos Club. He is now in the south, searching for certain specimens of plant life which he will take back to Holland for experimental purposes.

A large exhibition of flowers, fruit and vegetables will be held October 1 and 2 by the Brookland Brotherhood in the Lord Memorial hall. Three prizes will be given in each class. The display of roses and of dahlias, which are just coming in, will be large.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, Z. D. Blackistone was elected a member of the board of governors and made chairman of the committee that will have charge of all matters pertaining to the florists' business. This organization is planning to establish a credit and collection bureau, to eliminate fake advertising schemes and the soliciting of contributions for unworthy charities, and to correct various trade abuses. This association will work in conjunction with the Florists' Club of Washington whenever possible.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

Business continues to increase and a number of good social events helped considerably last week. Outside stock is poor and as a frost is expected almost any night, the trade will gladly welcome it.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Society was held September 17, at Holm & Olson's store, a good representation being present from both cities. The annual election of officers was held, resulting as follows:

President—Hugh Will, Minneapolis.
Vice-president—O. J. Olson, St. Paul.
Secretary—S. D. Dysinger, St. Paul.
Treasurer—E. P. Holm, St. Paul.
Executive committee—Theo. Wirth, Minneapolis; L. L. May, St. Paul; L. R. Cady, St. Paul; C. N. Reudlinger, Minneapolis.

A fund was started to join and affiliate with the Chrysanthemum Society of America, $20 being collected, and no doubt the additional $5 will shortly be forthcoming. It would be well for the members of the State Society to take notice that at this meeting only forty-five were in good standing, as the annual dues were payable September 1. Of course it is an oversight on the part of the delinquent members.

The flower show was discussed and refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held at the park greenhouses, Minneapolis, October 15.

The various committees for the flower show are diligently working and have progress to report. Donations from firms in the trade outside the Twin Cities now reach approximately $500 in cash and other premiums. These are from wholesalers and manufacturers that place their goods on this market. The publicity committee is bringing the show before the public by well gotten up editorials in the leading newspapers. The premium list is out.

Various Notes.

L. L. May & Co., who for a number of years conducted their retail store on East Sixth street, will by October 1 move into more commodious quarters. The store on the corner of Fifth and Minnesota streets has been leased. It has all the advantages of being made attractive and a great deal larger than the present store. As to location, it is as desirable as any in the city.

O. R. Eckhardt, of O. R. Eckhardt Co., spent a few days last week in the southern part of the state drumming up business. He expressed himself as well satisfied with conditions through that territory.

A. A. Epperly, of the Eckhardt Co., was married September 11. The happy couple spent a week in the northern part of the state.

Holm & Olson furnished the decorations for a banquet given in honor of J. J. Hill on his seventy-fourth birthday. The affair took place at the Auditorium September 16 and places were laid for 1,200. The decorations called for large quantities of wild smilax and palms, with hydrangeas, heliopsis and euphorbia. A loving cup was presented to the railroad magnate and to make it complete the cup was filled with orchids, eleven varieties being included.

OBITUARY.

Francis Krieger.

Francis Krieger, one of the oldest German residents of Troy, N. Y., died September 13, aged 74 years. He was born in the province of Bromberg, near Berlin, in Germany. He came to this country about thirty years ago and for a time he was engaged in the florists' business and later worked in Oakwood cemetery, Troy. He was an expert gardener.

William W. Thompson.

William W. Thompson, florist and gardener, resident of the town of Lake, near Milwaukee, Wis., since 1858, died September 19. Mr. Thompson was born in Woodstock, Vt., March 13, 1832. At the outbreak of the war of rebellion Mr. Thompson enlisted in the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin infantry. At the close of the war, he returned to the town of Lake, where he had lived since. He is survived by three sons and a daughter. E. B. Wolcott post, G. A. R., had charge of the funeral services in Forest Home chapel, September 21.

Charles Seeley.

Charles Seeley, for many years a florist, died suddenly September 16, at his home, 739 Grand street, Jersey City, N. J., following an attack of gastritis. Mr. Seeley was 53 years old. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet for a week. Good stock is scarce. Asters and gladioli are about a thing of the past. In mums, some good Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are to be seen, but are not in heavy demand as yet. Some first-class Beauties and other roses are to be had and carnations have improved. Quantities of dahlias are being shipped into this market.

Various Notes.

E. A. Nelson recently ordered a new smokestack, and when about to put it up was notified by the smoke inspector that he would have to put up a 60-foot stack. The old law called for a 40-foot stack.

The Hill-Heller Co. has opened its new store. Mr. Heller and Fred Lemon have been spending considerable time here during the last ten days. Mr. Heller may be seen in the store giving his many friends the glad hand and pinning a New Castle rose on them, while Mr. Lemon is spending most of his time trying to find suitable help.

L. F. Benson has leased a room in the Denison hotel, to which he intends to move in a short time. A new front is to be put in and Mr. Benson expects to have an up-to-date store.

Hartje & Elder are cutting some of the best carnations to be seen in this market. From the looks of their houses, their stock is going to be hard to beat.

Carl Leonard, formerly with the Pahud Floral Co., has accepted a position in the regular army.

C. H. Schlueter, with the Foley Mfg. Co., spent a day in the city last week.

A. Wiegand & Sons were busy last week with palm decorations for the fall department store openings.

Pearl James, formerly with Alfred Brandt, resigned his position last Saturday.

H. L. W.

A new conservatory, with the latest equipment and conveniences for the display of flowers, is to be erected by the Bertermann Brothers Co., at 239 North Delaware street, to connect with the offices and salesrooms at 241 Massachusetts avenue. The new building and other improvements will cost approximately $15,000. The building fronting on Delaware street will have a white terra cotta exterior and the roof will be of glass. The present conservatory is being torn down and excavations are being started for a basement where flowers will be stored and cooled according to the latest methods. An electric elevator will be used to take the flowers from the basement to the conservatory. The new building will have a frontage of thirty feet on Delaware street and will extend west for 100 feet, where it will connect with the offices and salesrooms fronting on Massachusetts avenue, which will be remodeled. The site for the conservatory has been leased for a long term of years. The officers of the Bertermann company are: President, John Bertermann; vice-president, Walter H. Bertermann; secretary and treasurer, Irwin C. Bertermann, and manager, Edward J. Bertermann.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Funeral work during the summer months has been the florists' mainstay, but last week the tables were turned and business picked up along all lines. While the demand for funeral flowers was brisk, the combined demands for flowers for weddings, fall openings and banquets were most encouraging; consequently stock in all lines was sold at a good price. This was the first week in a long time in which the ash barrel was cheated. Carnations, in the cultivated line of stock, were the most plentiful, coming into the market by the thousand, but still it was impossible to meet all requirements, as great quantities were used as souvenirs and favors for openings and banquets. Roses, too, were fairly plentiful, but the supply could not keep up with the demand. Giganteums sold well for funeral orders and church decorations. Lily of the valley was also in great demand for the wedding orders. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are of fine quality, while smilax is rather poor. The outside market on Saturday, September 21, was loaded with cosmos, dahlias and gladioli, but the conditions did not affect the florist this time. The dahlias, especially, were of fine quality. The weather in the last week has been more favorable for indoor stock, as the temperature has dropped considerably.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bartholomew returned from Cincinnati, reporting a good time.

Mrs. T. M. Waters, of Eaton, O., tells us that trade has picked up wonderfully within the last week. She had large funeral orders every day.

During the last few weeks many convention visitors have been coming to Dayton, all of whom highly praise the Chicago convention. Most of them say it was the "best ever." This should be gratifying to the Chicago florists.

The Miami Floral Co. made several large shipments of carnations, running into the thousands, to Hamilton, O., last week, for a new store opening.

George Dysinger, representing the Ionia Pottery Co., of Ionia, Mich., was in town last week. He says his firm took in more orders at the Chicago convention than they ever got before in a week's time.

A card comes from Herman Haerlin, Jr., who was in Washington, D. C., last week, stating that he is having a dandy time. From Washington he was to go to Philadelphia, from which he, with a party of friends, was to start on a yachting cruise down the Chesapeake to Norfolk and from there to New York. Mr. Haerlin expects to arrive home about October 4.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson has been entertaining Miss Lena Aschen, of Evansville, Ind., for the last two weeks.

Mrs. J. F. Young reports an exceptionally fine trade last week.

W. J. Engle is sending out some large orders of vincas, both in field-grown clumps and runners.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson and their two sons, of Cincinnati, motored to Dayton September 23, and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew.

W. W. Horlacher tells us that business picked up considerably for him last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Matthews were in Xenia, O., last week.

The Dayton Floral Co. had a large Hungarian wedding decoration last week.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

Greystone, R. I.—Jonas Brook is building a greenhouse 12x23, in which he will grow bedding plants for next spring's trade.

East Hartford, Conn.—Frank W. Richardson is completing the thorough overhauling of his greenhouses and has his place in fine shape for winter.

Duluth, Minn.—J. J. LeBorious has taken out a building permit for additions to his greenhouses on both Woodland avenue and East Third street.

Duluth, Minn.—The Lakeside Land Co. recently obtained a permit to erect a greenhouse on East Superior street, between Sixtieth and Sixty-first avenues, at a cost of $5,000.

Rockton, Ill.—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin destroyed the greenhouse and dwelling of J. H. Farnsworth, September 11, entailing a loss of $2,000, with insurance of $1,500.

Youngstown, O.—Harry C. Walther has opened a retail store at 29 West Wood street, which he calls The Flower Shop on the Hill. He has spent some years in the employ of the McLeans prior to starting in business for himself.

South Allentown, Pa.—E. N. Kroninger recently took his entire greenhouse staff, numbering fifteen employees, on a day's inspection trip to Philadelphia, stopping on the way to have a look at the big greenhouses at North Wales.

Rockford, Ill.—John Bergstrom, who has been foreman at the greenhouses of H. W. Buckbee for more than two years, is preparing to open a flower store at 507 Seventh street. In addition to a general cut flower and plant trade, Mr. Bergstrom plans to handle seeds.

Hyde Park, Mass.—Howard W. Vose, proprietor of the Flower Shop, in the Sweeney block, on South Main street, has leased the Newell greenhouses, on Park street, Attleboro, and will remove to the residence formerly occupied by Dexter E. Newell, who has retired from the trade. Mr. Vose will conduct the greenhouses in connection with the Flower Shop.

Springfield, Mass.—The flower store which has been conducted under the name of Matthews & Hassell, 126 State street, will hereafter be known as the Posey Shop. Carl S. Meacham has acquired the interest owned by Mr. Matthews and the firm name will be Meacham & Hassell. Mr. Meacham was employed by Mark Aitken for fifteen years and Cornelius Hassell also was with Mr. Aitken at one time. The new firm states that it looks to A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., for the greater part of its supply.

Hartford, Conn.—Among the principal prize winners in the horticultural exhibition at the Connecticut Fair were W. W. Hunt & Co., C. R. Burr & Co., Scott's Nurseries, J. A. Weber, John F. Huss, John Coombs and Brown, Thomson & Co. One of the chief attractions was a wreath of roses made by Mr. Coombs for presentation to the winner of the Charter Oak Stake.

Baltimore, Md.—Two greenhouses, to cost $600, will be erected by Harry J. Quick, after plans drawn by John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, which also will supply the material. The location is south of the Western Maryland railway and St. Peter's lane and between Moreland avenue and Bentalou street. The lot on which they will be erected is one and three-quarters acres, while the houses will be 14 x 100 and 16 x 100. They will be heated by hot water.

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

As experience is the best teacher, so do we learn fastest by an exchange of experiences. Many valuable points are brought out by discussion.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

Vinita, Okla.—R. E. Moss has just completed another new greenhouse, 27x100. In this house he will plant the stock in solid beds, instead of using raised benches. He grows carnations and a general line of flowers, and intends, also, to use a part of his space for vegetables. His greenhouses are equipped with a complete private water plant, with both well and cistern water and a gasoline power pump. He also uses the city water, but does not consider it quite suitable for the purpose. His establishment is located at the corner of North avenue and North Thompson street.

Cambridge, Mass.—John H. F. MacDonald, the Harvard Square florist, has returned from a vacation of several weeks spent in Canada.

Lebanon, Ind.—The greenhouses of Oak Hill Cemetery Association, C. F. S. Neal, secretary, have been sold and consolidated with the Lebanon Greenhouses.

Webster City, Ia.—The Curtis Floral Co. has moved its selling headquarters to the Buster Brown drug store, where an office will be maintained until the new range of greenhouses is completed.

Fargo, N. D.—T. D. Smedley, of the Fargo Floral Co., 20 Broadway street, has erected three greenhouses close to the entrance to Oak Grove park. He expects to cut the first blooms in the new houses about October 1.

Nevada, Ia.—Blackman Bros., gardeners, have placed an order for an iron-frame greenhouse 50x150. A service building is to be erected at the same time. This is thought to be the starter of a large new range.

Centerville, Ia.—The sale of the S. A. Love greenhouses has had the approval of the court, W. E. Kimball, of Oskaloosa, being the purchaser. Temporarily Mr. Kimball is continuing the business under the management of Mrs. Love, but later will appoint a permanent manager.

Bluepoint, L. I.—Announcement has just been made of the marriage of John Bennett, well-known local florist, while on his trip to Scotland early in the summer. The wedding occurred at Glasgow May 1. Mr. Bennett returned home shortly after, but his bride did not arrive until last week.

Westerly, R. I.—Following the plan already in operation in Boston, New London and Norwich, where it has stores, the S. J. Reuter & Son corporation is opening a retail store at 36 Main street. The retail business heretofore handled at the greenhouses will now be done from the downtown store, where a full line of accessories has been put in stock.

Waverly, R. I.—George L. Stillman, the dahlia specialist, entertained four representatives of the New England Dahlia Society, August 27, and acted as their guide in a tour of inspection of the dahlia gardens of the vicinity. The party consisted of J. K. Alexander, of Bridgewater, Mass., president of the society; Edgar W. Ela, of Woburn, Mass.; L. M. Bates, of Brockton, Mass., and J. H. Flint, of Salem, Mass. Mr. Stillman is a prominent member of the organization, being represented on the executive committee. Mr. Flint and Mr. Ela are also members of that committee.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WITH Denver out of the field, St. Paul and Cleveland are left as the only western cities to hold large flower shows this season.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE condition of the western cut flower markets gives an excellent demonstration as to how dependent the trade is on the weather. From a state of unwieldy oversupply to one of extreme scarcity within a few days is the recent record. Of course the shortage will be of brief duration.

LABELING THE PUFFS.

A law passed at the last session of Congress, approved by President Taft and becoming effective October 1, provides:

"That all editorial or other reading matter published in any newspaper, magazine or periodical for the publication of which money or other valuable consideration is paid, accepted or promised shall be plainly marked 'advertisement.' Any editor or publisher printing editorial or other reading matter for which compensation is paid, accepted or promised without so marking the same, shall, upon conviction in any court having jurisdiction, be fined not less than $50 nor more than $500."

That will be tough on the trade papers that obtain their advertising patronage as compensation for write-ups.

THE GLASS MARKET.

Greenhouse glass is worth about $1 a box more than it was a little less than a year ago. For example, 16x18 d. s. a. that was sold at Chicago for $1.85 a box in the autumn of 1911 is bringing $2.85 to $2.90 per box in small lots, and about $2.60 per box in car lots. The market has been advancing steadily for months and well-posted men in the wholesale window glass trade are confident that there will be another advance of 15 cents to 20 cents per box before any quantity of new glass comes on the market. They expect to see 16x18 bringing at least $3 and perhaps $3.25 in the next few weeks. There is little glass in stock, especially of the greenhouse sizes, and none is being made, at least by the hand factories. The American Window Glass Co., controlling the machine blown glass, has made a season's contract with the workmen, granting a wage advance of twenty per cent. The representatives of the men in the hand factories, and the employers, were in conference at Cleveland last week. The men demanded an increase equal to the increase the American employees received, but the employers could not see their way clear; they offered an increase of ten per cent on single thick glass and of fifteen per cent on double thick. A deadlock resulted. The meeting adjourned without action. Probably the interests will get together after a while, but in the meantime the factories are idle. It is not thought they will be making new glass before November 1. The dealers who supply the greenhouse trade report many small orders for repair work as coming in every day. Those who need material for repairs are being advised to buy at once and save the advance that is thought to be sure before the new glass is ready, which will not be until after greenhouse roofs must be made tight.

THE TESTS.

The test of the advertising value of a publication is the character of its text columns—and the character of the text is apparent to all: the observant can judge it by sight; the publisher can judge it by the course of his subscription list, and the advertisers can judge the quality of the text, its interest for the readers, and the number of the readers, by the returns from the advertising.

The letters printed below were all in one mail. It is to be noted that some are from users of classified liners and some from users of display space:

Please cut out the poinsettia ad for the season; we have found it very satisfactory.—G. M. Naumann & Son, Cleveland, O., September 17, 1912.

All rose plants sold and we are returning checks.—Schmaus Bros., Paducah, Ky., September 14, 1912.

It has paid.—Adolph Muller, DeKalb Nurseries, Norristown, Pa., September 16, 1912.

Your paper sure brings results; it has proven for us far more successful than any other.—Mt. Mitchell Decorative Evergreen Co., Harvard, N. C., September 13, 1912.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Seldom has this market seen such a shortage of flowers in the face of an excellent demand as has been experienced in the last ten days. Hardly a firm doing a shipping business was able to supply all the stock that was ordered and in numerous cases substitutions were made and in others it was impossible to fill orders at all. Buyers for local retail stores found the market a hard proposition and at times three to four bidders were trying to take away the same stock at figures not at all unsatisfactory to the wholesaler. Strictly speaking, there was no oversupply of anything, unless it was the miscellaneous goods and the left-over, poorer grades of asters and gladioli that could not be used for any purpose. Roses were as scarce as they have been at any time this season; in white roses the demand was unusually strong and the supply unusually short. Carnations came in larger quantities, but, as the glads and asters offered little in the way of quality, it was a case of little being available in quantity but short carnations.

American Beauties have been in comparatively better supply than roses, but the shipments of these were not equal to all demands. All lengths of stems were to be had and the quality has grown better with two weeks of favor-

Mums! Mums!

WE ALREADY ARE HANDLING FROM 3000 TO 4000 FINE FLOWERS PER DAY.

You will like these early Mums, and our supply is much larger than ever before in the last week of September. Principally Smith's Advance and Golden Glow, white and yellow. Well finished flowers of good size on long stems, well clothed with foliage—an excellent quality for so early in the season. We can keep YOU busy selling Mums from now till after Thanksgiving.

ROSES

There has been an unexpected scarcity of roses the last few days, due to weather conditions. We have had some trouble supplying the shorter grades of white, but otherwise have been able to keep our customers going. The cuts are again on the increase. Let your orders come, for able weather. The cool weather following the forcing heat of early September has cut off the rose supply in the sharpest manner. It really is remarkable how small the supply was last week after the glut early in the month. Killarney and White Killarney show good length of stem. While the great call has been for white, the pink has moved along fast, as has Maryland. Richmond is the slowest sort, but the demand has improved. The other roses, including Sunburst, Radiance, Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Taft, have moved along in excellent shape and prices advanced as the demand grew stronger. September 21 and 23 saw the demand stronger than at any previous time this season.

Carnations are improving steadily, as well as increasing in supply. The crop now on is mostly of medium stem but of fair quality blooms. Mums took a decided turn for the better during the last few days and those now on the market are of good quality, Smith's Advance, October Frost, Golden Glow and Unaka being the varieties in crop at the present time. The supply is several times as heavy as last week, for most of the growers now are cutting at least a few every day. Valley came into sharp demand in the face of the fall wedding season and highest grade stock was sold at advanced prices. Cattleyas are beginning to show life and, while the full crop is not yet on the market, the advance cuts are being made and within a short time these will be in good supply. Lilies continue short of the demand, but the quality is showing signs of betterment. Such asters as are left, if at all good, are bringing excellent prices, but the number is small. A few growers are fortunate in having late crops of gladioli. They are getting two or three times the prices that could be had at the opening of the month.

Greens of all kinds can be had in quantity and shipments of new crop boxwood have been reported.

Something New

Abbingdon Floral Company, Huntsville, Alabama, will have 10,000 Chrysanthemum Blooms to offer from Oct. 10 to Nov. 15, 1912. Your order will be appreciated.

Various Notes.

W. E. Lynch, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., arrived back in Chicago last week after having attended the funeral of his sister at Northampton, Mass. On the return trip Mr. Lynch looked over the violets at Rhinebeck and other points and reports that the crops are in excellent shape. Shipments already are being made to New York city. He says that violets can be expected in Chicago in a week or ten days.

G. M. Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., reports from the west that trade is picking up rapidly for the retailer and everything indicates a lively fall and early winter business.

John Brenner, formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., has been added to the city force of Percy Jones.

Bassett & Washburn report that mums have fully recovered from the heated spell and in addition to the yellow and white previously in crop Unaka, pink, was cut for the first time September 20.

One large wholesale house reports having expended $16 September 20 and 21 in telegraphing customers that orders could not be filled.

F. C. Hoerber, of Hoerber Bros., says that the present shortage of stock is worse than a glut. "Makes just as much, if not more, work for the wholesaler and at the same time keeps the shippers, growers and buyers on an edge trying to make everything come out right."

President John F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, reports a new stockholder in Lewis Cannon, a shipper of cut ferns at Uno, Mich.

John Kruchten says the gardenia crop has failed to come in as fast as he would like and the shipments of fresh stock received have hardly been large enough to go around the city trade.

A. C. Spencer, of Kyle & Foerster, says he is not sorry to see asters passing off the market. "There were so many shipped in this year that they were of little use and it took so much handling to get the best sorted out that we are glad to see the end of them."

orders are coming in to Winterson's Seed Store better this year than ever before.

H. N. Bruns and family have returned from their summer in Europe.

George Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co., returned last week from a three weeks' vacation trip, which included the principal eastern cities.

Tim Matchen says that Peter Reinberg is growing twice as many plants of Killarney and White Killarney as of Richmond, but that more flowers of Richmond are now being cut than of the other two sorts combined.

Frank Ayres returned September 22 from his trip to Texas.

Wietor Bros. cut their first chrysanthemums September 21. The variety was Golden Glow.

Henry Muno, who for some time has been court bailiff in the County building, still finds the flower trade attractive. Almost every noon sees him in the wholesale store of his brother-in-law, D. E. Freres.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says the Maywood growers sent in 3,400 chrysanthemums September 23, a record quantity for so early in the season.

Thomas Fogarty and his bride, who was Miss Hertha Tonner, have returned from their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Toronto. They are now nicely domiciled in Austin.

Since his brother was taken to the hospital at the beginning of July, John Sinner has spent his time at the greenhouses and has worked off fourteen pounds of superfluous weight. J. P. Sinner still is at the Alexian brothers hospital, but is able to be out and expects to leave the hospital for good by the end of this month. As a result of blood poisoning, he has lost all the digits of his right hand.

The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, is this week digging and loading the peonies sold to E. E. Pieser, who gets all the stock from the big field, amounting to several carloads. A part of the plants go to the Spaulding farm at Villa Ridge, but the bulk of the stock will be planted at Calumet, Mich., where Mr. Pieser and August Jurgens have gone into partnership on a peony farm. Mr. Jurgens goes to Calumet to direct the planting as soon as the cars of roots reach there.

John Grossman has returned to his home at Evansville, Ind., because of ill health.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has this week double decked all the east side of the store. The new balcony will be used by the supply department. It seems as though every inch of available space now is occupied.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., says September will break all records for the supply department of his company, due to the shipping of orders accumulated during summer for delivery after September 1.

The Cook County Florists' Association held its monthly meeting at the Tavern September 19, President A. C. Kohlbrand in the chair. The trustees were instructed to prepare for a ladies' night the second Thursday in October, with dinner and home talent vaudeville.

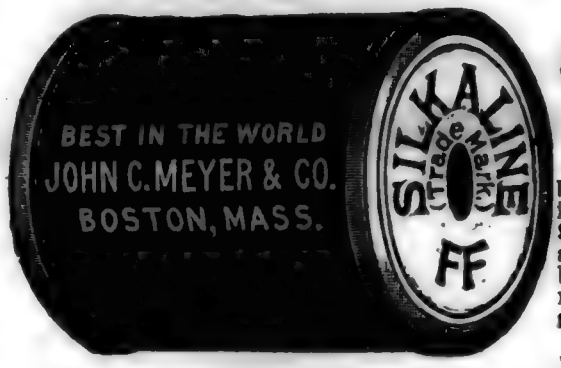
last year, both local and out-of-town orders being on the increase.

The firm of Zech & Mann was well represented at the opening of the Cook County Florists' Association bowling schedule. Besides John Zech, the head of the firm, who rolled with the Orchids, Allie Zech, his son, was in the line-up of the Carnations, and Vilter, from the shipping department, was bowling with the Roses.

Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, says it was fortunate that his dahlia shippers began shipping last week, as they brought good returns in face of the shortage of other stock around the market.

Frank Oechslin reports receiving shipments of bulbs, for which his new bulb house, 22 x 115, is about ready. This house incorporates many novel improvements, such as the method of placing shelves, flooring, etc. A large force is also at work on geraniums and other bedding stock for the spring trade.



P. L. McKee says the John C. Moninger Co. never was so busy as now; everybody wants his greenhouse material at once. There already are inquiries for next season.

Bernard J. Schmierer, for some time with the Geo. Wittbold Co., resigned September 1 and is organizing the North Shore Floral Co., intending to open within a few days at 6566 Sheridan road.

W. M. Bomberger, of Harlan, Ia., has a daughter, Miss Ada Bomberger, a graduate of the Art Institute, who is an artist in one of the large Chicago engraving establishments.

It develops that the partnership between John Scheiden and Joseph Schoos was dissolved June 15, Mr. Schoos from that date conducting the business in Evanston under his own name.

Visitors: William LaHayne, Chesterton, Ind.; F. A. Forbes, Plymouth, Ind.; H. B. Buck, with Arthur T. Boddington, New York; Arthur Newell and wife, of Kansas City, en route home from Europe; Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.; Miss L. J. Baker, Ottumwa, Ia.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business is slowly but surely becoming more lively as the winter season advances. The fall openings, which are now a regular feature at all the dry goods stores, are creating quite a demand for stock, and those florists having a large stock of palms of suitable size find this the harvest time. Stock is quite scarce and, were it not for the number of good roses available, it would be a hard problem to fill orders. Those people seeking a variety of flowers are doomed to disappointment. Asters are nearly done for and carnations are by no means anything to brag of as yet.

Various Notes.

J. L. Hudson's mammoth store was decorated for the fall or harvest opening by Breitmeyer's, who have done the work for this firm for many years. Instead of using the conventional palms and ferns, some unusual decorative scheme is always worked out.

The members of the Detroit Florists' Club were the invited guests of the Toledo Florists' Club, September 25. Among the florists who took advantage of this enjoyable trip were: J. K. Stock, Gus H. Taepke, Theo. Damerow, George E. Browne, Robert Watson, Hugo Schroeter left Wednesday night, September 25, for Chicago. Schroeter's have the large decorations for the Newcomb-Endicott store fall opening, which calls for the use of thousands of Beauties, several hundred palms and many baskets of foliage plants.

One of the attractions at the auto exhibit at the state fair was the beautiful new Federal delivery truck built especially for handling plants for Chas. H. Plumb. With this new wagon of a ton and a half capacity, Mr. Plumb will be able to take care of the trade at Easter and the holidays.

W. B. Brown was the principal exhibitor at the annual Michigan state fair and captured many premiums. Mr. Brown is kept so busy between his store and his farm that he is seldom seen at the club meetings.

The new Broadway market will be opened to the public about October 3. With the opening of this public market, Broadway will no doubt become a pretty lively thoroughfare, as hundreds of people will daily wend their way to this most modern market place to secure eatables, and the florists on Broadway and East Grand river, directly opposite the market, will be materially benefited. H. S.

Norman Sullivan has secured a permit to build a greenhouse on Woodward street, between High and Duffield streets.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Trade is in a promising condition. Asters and gladioli have about disappeared, or at least those that are left are not worth much. Chrysanthemums are coming, but not in any great quantity. Some of the Smith's Advance are good for early white. Carnations, as a rule, are still short-stemmed and short in quantity, but, taking it all around, there is just about enough stock to take care of trade.

Various Notes.

E. J. McCallum, president of the McCallum Co., and his brother, George, were victims of a head-on collision on Sunday, September 22. They were out on a motorcycle and went head-on into an automobile. The auto, after knocking them off the machine, ran over them and they were picked up from

The A. W. Smith Co. has a handsome window of orchids, with a fine basket of Oncidium varicosum in the center. This firm has been compelled to put on a night force, to take care of their out-of-town orders which must go on the early morning trains.

Mrs. E. A. Williams displays once a year a handsome window of yellow dahlias and foliage plants. Last week the display was yellow.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has been cutting quantities of cattleyas, which find ready sale, as there have been a number of large orders, calling for good stock.

Ernst Fischer, well known in this vicinity, is now a member of the firm of Fischer & Scheick, of Sharon, Pa., who have purchased the business of M. I. O'Brien, now retired. Mr. Fischer is running the greenhouses. Every once in a while we hear of a florist retiring, but somehow none of them seem to come from Pittsburgh.

W. J. Smith, of the A. W. Smith Co., has kept increasing his plant at Canfield, O., until it now demands about all his time, along with his other interests there.

There seems to be a scarcity of greenhouse labor around this section.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

With a full week of dark, wet and cool weather, the supply of stock has been short of the demand. The heavy rains put an end to asters, and greatly reduced the supply of gladioli. As a result everything in the line of cut flowers of fair quality has found ready sale. While the daily receipts contain some new carnations, the supply is limited and of only fair quality. Mums have made their debut and it will not be long before that flower will again reign supreme. In roses the supply has been about equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

At the recent Wisconsin State Fair H. W. Koerner again proved to be it with his dahlias and gladioli. Currie Bros. Co. also took their share of prizes, as usual at the state fair. Local florists did not, owing no doubt to the scarcity of stock, plant flower beds for competition at the fair. At the last moment the fair board had some beds planted because they did not like the looks without them.

the chrysanthemum houses they are beginning to cut Golden Glow. The carnation houses are all planted up and the plants all look thrifty and promise good results this season. The roses have been giving a good cut through the entire year. The plant department is one of the most interesting features in the range at present. The stock of palms, ferns, auraucarias and other decorative plants is being depleted rapidly, for the department is busy making shipments as far west as the coast and south to Texas. For lack of room the company was obliged to erect another house, which will be completed shortly, for azaleas, roses and other blooming plants for the holidays.

Green Bay avenue had a street celebration Tuesday evening, September 24. August Dettmann & Son, being near, took part in the affair and had their store nicely decorated for the occasion.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last two weeks have been cold and we have had a great deal of rain. As a result the cut of flowers has been shorter than for some time all along the line. Asters are about over and what are coming in have lost their high quality. Carnations are coming pretty freely, but they are not so good as they were the first week that they appeared. They will soon be up to standard, however, and there were never so many good plants benched in our city as there are this year. Everyone seems to feel that his stock has done better than usual this summer.

Chrysanthemums are still two weeks in the future. The few that are appearing are good and are in demand. The first of the new rose Sunburst to be cut by any of our local florists appeared last week. They meet a warm reception. They are always snapped up as soon as they appear.

Various Notes.

Our state fair was held here last week. There were no classes for the professional florists. The fruit exhibit was the best ever held in the state. Our nurserymen and orchardists seem to be awakening to their opportunities. One thing noticeable about the fruit exhibit was the absence of the moth of the cotton leaf worm, Alabama Argillacea. One year ago the plates of fruit were badly damaged by these moths sucking at them in such large numbers.

Some time ago I mentioned the canna leaf roller, Calpodes Ethlius (Cram), which made its appearance at Memphis two years ago and last year spread all over the state, devastating the parks and private canna beds. This worm is as large as the full-grown silkworm and increases so rapidly and has such an enormous appetite that it was a real menace where it was not advisable to spray. The state was just ready to issue a bulletin on this pest when it was learned that it had failed to appear anywhere in the state this year.

Our state entomologist, C. M. Bentley, was in the vicinity making his annual inspection last week. He is one of the inspectors who realize that it is to their advantage to be friendly to the grower and give all the advice and help possible to all who need it. He reports that the outlook for fall business in all lines of nursery stock was never before so good in Tennessee.

Haury Bros. are cutting a fine lot of Sunburst roses. They say their only mistake with this rose was in not planting enough of it. They say they have been cleaned up closely on everything most of the time the last ten days.

The Joys' refrigerators were almost empty when I visited them the last of the week. They say that business has been all that they could ask. Everything is cleaned up as fast as it is cut. They have a cut of fine orchids coming in now.

Geny's say that it is hard to get enough stock right now to meet the demand, as it is just between crops. The demand for designs has been heavy of late. They still have a supply of good gladioli.

Hillcrest School Farm expects to begin digging tuberoses and gladioli this week. The season has been a favorable one for these plants.

Floyd Bralliar.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

There has been more business in the cut flower market the week ending September 25 than in any of its predecessors this season. The supply of flowers is larger, while the demand has consumed most of them at fair prices. The greatest change is the fall in the price of cattleyas in the face of an improving market. Labiata is arriving in increasing numbers. The price has retrograded from the extreme figures of a month ago to normal, the price being more than cut in half. The dahlia has steadily gained ground, though not yet at its best. The quantities bought and sold are large. The prices paid for really good stock are fair. Roses have shown a slight tendency toward higher prices, due to better quality. All grades have been selling well. Asters are steadily diminishing in numbers, making room for carnations. The Wards and good Enchantress are in demand, and other varieties seemingly less so. Monrovia has been added to Golden Glow and Smith's Advance, making three varieties of chrysanthemums on which reliance may be placed. There has been some trouble with the quality, due probably to the weather, in part, at least. Good flowers have been in request. Single violets are more plentiful. Tritomas are coming into favor. Cosmos is increasing. Greens are plentiful. The out-of-town demand has been excellent. Richmond is the dullest rose on the list. The average quality of valley is improving. Easter lilies are quite scarce at times.

ing a greenhouse last year, with such good results that he has used it on his new range, built this season. Mr. Doemling says that the mixture has two advantages: It is easily applied. Four men required only three days to do the work on 20,000 square feet of glass, and it is cheap—25 cents a gallon. Mr. Doemling thinks that his brother florists should try the new mixture.

B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., comments on the big demand for red velour ruscus. He says colored and natural thistles and colored cape flower sprays are being used extensively for decorations of all kinds.

Samuel S. Pennock returned from Panama September 21.

The Henry A. Dreer Co. ordered two new motor delivery cars September 23, one a 3-ton Packard and the other a 1½-ton Autocar. When delivered this will give the company three cars for transporting stock from Riverton to Philadelphia.

Arthur Newell and Mrs. Newell, of Kansas City, Mo., called on the House of Rice on their way home from Europe. This was Mr. and Mrs. Newell's first visit to this city.

The Henry F. Michell Co. will hold a dahlia show at 518 Market street October 2 to 4. Novelties are expected from Andalusia and other farms. Prizes to the value of $150 have been offered.

Recent visitors include: M. H. Ebel and Mrs. Ebel, Sacramento, Cal.; A. Rossi, San Francisco, Cal.; H. Maier, Burlingame, Cal.; D. MacRorie, of MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, Cal., and M. C. King, Washington, Pa.

William Prevail is the new manager for the Collingdale Greenhouses.

The Johnson Seed Co. reports that the bulb season is progressing steadily. There are numerous inquiries.

Berger Bros. are expecting an active demand for good dahlias in all colors.

Henry M. Weiss & Sons have their entire place in carnations. The roses grown on their recent addition, the former Eugene Weiss place, have been discarded. They have 50,000 Wards.

The genial Robert Shoch, traveling representative, spent Saturday in the House of Rice. Just off the road with a batch of large orders, he says the outlook was never better for a prosperous season in the florists' trade.

changes rush the work with all possible celerity. Outdoor flowers are now on the wane. Asters are steadily decreasing in numbers and their value has improved. Plenty of dahlias and cosmos are seen and gladioli, for so late, are wonderfully good. Sweet peas are few and poor in quality. There are tuberoses, but for these no great demand exists nowadays.

Roses are now the flowers par excellence and their quality is steadily improving. Killarneys are much finer since we got cooler days, and so are Wards, Hillingdons and Richmonds. There are still too many short-stemmed flowers, but with the decline of asters they sell better. Carnations are more plentiful, but do not yet cut any great figure. Some large growers are just starting to ship small lots. Violets appeared from quite a few growers last week. Chrysanthemums, such as Smith's Advance and Golden Glow, are in good supply. There is an ample supply of valley and lilies. Gardenias are now coming in of good quality and cattleyas are seen in greater numbers, with yellow oncidiums and Vanda cærulea as companions. Demand for ferns and asparagus shows an improvement.

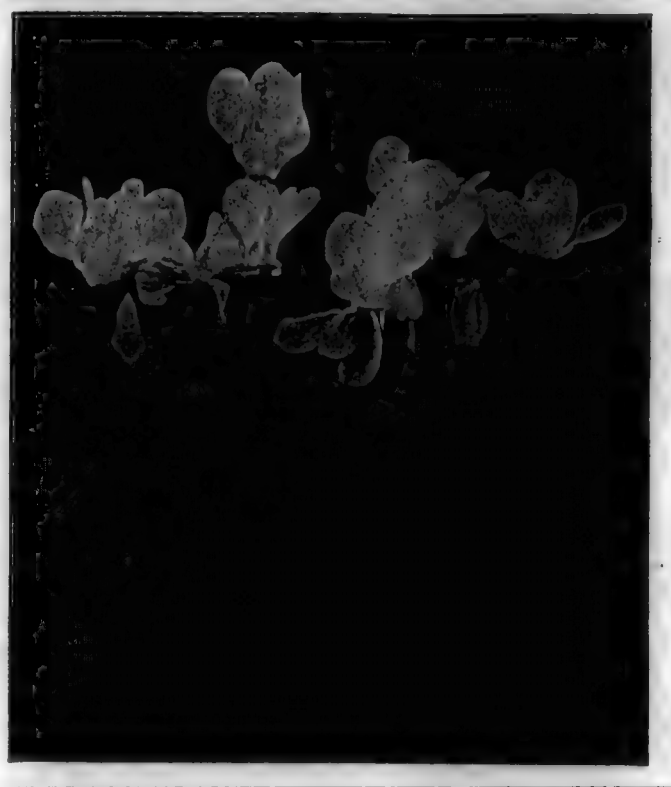
than in other years, it made up in quality what it lacked in mere numbers. No cash prizes were offered, and it is creditable that such a fine exhibition could be gotten up without them. I think, however, a few specials in the way of cups or medals would considerably stimulate competition.



John K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, filled half a dozen large tables, staging some 500 varieties and including every known type. George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. Field; Edwin Stevens, a fine scarlet decorative; Virginia Wardell; Globe, a huge show variety; Alice Longworth, a beautiful shell pink decorative; Lillian Russell, Clara Bloodgood and S. W. Leighton, also awards of recognition for Samoset, orange decorative; Jake Stahl, rich crimson decorative, and Sunrise. H. R. Wirth took certificates for decorative seedlings 102 and 113, and for Herr von Bismarck, deep crimson cactus. E. F. Dwyer received awards for single seedlings 1000 and 1001 and Luther C. Parker an award of recognition for Houghton, white suffused delicate pink, a peony-flowered sort.

Among cactus varieties the following stood out prominently: F. Graham, Marjorie Castleton, Artus, Phineas, Reliable, H. G. Alford, Kathleen Bryant, Goliath and Sardigna. In decoratives, which were much in favor, a few of the best were: Papa Charmet, Mme. Marze, M. Barel, Le Grand Manitou, Yellow Colosse, Jeanne Charmet, Souv. de G. Doazon, Le Geant, Jack Rose, Delice, Santa Cruz, Oban and Mme. Van Den Dael.

The exhibition committee consisted of E. W. Ela, Woburn, Mass.; H. L. Winters, Lakeport, N. H.; Geo. B. Gill, Medford, Mass.; G. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; W. C. Brady, Wollaston, Mass.; T. N. Holbrook, Braintree, Mass., and J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass., the president of the society.

Various Notes.

W. F. Turner, of Woburn, had the first pansies in the local market September 11, following with single violets September 13.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, has already some high grade carnations, Beacon, White Enchantress, Pink Delight and Fenn, at the Boston Flower Exchange.

The annual fruit and vegetable show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held October 4 to 6.

George W. Foster, of Tewksbury, is sending a fine lot of Golden Glow chrysanthemums and excellent new crop carnations to the Boston Coöperative Market.

Gustave Olson, of Woburn, has the best araucarias we have seen in years. They are in active demand at 2 Park street.

Albert H. Woods, a violet specialist in Brookline, accidentally shot and instantly killed Thomas Goldrop, a gardener in Cambridge, on the evening of September 18. Mr. Woods stated that thieves had been looting his violets, and hearing someone in his beds on the

Mr. Goldrop had been a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club for four and one-half years and that organization sent a wreath and was represented at the funeral, September 22.

E. J. Rogean, at the Boston Flower Exchange, is receiving fine single violets from H. L. Cox, of Winchester, and C. A. Sanborn, of Woburn.

Aubrey A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, who considerably increased his glass area this season, has started shipping quantities of splendid carnations, which are handled by his brother at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thornhill, of Readville, have been enjoying two weeks' vacation in Canada.

H. R. Comley, on Park street, is specializing on imported Scotch heather. I noted a fine plant of Begonia Weltoniensis in his window September 21.

D. F. Hutchinson & Son, of Lexington, have a fine assortment of carnations, such as Beacon, Fair Maid and White Enchantress, at the Boston Cooperative Market.

H. M. Robinson & Co. are anticipating excellent fall trade, for which they are well equipped by reason of a number of improvements in the store.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, through Geo. H. Noyes at the Boston Flower Exchange, is disposing of a high grade of Beacon, Pink Delight, White Enchantress and Fenn carnations.

We spent one entire season in looking around in the South for the best Boxwood that we could buy. We visited the plantations where Boxwood was planted and made our selection. We possibly spent more time making this selection than most buyers and experienced dealers can afford. You will agree that Boxwood Sprays at 8c and 10c per pound are expensive when you only receive 6 to 8 ounces of material that you can use out of a pound. We recommend to the purchaser our Boxwood Sprays for good value, full weight and little waste. Our price for this quality is $7.50 for a 50-lb. case. Write us on quantity orders; we can figure closer.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

A feature of the first weeks of September was the appearance of the early varieties of chrysanthemums. October Frost, Golden Glow and Unaka are now increasing in quantity and quality. Business is assuming a livelier aspect, and already the fall weddings, openings, etc., are creating a big demand for cut flowers and decorations. Kaiserin, My Maryland and Killarney are given the precedence in roses. There is a heavy demand for valley. A nice supply of pastel shades in antirrhinums is in.

Carnations are fine for this season of the year, and are used in place of asters, which are scarce and of poor quality. Owing to the demise of several prominent persons, there has been a heavy demand for funeral work. Lilium giganteum has arrived in quantity, and some cattleyas are commencing to arrive.

The cool weather of the last week has helped enliven things considerably. There have been several days of rain, which helped brighten the aspect out of doors.

Various Notes.

The growers are busily engaged in housing the young stock, a great deal of attention being paid to the young carnation plants and chrysanthemum stock.

A visit to Knecht's new houses discloses a healthy, thrifty stock of roses, Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond. The new stock has obtained a fine growth. Four houses are devoted to roses. The carnations are fine, bushy plants, already bearing many blooms. The other stock, including smilax, Sprengeri, etc., is in good condition, and the chrysanthemums bid fair to bring fine results.

The New Haven Floral Co. is cutting some exceptionally good carnations for this season of the year, and they find a ready market. They will specialize in this standard flower this winter.

A. J. Lanternier is well prepared for a busy season, and everything in the greenhouses is in tip-top condition.

Markey Bros. have a fine stock of all kinds of winter flowers in their greenhouses, and are devoting several more houses to roses this year.

The Veseys are cutting heavily of roses, particularly My Maryland. This firm cuts an average of 2,400 roses a day. One large house, 40x300, is devoted to Killarneys, besides fifteen other rose houses. The orchid houses are producing splendidly. The grower of these flowers is experimenting with orchid seedlings. A heavy cut is expected for this winter's demand.

The plant of the C. B. Flick Floral Co. is in prime condition. The young stock is healthy, and particularly is this true of the roses. The Killarney plants are exceptionally fine. Young carnation stock promises good things for this winter. The outlook for mums is extremely good, and several of the early varieties are in. The quality of these is fine.

Miss Doswell, of the Doswell Greenhouses, has opened a pretty new flower store on West Main street. The interior decorations are extremely pleasing. The walls are done in buff and the woodwork finish is in white enamel. A tile floor harmonizes in coloring. Miss Doswell will specialize in landscape gardening. She carries a line of canary birds and goldfish. An artistic fountain and rockery have been built in this pretty store. Miss Doswell held an opening to the public September 21.

Miss Katherine Vesey has gone to Glendale, O., where she will attend Glendale college this year. W. T. Vesey, Jr., has returned from an eastern business trip.

The Bradley Flower Shop reports a number of weddings this season.

that you can afford to watch good profits wither away because of poor refrigeration and ambitious ice bills?

You can make your money cover a lot more ground than it ever had a chance to do before by holding down heavily on the use of ice and the spoilage of flowers.

You can do this if you install a

CHINESE LILIES.

When should we start Chinese lilies in the sand and water and how should we care for the bulbs after blooming?
A. J. K.

Chinese bulbs can be started at once. The bulbs are not worth carrying over a second season. C. W.

NAME OF FERN.

We are enclosing a leaf of a fern which we bought about a year ago. We have lost the name of it and now we have some to sell. It grows up straight and is quite handsome. It is used especially for porch boxes. Can you name it for us? J. B.

The fern in question is Nephrodium molle, a species that has been in cultivation since about 1820 and is found in a wild state in the tropics of both hemispheres. W. H. T.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There was considerably more activity displayed during the last week. The weather was just right and the trade was much encouraged, after a dull summer. The fall openings at downtown stores called for a lot of design work as well as decorations, and this, with a good run of funeral work, kept us all quite busy.

The wholesalers say stock was quite scarce all through the week and clean sales were reported on everything except carnations. These are rather plentiful and of poor quality. Anything fancy in carnations sells well. Roses, which have been plentiful, have let up greatly and none of the markets seem able to supply the demand just at present. Beauties, especially, have a big call. There were quite a few white and yellow mums in the market last week and they cleaned up at good prices. Quality was only fair. Late gladioli have been selling at good prices. Tuberose stalks are bringing top prices this season, as not many come in. Lilies and valley are in demand. Wild smilax had a big call all the week, as did other greens.

Various Notes.

R. J. Windler and wife are spending a few weeks visiting Mrs. Windler's parents at Chicago. They are expected home the latter part of this week.

Ostertag Bros. furnished the decorations in the Coliseum for the Druggists' convention. For the banquet 250 tables were decorated. Henry Ostertag says it was one of the largest jobs in many years.

A. Jucnicke, superintendent of the Missouri Botanical Garden, recently spent a week in Chicago, looking over the big parks in that city. He reports that the big conservatory at the garden will not be completed until next February.

Henry Berning had some excellent shipments of white chrysanthemums last week.

Gustav Grossart and H. Emunds, of Belleville, were visitors during the week, buying supplies, and report trade opening nicely with them.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has had a big demand for the Killarneys of Werner Bros. The supply department is working overtime.

The Tinsley Seed Co. has closed its doors. The stock and fixtures are being shipped to the main store at Louisville, Ky. Mr. Bryant, the manager, will also be with the firm at Louisville.

Fred C. Weber has a fine new automobile delivery, one of the handsomest cars in the city.

F. J. Foster opened his new store at Delmar and Kingshighway September 21. It will be known as Foster the Florist.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. reports disposing of a large quantity of gladioli last week. The stock of florists' supplies is arriving rapidly.

Mrs. Brix reports that her husband, A. Brix, head of the Brix Floral Co., will not be able to return from Europe before November. He has been taken sick and will not be able to travel before then.

Geo. H. Angermueller says trade is picking up, but that a scarcity of stock was noted all last week.

J. F. Ammann put in some hard work last week as superintendent of the centennial at Edwardsville. He had the whole celebration in charge and everything went along like clockwork. William C. Smith and wife spent a day at Edwardsville during the centennial.

Pot plants of chrysanthemums are coming along nicely with Messrs. Schray, Held, Beyer, Windler, Young, Sanders, Bruenig, Kruse and Walther.

The local seedsmen report that Chinese lily bulbs are scarce this season, having received only half the quantity ordered.

Fall openings were numerous last week. Among those who were busy with decorations were Messrs. Sanders, Young, Beyer, Weber, Schray, Bruenig and Ostertag Bros. Plants and cut flowers were used in quantities.

George Wickman, while trimming hedges last week in East St. Louis, fell against the point of a knife blade, which penetrated his breast. He is at the city hospital in a serious condition.

The Retail Florists' Association held an interesting meeting at the Washington hotel September 16, C. C. Sanders presiding. After the meeting the members sat down to a nice luncheon and a pleasant evening was spent.

Visitors: Wm. P. Craig, of Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago. Mr. Reburn was ill for a couple of days, confined to his room at the hotel.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower market in New York is beginning to sit up and take notice. The long depression seems to be over and a healthy and optimistic tone prevails. The market the last of the week was not burdened with an oversupply and the retail demand is growing daily. Prices have not advanced materially and in orchids especially the movement has been backward. The new crop of cattleyas is on in earnest and from the price a few weeks ago, the slump to 40 cents has been rapid. There now are so many large sources of supply in this vicinity that heavy receipts can be counted on for the near future.

Roses of all kinds, and there are a dozen or more varieties now to be reckoned with, are growing in numbers and improving in quality. While the bulk of arrivals are still short-stemmed and small in bud, the supply of specials and extras is constantly increasing, and the avidity with which these are snapped up indicates a hopeful condition in the trade. Beauties are beginning to look worth while and a top of 25 cents for the best seems to be maintained. The aster supply is no longer a menace, and gladioli have had their day. A sufficient quantity of each for the local demand comes in daily, but another week will likely see their finish. Late prices show an improvement from the low level of September. The dahlia is at its best this week and great quantities are sold, especially of the new varieties.

Every day now increases the shipment of chrysanthemums. Unaka and October Frost have arrived, and Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are no longer novel. By October 1 mum will be the word, and then comes the flood. Carnations are improving rapidly in stem and flower. As an indication of the return of the tide, one wholesaler on Twenty-eighth street received a dozen large boxes of them from one of his growers September 21. Lilies were firm last week, but the supply is increasing. Gardenias are fast improving. The wholesale windows show an abundance of tritomas, hydrangeas, cosmos and celosia, the latter in pots. Prices on all of these depend upon the buyer.

Various Notes.

Interest in the National Flower Show is developing rapidly. Chairman Totty comes to town frequently, and is in conference with his committee. Secretary Young was in Boston last week disposing of exhibition space.

The auction sales have opened auspiciously, large crowds attending. At MacNiff's the sale of the R. G. Dun palms drew many of the leading retailers. Messrs. Troy, Stumpp, Myer, Trepel and Nugent among them. Myer secured the gem of the collection, an immense kentia, for $195. Elliott has a sale of nursery stock of the Bonnie Brae Nurseries, at New Rochelle. At the headquarters of the New York Flower Auction Co., on West Twenty-eighth street, plants, cut flowers and supplies are sold daily, Mondays excepted.

The local branch of Henry M. Robinson & Co. and Maurice L. Glass have amalgamated under the title of the Henry M. Robinson Co., Maurice L. Glass, manager. Each interest retains fifty per cent of the stock of the corporation. The officers of the new company are: President, Henry M. Robinson; vice-president, Charles E. Robinson; treasurer, Maurice L. Glass; secretary, Joseph Margoles. Jacob C. Sibert, formerly manager of Robinson's New York branch, is with the new company, which will make its headquarters on the first floor of the Coogan building.

Rubber plants have been in demand as decorations for the rubber show at the Grand Central Palace.

Mr. Polykranas, the successful manager of the Greek-American Florists' annual ball, announces January 2 and February 19 as the dates for this season's festivities.

Several New Yorkers intend accepting President Vincent's invitation to visit him this week, on the occasion of his annual dahlia and canna show at White Marsh, Md.

September 25 and 26, at the American Institute, the annual exhibition is being held. A fine display of dahlias is the principal feature.

last week and is now installing his fall supply of plants in the large conservatory at the rear of his cut flower department.

Young & Nugent had many large funeral designs last week, one shower wreath using over 300 orchids. Mr. Nugent says his business was never better than now.

Arthur Newell and wife, of Kansas City, left new York for home September 20.

Charles Millang says his sales average a Ford a day.

The New York Cut Flower Exchange won the game of baseball against the New York Cut Flower Co., at Woodside, last week, Philip Kessler dispensing hospitality before and after.

Mr. Reed, of Reed & Keller, says business has been far ahead of last year and predicts a banner season.

Messrs. Weston, Ditzenberger, Rogers and Coan were visiting their growers last week by auto. Mr. Coan is impressed with the merits of the new pink mum, grown by Baer Bros.

Clarence Slinn was married on his twenty-first birthday, September 18, to Miss Helen Bloomfield, of New York. Mr. Slinn, who is a brother of B. J. Slinn, has branched out for himself in the wholesale cut flower business, with headquarters on the Guttman floor of the Coogan building.

Donald McLeod and son, of Concord, N. H., were in New York last week on their way home from a holiday trip north and west.

P. Quinlan, of Syracuse, was a recent visitor.

Gunther Bros. have added to their stock a line of baskets on which they control the supply.

Russin & Hanfling had a case of baskets stolen from in front of their store last week.

Philip Ditzenberger, foreman for H. E. Froment, celebrated his thirty-third birthday September 20. Mr. Froment visited L. B. Coddington last week.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

TACOMA, WASH.

Tacoma has been experiencing some real summer weather, together with a great revival in business. With a number of funerals last week, stock is well cleaned up. Carnations, roses, etc., are scarce and, with the rains of the last few weeks, outdoor stock is about done. Some of the early mums are coming in and are of good quality.

About thirty-five of the Tacoma florists attended the picnic at Seattle September 15. They took the boat, Indianapolis, landing in Seattle at 11 a. m., where they were met by a reception committee from the Seattle club. The trip across the lake was much enjoyed by all. On landing at Wildwood park, lunch was eaten, after which a series of athletic contests were pulled off. An account of the happenings will be found among the Seattle items. The evening was spent in dancing.

J. L. S.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business for the last week has shown a gradual increase. Funeral work, as well as the counter trade, has been brisk. Stock is becoming more plentiful, which is a necessary accompaniment to the increasing business. Mums are of better quality and they move well. Roses are improving in the daily cut. The wholesale shipping trade is active. Portland is rapidly becoming a wholesale center for the Pacific northwest. Carnations are showing up nicely, with a daily clean-up. Lilies are scarce and move well. The bright days are bringing the violets out rapidly, but they are not overabundant. The demand for palms and ferns has been brisk.

Various Notes.

A special meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday evening, September 16, at Martin & Forbes' store, to devise plans for the coming flower show. Committees were appointed to arrange details. A substantial fund is guaranteed to defray expenses.

The dahlia show has been postponed one week, on account of inclement weather.

J. B. Pilkington has returned from Europe. While abroad he bought considerable quantities of nursery stock and bulbs.

John G. Holden has submitted to a painful operation, due to an injury to his nose several years ago.

E. T. Mische, superintendent of parks, is making a collection of native rhododendrons, azaleas and lilies, to be planted in the parks next season. Some of the most beautiful varieties are found in the mountains and are not known to the commercial world.

Julius Eppstein, of San Francisco, spent several days here last week.

Fred Wiedemann has returned from California, where he spent some time looking after his mining interests.

The Swiss Floral Co. raised about 1,000 sacks of potatoes on vacant land adjacent to its place, but the prices are now so low that they have decided to build a storehouse and hold them over until the market rises.

E. R. C.

It is said that the florists of Portland are arranging to provide a fund of between $2,500 and $4,000 for the fall show, to be held in the Armory for two or three days between November 10 and 15. "We expect to make the first show from two to three days in length," says James Forbes, of Martin & Forbes, one of the promoters of the scheme. "If the public takes kindly to our shows and the movement results in an awakening in flower culture, we shall hold a spring show and then another in the summer, making three or four a season. A dahlia show is another one of our plans." The publicity committee for the show consists of Arthur Bowman, J. J. Butzer, Ralph Routledge and J. B. Pilkington.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

After the fashion of one year ago, the weather, which has been cool all summer, has suddenly turned rather warm. This has had the effect of bringing into town large quantities of outside stock and the prices have dropped quite a bit in consequence. This is also true of inside roses and carnations, and there has been an excess of poor stock in evidence all week. Japanese and other lilies are about out for the year. Asters are almost over. Mums are not yet plentiful, but will be in full crop in a couple of weeks. Violets are trying to flower during this hot spell, but are having a hard time to combat the weather conditions. A few late blooming dahlias and gladioli are showing well, but the long nights will soon make them scarce.

Trade conditions, which were quiet during the early part of the month, show some signs of awakening and from present indications there will be a good resumption before long.

Various Notes.

M. E. Gregory, a well known nurseryman of Napa, Cal., is in town for a few days.

We learn with regret of the serious illness of Frederick Ludemann. Mr. Ludemann has been an invalid for several years, but within the last few days his condition has been critical. He is one of the few surviving pioneer nurserymen and for over forty years conducted the Pacific Nurseries.

Fred Johnson, formerly of Los Angeles, is in town.

The Hallawell Seed Co., on Market street, has issued an attractive fall bulb catalogue.

N. Rolleri, formerly in the retail trade in Oakland, has returned from a several months' sight-seeing trip spent in various parts of the state. G.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

Business is showing a slight improvement over recent conditions and it looks as if from now on the florists are in for better times.

The recent good weather has improved the quality of outside flowers. Some really good asters are now on sale, and other outside stock is fairly plentiful. Good roses from outdoors are none too plentiful and are bringing good prices. Gladioli and liliums are still coming in quantity and the sale for them is good. Chrysanthemums are on sale in most of the stores and are fairly good for the season. Carnations are more plentiful, but the demand still exceeds the supply. Orchids are abundant and commanding good prices. Autumn leaves are being largely used for decorations, and green is scarce.

Florists' Picnic.

The first picnic of the Seattle florists was held at Wildwood park last week and was a brilliant success. Everybody of any consequence in the trade here was present and all appeared to have a good time. There was a large contingent of the Tacoma florists over, with their ladies, and one of the events of the day was a baseball game between Tacoma and Seattle. A closely contested game resulted in victory for the home team.

Wildwood is an ideal place for an event of this kind. The journey to it over Lake Washington is a picnic in itself. About 200 availed themselves of the opportunity. The stores were closed and everyone was out for a good time. The Whangdoodle quartette provided good music and in the evening dancing was indulged in on the fine floor of the pavilion. The athletic events created some excitement, especially the florists' Marathon, a course of ten rounds of the bases, which tested the endurance of most of the contestants to the limit. The pot race was a novelty. Each competitor had to carry a 3-inch pot on top of his head and on the back of each extended hand. Below is a list of the contests and the results:

Marathon—C. Gilmer, first; H. Gill, second; S. McMoines, third.

Ball throwing for ladies—Mrs. Pritchard, first; Mrs. Slate, second.

Various Notes.

The first shipment of California violets for the season was received by Rosaia Bros. this week from S. Rosaia Co., Colma, Cal.

Julius Eppstein, of San Francisco, was here calling on the trade last week.

Fred Smith and wife were week-end visitors from Tacoma, incidentally taking in the florists' picnic.

Henry Morgan, the Brighton rose grower, is the happy father of a new boy.

Julius Schnapp has been pretty sick, but is about again. T. W.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Business for the first part of September was fair and used up the supply of good flowers, many small society events calling for some pretty table decorations. The new crop of carnations is beginning to come in and, while the stems are a little short yet, the quality is good, and the same holds true in regard to the roses. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are nice and about the only early yellow grown around Spokane.

Flower Show.

The first annual flower show arranged by the Spokane Horticultural Society, September 12 to 14, was a great success. The only trouble was the small hall; it was crowded with flowers and exhibits. Flowers by the wagon-load began coming in on the morning of the day of entry, until the committee had to refuse exhibits. The city parks, as well as Natatorium park, had fine exhibits of dahlias, asters and other flowers of the season. The finest dahlia exhibit, which would do credit to any show, was entered by A. L. White, who has a beautiful summer home at Hayden Lake. Cash prizes were awarded to the amateurs as well as professionals. First prizes for the best wreath, table decoration, mantel decoration, basket of flowers and artistic vase of flowers were awarded to the Spokane Florist Co., while first prize on wedding bouquet was awarded to H. E. Reimers. Hoyt Bros. were awarded second prizes on table decoration, mantel decoration and basket of flowers, while H. E. Reimers was awarded second prize on wreath. Second prize for bride's bouquet went to the Spokane Florist Co. Many new members were added to the society and the show next year will be on a much larger scale.

Various Notes.

A. J. Burt has moved into his new location on Riverside and has fitted up a handsome store with all new and latest fixtures, including a handsome ice-box. All the woodwork is in white. His two large show windows will enable him to display his stock to the best advantage. He is planning a formal opening as soon as everything is in readiness.

Adolph Donart is sending about the best carnations and chrysanthemums that are coming into this market just now.

Auratum and rubrum lilies are the prominent flowers in the windows of Hoyt Bros. and H. E. Reimers.

H. Olson, formerly of Tacoma, has purchased the stock and rented one of the sections of glass of Hoyt Bros. He will wholesale the output in the Spokane market.

The Spokane Greenhouses have some fine cyclamen plants and their poinsettia pans are going to be fine for the Christmas trade. Their plants for cutting are now showing stems three to four feet long.

The Spokane Florist Co. is showing some handsome arrangements of cactus dahlias and is introducing them into the homes of the people for decorations. They have made several pretty table and room decorations of them and the people have always been much pleased with the effect.

The Spokane Florist Co. had a handsome decoration in yellow chrysanthemums and roses at the beautiful coun-

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

There has been a decided improvement in business during the last ten days and the retail stores present a lively appearance. Many of the clerks have had to be called back from their vacations to help out with the rush of work and it is the consensus of opinion that September will be away above the average, making up for the August dullness.

Chrysanthemums are arriving in quite respectable numbers, good yellows and whites predominating. Gladioli are arriving plentifully and I do not see so many open spikes about the wholesale houses; so it appears that they are selling better. Carnations are better, the reds having lost the thrips marks that have been disfiguring them for so long. Indoor roses are coming in more plentifully and the quality is fair for so early in the season. The cool weather is helping the outdoor varieties and they are arriving in better order than for a long time, though naturally a little short in the stem. Cosmos has made its appearance and is making a nice display in the windows. Valley is always a critical crop. Some days there is more than can be used, but on other days there will be a shortage. For the last week the latter condition has prevailed. Orchids are extremely scarce. There is plenty of outdoor stock of all kinds, centaureas being particularly good.

Various Notes.

A special meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was called for September 14 to pass resolutions and form a new committee to wait on the park commissioners in the matter of the new conservatory at Eastlake park. A lot of vituperative statements were made by various members and a committee was formed to meet the commission, consisting of Charles Winsel, Dr. Houghton, P. D. Barnhart, E. Braunton and A. Vermuellen. H. Turner, W. Brosser and H. R. Richards declined service on the committee. The appeal has been answered, according to the Los Angeles Times, by statements from such well-known commissioners as Lippincott and O. Melveny, as "These people are seeking notoriety" and "There's nothing to it." The notoriety is likely to come to the park commission and it surely will not be of an enviable character. The "conservatory" is a massive steel and brick structure, absolutely unfit for plant culture of any kind. So bad is the thing that a private citizen who lives near the park has threatened to stop the work by a court injunction. This gentleman tells me he will seek expert testimony and, if he is well advised, he will eschew all local historical rhetoric and get down to brass tacks, getting testimony from greenhouse builders who have a reputation behind them. Dr. Houghton, C. Winsel and others have done a public service by calling attention to the great waste of public money, but if the city is not going to be the laughing stock of every plant loving visitor to this park, then someone from a distance should be called on, some firm of national repute. There are none in the locality capable of giving a correct estimate of such work, and possibly our park authorities would be brought to their senses if testimony from such men was introduced.

The G. A. R. shields of the Redondo Floral Co. were a great success during the encampment, many of the old soldiers showing great interest.

John Gordon is back from his vaca-

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE English crop of sweet pea seed also is below the average, due to unfavorable weather.

WITH the arrival of October the new seed warehouse of Condon Bros., Rockford, Ill., will be ready for occupancy.

J. J. FUNK, seedsman at Fremont, Mich., is moving to a temporary store preparatory to putting up a new building 22x120.

WALDO ROHNERT, Gilroy, Cal., will do his fall plowing with a forty-five horsepower traction engine drawing two five-disk plows that go ten inches deep.

ALEXANDER FORBES, for over twenty-five years general manager for Peter Henderson & Co., New York, has resigned, Patrick O'Mara succeeding him.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture recently has issued as Farmers' Bulletin No. 489 "Two Dangerous Imported Plant Diseases," one of them being the wart disease of the potato.

J. S. MICHAEL, Sioux City, Ia., has started excavation for a seed store 25x150, basement and two stories high, of fireproof construction, to cost $15,000. The location is 319 Pearl street.

C. E. KENDEL, secretary of the American Seed Trade Association, has mailed to members the stenographic report of the convention held at Chicago last June. The list of members and other usual features are included.

H. FRANK DARROW advises that Alfred Emerich, of Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, will arrive in New York September 28, and will visit the seed trade as usual throughout the United States and Canada.

IT is stated that Young & Nugent, New York, who are adding seeds and bulbs to their business, will handle these under their firm name and not under a corporate title, as previously reported. Frank M. Duggan, formerly of Bridgeman's, is manager of the department.

ADVICES from Holland are that the bulb growers had to contend with the rainiest August ever known. It has seriously hampered the harvesting of such stock as was still in the ground, has made drying difficult in the warehouses and brought preparations for planting to a complete standstill. Surpluses will be extremely light this year. The supply of tulips is only middling and prices are firm. Hyacinths were well taken up prior to harvest. Crocus bulbs are scarce and have sold at high prices. Narcissi also have advanced and even double Von Sion are short of the demand.

ONE of the Toledo grass seed houses says: "The world's clover seed crop promises to be an average one, although the crop is late. The outlook in the United States is mixed. Threshing of medium has just started in many sections. Mammoth was mostly poor quality. England is decidedly short, but they still have some old seed. Italy and Hungary have produced a good crop. The crops of Bohemia and Russia, however, are still an unknown quantity, while

A BLOW AT BOX SEEDS.

Government Hands Them a Wallop.

The germination of the mail order seeds tested by the Department of Agriculture in the last five years has been 77.5 per cent and the germination of the box seed has been 60.5 per cent. The seeds purchased from different mail order houses were more nearly uniform in quality than the box seeds. The average germination of box seeds put up by one firm for four years was less than one-half that of those put up by another firm. The low vitality of the seeds tested is the best evidence that such seeds should be sold with a guaranty as to the percentage of the germination. —B. T. Galloway, Chief of Bureau.

September 16 the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, delivered a terrific blow to the box seed houses and at the same time declared that all packet seeds should state on the label the percentage of live seeds the packet contains. It was in Circular No. 101, issued by the department.

"During the years 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910 box seeds were purchased and tested for germination, and in 1911 seeds were bought from firms whose principal business is filling mail orders from catalogues," says the circular, written by Edgar Brown. "In these five years 18,571 packets of vegetable seeds were tested for germination. The box seeds were put up by sixty firms and the mail-order seeds were purchased from twenty firms. The average germination of all the packets of box seeds was 60.5 per cent, and the average germination of the mail-order seeds was 77.5 per cent. Of the 12,454 packets of box seeds, 658, or approximately 5 per cent, germinated 10 per cent or less, and 407, or approximately 3.5 per cent, failed to germinate. Of the 6,117 packets of mail-order seeds, 74, or approximately 1.2 per cent, germinated 10 per cent or less, and 51, or approximately 0.85 per cent, failed to germinate. While the vitality of much of this seed was low and in many instances the seed was worthless, under the present custom in the seed trade the purchaser has no information as to the quality of the seeds he is sowing, and when they fail to grow it is impossible to tell whether the failure is due to the use of poor seeds or to some unfavorable condition of soil or climate."

The circular goes on to illustrate by tables the germination tests of the firms concerned, but does not designate them by name. It also gives germination percentages on many varieties of the seeds commonly sold in packets. The circular concludes:

"One firm in its catalogue makes a statement to the effect that, having carefully tested the seeds sold, it intends to sell only seeds of the best quality, but for self-protection against fraud on the part of purchasers all seeds are sold subject to the usual clause by which the dealer disclaims any warranty and all liability and responsibility for damage resulting from failure through the use of his seeds. The average germination of the box seeds put up by this firm and tested for four years was 42.8 per cent, the highest average during that period being 43.6 per cent. It would thus appear that such firms either do not test their seeds accurately or else disregard the results of such tests to the extent of including lots showing unsatisfactory germination in their output of packeted seeds for the box trade.

"There is doubtless an economic reason for the higher average quality of the seeds sold by mail-order houses, as compared with the seeds sent out by many of the houses selling box seeds. It is possible for a new firm or one without reputation to purchase a large quantity of seeds, put them up in showy packets and boxes, and by means of attractive prices dispose of them to local merchants, either on commission or by sale outright. Mail-order houses, on the other hand, are dependent for their trade on proportionately few new customers each year, their business being based largely on the satisfactory quality of their seeds which purchasers have used in previous years.

"The sale of packeted vegetable seeds will not be on a proper basis until each packet is labeled with the percentage of live seed which it contains. LOS ANGELES NOTES.

tion, looking well. He reports a good time and trade has been brisk at the Goldenson store during his absence. Among the best pieces made was an urn of American Beauty roses for the opening of the Unique store and a bride's bouquet of valley and orchids for which $50 was received.

W. H. Eldred is getting settled in his new location at 170 East Colorado street, Pasadena, and finds business good.

Tassano Bros. are handling a nice line of oak leaves and French grass. They have finished planting greens at the Glendale place. The brothers are now dividing up the business, Tony remaining in Los Angeles and Joe looking after the northern interests of the firm.

Business at the Los Angeles Flower Market has been exceptionally good and the number of orders ahead shows that the balance of the month will be brisk. Quite a record, in fact, has been made for September. The gladioli are exceptionally good here, about 2,000 a day being handled.

S. Murata is showing elegant red carnations.

F. Lichtenberg has bought a new E. M. F. automobile.

market, the soil and location being early.

The quality of the Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations coming from the Hollywood ranch of the H. N. Gage Co. is elegant.

J. W. Wolters reports big business. A pall and other work for the De Baker funeral kept all hands busy the night of September 17. Lily of the valley and white roses were the flowers used.

Hubert Morton will open a retail store at Long Beach on or about November 1, in the new building now going up.

H. N. Lowe, of Long Beach, has moved from 106 Pine avenue to Fourth and Pine.

Walter Armacost, of Ocean Park, has opened a store at Venice, at Windward and Trolley avenues. He will also open a temporary place at Marine avenue, Ocean Park, while the rebuilding is going on and when finished will go back to his old location. He has a good stock of the new Asparagus Hatcheri at Sawtelle.

Staiger & Mundwiler are busy shipping palms.

Stock looks fine at the Superior Nursery. Mr. Gutting has been getting a good time fishing and hunting during his vacation.

Mr. Norris, principal of Norris & Son, did not go to Europe after all, having the misfortune to break his arm. His son went instead. They are building a lath house covering three acres at the new place near Montebello and will build greenhouses later. Large quantities of Dutch and Japanese stock are coming in and Mr. Norris looks forward to a big season's business.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE Cloverland Seed & Nursery Co., capital $25,000, is being organized at Norway, Mich.

THE Texas Nursery Co., Pottsboro, Texas, is making the first shipment of apples in carload lots that ever have gone north from that station. The fruit is reported as of nice size and good quality.

THE will of Charles L. Yates, treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen, Rochester, who died September 4, left an estate of $25,000, all personal property, to his widow, Ellen B. Yates.

SADDLER BROS., Bloomington, Ill., say that ordinarily the fall shipments are much heavier than the spring pack, with prospects of a still further increase this season. Shipping will begin early in October.

H. N. FORDHAM, formerly a teacher in the manual training department of Chicago schools, has purchased the Forest Nursery, on Main street, El Cajon, Cal., from C. C. McCutcheon, a ranch owner of the valley.

AT its recent meeting at Marlin the Texas Nurserymen's Association elected as president O. K. Phillips, to succeed J. R. Mayhew, and as secretary and treasurer J. M. Ramsey, of Austin, to succeed John S. Kerr.

W. N. ADAIR has started suit against his partner, Mr. Swann, asking for a dissolution of the Havelock Nurseries, Havelock, Neb. Mr. Adair contends that his partner is not devoting his time to the business of the partnership.

THE Chase Nursery Co., Huntsville, Ala., recently subsoiled ten acres of land by the use of dynamite. An expert was brought south for the work and the affair made quite a function, visitors being present from miles around.

JAMES VALLANCE, superintendent of the Haywards nursery of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, says that this has been an off year for California nurserymen through not having more than half the usual rain, but adds that Alameda county is specially favored by having a soil retentive of moisture, so that the stock there is looking well. He reports that apricots and French prunes are in great demand and that the prospects look good for fall trade.

QUARANTINE THE WHITE PINE.

As reported briefly in last week's issue of The Review, following a hearing before the newly organized horticultural board on the subject of white pine blister rust, the Department of Agriculture issued a proclamation September 16, prohibiting the importation of white pine from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy. The species and the horticultural varieties which will be prohibited entrance into the United States include white pine, Webster white pine, sugar pine and stone or Cembrian pine. The department holds that the blister rust is a fungous disease and would be a most undesirable importation into the United States. If brought here, as it is liable to be, on imported nursery stock, it would probably cause enormous damage to coniferous forests.

Preliminary to making this proclamation, the board in charge of the new plant quarantine law held a hearing, at which appeared William Pitkin, of Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the committee on legislation of the American Association of Nurserymen; W. R. Rolker, representing the importing firm of A. Rolker & Sons and the French exporting house of Levavasseur & Sons, James McHutchison and C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York city.

While no serious objection was made to the theory of the quarantine, the nurserymen thought that it should not be imposed against those sections abroad where the blister rust is unknown. It was said a number of nurseries in France are free of the disease. Dr. Metcalf, the pathologist for the department, explained that the number of nurseries abroad infested with the blister rust is on the increase. Furthermore, he said, if certain nurseries were permitted to send trees to the United States they could easily take trees from their neighbors infested with the disease and export them. A system of inspection of the foreign nurseries he thought would be impossible and the only way in which to afford protection would be to absolutely prohibit the importation.

The committee read a letter from the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., which said there was no objection to the quarantine of the young trees, but it was believed that the older trees and particular varieties of white pine might be permitted to come in. Most of the grades of white pine, the letter said, can be cultivated in this country. Another letter, from the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, declared trees should be prohibited importation. It said white pine can be cultivated in this country and nurserymen will not be subjected to any great hardship. This letter further stated that one advantage of getting white pine from abroad is that the foreign trees are cheaper than the domestic.

T. B. Symons, of Maryland, chairman of the joint committee of entomologists and horticultural inspectors, said that he approved the quarantine.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business shows a slight betterment since last week, the last few days bringing the total for the period considerably above that for several weeks previously. This is the general report throughout this section. The growers are busily engaged in completing their benching, and in nearly every instance their stock is looking good. The early cuts of chrysanthemums are coming in and the first violets made their appearance September 19. These are of good color, but short of stem and rather soft. They will come better in a short time, however. Carnations and roses are in good quantity and promise well.

Various Notes.

Fifteen new names were added to the membership list of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, including several of the commercial florists, at the monthly meeting held September 18. John K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, addressed the meeting on "Italian Gardens," illustrated by stereopticon slides.

The first meeting after the summer vacation of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held September 23. The expense of delivery of trade products by automobile, as compared with horse-drawn vehicles, was a subject of especial interest. Several dealers have purchased delivery motors, and claim that they are preferable at the increased cost.

Alexander T. Fraser, of Newport, will be one of the delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners, to be held at Newark, N. J., November 19.

The autumn exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society was held in that city September 14 to 16. The show was one of the best held by the society in several years. The competition was keen in several of the classes, and the judges had their work cut out for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor returned September 23 from Narragansett Pier, where they spent the summer.

Fred C. Covill, manager of the flower department of Shepard Co., was in New York and Philadelphia last week purchasing ferns, palms, etc. On his return he resigned his position, to succeed L. Engel in charge of the flower department of L. Dimond & Sons, Inc. Mr. Engel is to devote his entire time to the Rosery.

E. Carl had a large wedding decoration last week.

John W. Gibson, of Newport, is still confined to his house by illness.

Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, was a visitor in this city last week.

There was a large display of flowers at the funeral of former Chief of Police Patrick Egan, of this city, September 21. The work was well distributed among the florists. W. H. M.

NEW ORLEANS.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting September 19, at Kolb's German Tavern. Hermann Doescher presided and Paul Abele acted as secretary in the absence of C. R. Panter. The attendance was fair and some interesting topics were discussed. J. A. Newsham, a visitor at the Chicago convention, spoke of the beautiful exhibits and instructive sessions. He urged the members to attend the yearly conventions of the S. A. F., referring to the manifold benefits derived therefrom. In his closing remarks he assured those present that the members of the national body would be pleased to come here whenever invited. They all like the interesting, thriving Crescent City and the members of this society. Great applause greeted the speaker. To make the meetings as interesting and beneficial as possible, several members volunteered to deliver lectures and bring the products of their skill for general discussion. The present standing of the chrysanthemums furnished a lively talk, and mostly optimistic views in regard to the outcome of the crop for November 1 were expressed. Omer H. Callonges was elected a member of the society.

J. A. Newsham exhibited Dendrobium Phalænopsis with graceful flower spikes of various colors, admired by everyone.

DOVER, N. H.

C. L. Howe, the Garrison Hill florist, is putting up a new violet house.

C. A. Davis, on Washington street, is building a new rose house.

H. E. Meader, gladiolus specialist, reports a most successful season. His seedlings this year were the finest he has yet grown, one, a dark crimson, being especially good, also a creamy pink measuring six inches across the blooms and six flowers open at once. He visited Cedar Acres, recently, B. Hammond Tracy's bulb farm, where business was found to be rushing and the stock looking fine.

M.

Gardiner, Mass.—Mrs. Addie I. Colburn has bought the greenhouse of M. A. Creed, and will have it removed and re-erected in connection with her other greenhouses at Graham and Richmond streets.

DREER'S SPECIAL OFFER OF

The New French Hydrangeas

THE GREAT EASTER NOVELTY OF THE YEAR

Avalanche. A splendid large white, which has made a reputation for itself during the past two seasons, an easy variety to force early, and remarkably free-flowering.

2¼-inch pots, $0.75 per doz.; $ 5.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Botaniste Peltereau. Enormous flowers of a pretty mauve rose.

2¼-inch pots, $0.75 per doz.; $ 5.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers, rosy amber turning to bright pink; has proven a special favorite in the New York market this season.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz; $10.00 per 100

Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color; a splendid novelty particularly for late flowering, it is not suited for forcing, but for Decoration Day and later flowering it is very valuable.

2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Fraicheur. Very large, regularly shaped flowers, white, delicately suffused with rose, very free flowering.

2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite during the past two years; one of the best.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous. One of the most successful Hydrangea growers in the U. S. considers this as one of the very best varieties yet introduced.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ornament. Large pretty mauve-pink flowers, very free flowering.

2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose tint; a very promising sort.

2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine, quite distinct from all others, an easy variety to force and a sort that we believe will be one of the winners.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 " 40.00 "

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections, flowers produced in immense large heads; this variety is on the style of the La Lorraine, but is an earlier bloomer.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. E. Mouillere. This has been the favorite white variety in the New York market this year, very free flowering, of good size and form. Awarded silver medal at the National Flower Show at Boston last year. A great favorite with English growers, one London grower known to us handling over 30,000 of this variety alone.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Described by the introducer as a delicate flesh rose-color, of a pleasing shade. In our soil it has been the most beautiful deep blue we have seen, and which has been admired by everyone; a vigorous grower, very free and early; the individual flowers as well as the trusses being of immense size. One of the easiest to force early.

5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mme. Raymond. Large trusses of perfectly round flowers of a transparent white, passing to a tender rose. Entirely distinct and in competition with all the other white varieties was awarded a certificate at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a decided and fine acquisition.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "

Hydrangea Mlle. de Tremault.

Mlle. de Tremault. As the result of our own trials we are convinced that this variety, which is yet but little known, is the best very large flowered white yet introduced. As free flowering as any, of splendid erect habit and beautiful foliage, it will produce flower heads as large as the old popular Otaksa. We strongly recommend it.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white, flowers large and freely produced; a grand variety for a 5- or 6-inch pot plant. From our own observation we are inclined to consider this the best of all the whites and we recommend it for careful trial.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Very large panicles of milky white, irregularly dentated flowers. One of the best growers says that this should have been awarded the Silver Medal given to Mme. Emile Mouillere last year as the best white.

2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear flesh-rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties, color clean and clear, every one should try this.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 6.00 "

Mons. G. Renault. Very large flowers of a bright rose with carmine reflex. A most promising variety, very free and easily forced.

2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 "

HENRY A. DREER, Inc., 714 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Saturday, September 21, saw a whirlwind finish to a busy week. Several funerals called for large quantities of stock and the market was practically cleaned out by noon. Roses are scarce but are increasing in supply day by day. The same might be said of carnations. Asters, generally in heavy supply at this date, are about gone. Some good dahlias are coming in. Mums are arriving in limited quantities, but they are not yet a factor in the market. Valley was extremely scarce last week. Green goods are in fair supply and meet with a good call. Calla lilies are in. They still are undersized, but sell well. Giganteums, cold storage stock, are fine for this date.

Club Meeting.

The annual election of officers of the Cleveland Florists' Club was held September 23, with the following results:

President—Adam Graham.

First Vice-President—John Blechschmidt.

Second Vice-President—A. L. Brown.

Secretary—Frank A. Friedley.

Treasurer—Chas. E. Russell.

Directors, appointed by President Graham—H. P. Knoble, John Kirchner, Gordon Gray, H. A. Hart, R. Hoffman.

Various Notes.

Preparations for the big flower show, to be held in Gray's armory November 14 to 16, go merrily on. The premium list is out and the secretary reports entries are already coming in, which will be a big help in making the show a success, as early entries will help the committee to tell how many entries to prepare for. Do not wait until the last minute to enter. Do it now.

Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich., accompanied by Mrs. Smith, paid the growers a visit last week. Mr. Smith says the reports coming in on Chrysolora, the new early yellow mum sent out by his firm last year, are encouraging. It seems to be doing well in all sections of the country and promises to become the best early yellow. Mr. Smith says the date of Cleveland's flower show is opportune, as it is the only show in the middle west at that date, St. Paul preceding it by several days. He thinks this should give us an unusually large entry list of mums.

Visitors: W. P. Craig, of Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

THIS

Album of Designs

(A BOOK EVERY RETAILER NEEDS)

was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Commencement Flowers, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With this Album you can show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

No restrictions on its sale.

508 Dearborn St. (Caxton Bldg.), CHICAGO, ILL.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds has been scarce for the last week. Funeral work has been brisk, and there have not been nearly enough flowers to meet the demand, so quite a lot of work had to be made up of galax leaves.

The mum plants are fine this year, and are budding nicely. We soon shall have them to cut, which will relieve the shortage of flowers now prevailing.

Various Notes.

Charles Humfeld and wife, of Clay Center, Kan., passed through this city last week on their way to Muncie, Ind., to visit Mr. Humfeld's brothers. They will return by way of Chicago and visit the large growers there.

Lewis Walmsley, a young florist, is building a greenhouse at 917 Tracy avenue for the purpose of growing bedding plants for next season.

L. Orear is installing a large hot water boiler to keep up a better heat this winter. His chrysanthemums are fine this fall and trade has been good.

W. H. Sawvel reports that his carnation plants are the best he has ever grown, some plants having as many as twenty-five shoots. He is planting almost his entire range of houses to carnations and already is cutting the new crop. The new dam he has built across the creek is furnishing an abundance of water.

W. H. Humfeld is recovering from a severe attack of rheumatism, from which he has been suffering for over a month.

Our Introduction for 1913

The New Clear Scarlet Bedding Geranium

"HELEN MICHELL"

ITS MERITS:

1. The finest Scarlet Geranium ever introduced.
2. The only scarlet variety which blooms all summer.
3. The largest truss and single bloom of any.
4. Is semi-double, compact and medium dwarf.
5. Has most blooms to a single plant.
6. The best propagator of all.
7. Stands all kinds of weather.
8. Blooms early and continuously.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When In Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

SIOUX CITY, IA.

Fair Flower Show.

We had a flower show during fair week, September 16 to 21. A good display of cut flowers, plants and designs was shown, by professional florists only, and were judged by Mr. Eubank, of the firm of Eubank & Nordstrom, and Dr. Hanchette, who is a gentleman well educated on cut flowers and floral emblems. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Funeral designs—Rocklin & Lehman, first; J. C. Rennison Co., second.

Vase roses—Rocklin & Lehman, first; J. C. Rennison Co., second.

Vase asters—J. C. Rennison Co., first; Rocklin & Lehman, second.

Vase carnations—J. C. Rennison Co., first; Rocklin & Lehman, second.

The Fair Association claims that it was the best flower show ever held in Sioux City.

Various Notes.

J. H. Chilson, who for a number of years has been connected with the J. C. Rennison Co., will have charge, after October, of the firm of Rocklin & Lehman. This firm is opening a branch store in the beautiful new Martin Hotel building, which is situated in the heart of the city and is a credit to this section of the country.

We are having cool nights, which makes stock a little scarce, but the demand seems bigger than ever. The outdoor stock, such as dahlias and asters, is coming to an end, but carnations are commencing to come in nicely.

F. J. Farney, with Rice & Co., Philadelphia, spent Sunday with us and reported that everything looked good on the road.

Dallas, Tex.—The Richmond Hill Floral Co., incorporated by A. Miller, A. M. Vaughan and J. W. Crotty, has acquired eighteen acres of land just west of the city and has let the contract for five greenhouses, each 27x200 feet, to be completed within sixty days.

OUR MOTTO: WE BELIEVE.

We believe in American business methods; we believe and have faith in our customers; we believe that truth is an asset and that our word is as good as our bond; we believe that the best is none too good for our customers.

THIS ENDS OUR LIABILITY IN SELLING ONLY THE BEST.

Who? Godfrey Aschmann, the Araucaria King of Philadelphia. He and his Araucarias are more popular than pennies are with school children. No arguments needed to sell his goods; 25 years' experience in importing and shipping the Araucaria (his specialty) makes him the Araucaria King of all America. Now is the time to stock up your houses.

WHEN YOU BUY, IT PAYS TO BUY GOOD STUFF

☛Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, September 14, 1912.

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

See what one of our customers says, who bought $44.45 worth, Sept. 3, 1912:

Dear Sir: BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1912.

The Market.

The weather has been exceptionally fine, continuing so through Fair week. Now we are having more or less rain and cloudy weather. Business is brightening up considerably. With openings, calling for plant decorations, and with weddings, receptions and funerals, last week was a busy one.

Gladioli are about over. They have sold well and are becoming more popular than ever as a summer flower. They help in decorating the store windows beautifully, yet cheaply. Roses are plentiful. Carnations are beginning to come in slowly, but are short-stemmed. Chrysanthemums are appearing in the store windows. It will not be long before the queen of autumn will be in full swing. Asters are practically over and what are left are of extremely poor quality.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club on Thursday, September 19, had only a light attendance; some have to go to market early, some were out of town and the rest attended. It was deemed best to postpone the meeting until the first Thursday night in October, when it will be held in Henry Smith's store.

Exhibits at the Fair.

The fair had good weather the entire week and was a financial success, with the exhibits better and more extensive than ever. In the floral department the competition was keen. Henry Smith, the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., Eli Cross and H. Danhof were the exhibitors. W. L. Cukerski, although he entered for everything, was too busy to show up. In plants the principal premiums were as follows:

General collection of hothouse and greenhouse plants—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Best twenty-five palms—Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

Collection of ferns—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Collection of crotons—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Rex begonias—H. Danhof, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

The remainder of the plant premiums were distributed about in the same relative proportion as the foregoing.

In cut flowers the struggle was for the floral design. There were four entries. Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. received first; Henry Smith, second; Eli Cross, third.

Fancy basket—Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second; Eli Cross, third.

The awards for roses went to Henry Smith, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., and Eli Cross, in the order named; in carnations, the same awards.

Gladioli—H. Danhof, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second; Henry Smith, third.

The amateurs made a good showing, as usual, except in the dahlias. Usually that display is a distinct and attractive feature of the exhibit, but this year the dahlias were of poor quality, on account of a heavy rain on the night previous to cutting them. They were bedraggled and of medium quality only.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. These plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early, for which reason I quote the following low prices: Boston for 6-in., 20c. Whitmani compacta for 5 and 6-in., 25c. Cash or reference. See my classified carnation adv. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. One of many reports: "I had 3000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February and from then on were a sight; immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. E. Peckham, Norwich, Conn. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

Greenhouse Heating.

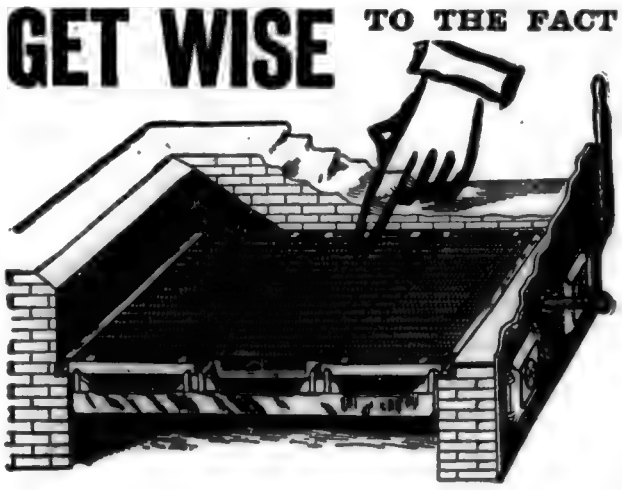
IF your coal bins are not filled, note that the anticipated car shortage rapidly is becoming a reality. The heedless are almost certain to find themselves in trouble when the real cold weather comes.

THE coal market is strong—not much change from previous reports. The warm weather early in September delayed the rush that the coal trade is expecting. The smokeless coals are moving more rapidly now that the temperature is lower and those who are not delivering on contracts are not anxious to sell, believing that a good frost will enable them to get even better prices than the excellent prices now prevailing.

HOUSE AND HOTBEDS.

I am building a greenhouse 12x60 feet, eight feet to the ridge, walls four feet high, of concrete blocks. It runs north and south, with the boiler house at the north end of the greenhouse. I would like to put in hot water heat. Please instruct me how to pipe and what kind of boiler I must have to get a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. We seldom have 5 degrees below zero in this part of Ohio. Can the boiler stand level with the greenhouse floor, or must it be set a foot or two lower than the floor? I also wish to heat with the same boiler my hotbeds, which run along the east side of my greenhouse and are 6x60 feet, two and one-half feet deep. How and where shall I lay the pipes? I only intended to use the hotbeds in the spring. L. S.

A temperature of 60 degrees can be obtained in a greenhouse 12x60 feet by running a 2½-inch flow pipe one foot below the ridge to the farther end of the house, where it should be connected with eight 2-inch returns, four on each wall of the house. Arranged in this way and with a slight fall in the flow pipe, it would be possible to locate the boiler at the level of the floor if this would give the returns a slight fall. It would be better, however, if the boiler could be depressed so that the top would be lower than the returns.



For the hotbed run a 2-inch flow along the back, near the top of the by installing The Martin Rocking Grate. Costs a little more than ordinary grates, but the coal burns—it doesn't go into the ashpit.

We refer to Peter Reinberg, Emil Buettner, Bassett & Washburn, Wietor Bros., Adam Zender, Sinner Bros., Albert Dickinson Seed Co., and many others. They will tell you to order the Martin Rocking Grate for the new boilers to be put in this season. Write for catalogue and prices.

TRAVIS GREENHOUSE ROCKER GRATES

We make grates only and can give you Rocker Grate service. Note the mash fingers, and all air spaces opened evenly. We furnish them for sectional, firebox, marine and bricked-in boilers. Are strictly self-contained and can be installed by the fireman without changing the furnace in any way. Do not neglect your grates. Their condition is just as important as that of the boiler they are under. Our grates will save you any amount of trouble, valuable time and coal. We guarantee you will have complete control of draft. Give size of furnace and we will quote you prices.

frame, and two 2-inch returns along the other side. This should give 50 degrees during the spring months. To heat both greenhouse and hotbed the boiler should be rated for 750 square feet of radiation.

VARIOUS FUELS.

In The Review for February 15, I saw a description of how to make and set an oil burner. I am thinking of trying one this winter. Will any one with experience in that line be kind enough to tell me if he thinks it will be profitable? I have a tubular boiler 4x16½ feet, with forty 3½-inch flues. I have been burning hard wood slabs, and last winter my wood bill was just $1 per day through the season. I will have to pay 8 cents a gallon for crude oil f. o. b. Chicago, and my location is the northeastern part of Michigan. My house contains 2,000 feet of glass. I have been trying soft coal, but this will cost me thirty-five to fifty per cent more than slabs. I will be thankful for any information on the subject.

J. H. C.

The price paid for hard wood slabs is not given, but it is hardly likely that in northern Michigan they will cost as much as crude oil at the price named, and the freight on the oil from Chicago will fully equal the cost of the labor of firing with the slabs.

With careful attention to the firing, the cost of soft coal as fuel should not be more than $1 per day for 2,000 square feet of glass in a boiler of the proper size, but the one in use is large enough for 20,000 feet of glass and hence is not economical of fuel.

Where There Is Condensation

—there is need for a Morehead Steam Trap. Condensation in steam lines is akin to matter out of place—means wasted energy.

Crude oil will not be found an economical fuel except where the quantity to be used is sufficient to warrant shipping it in tank cars.

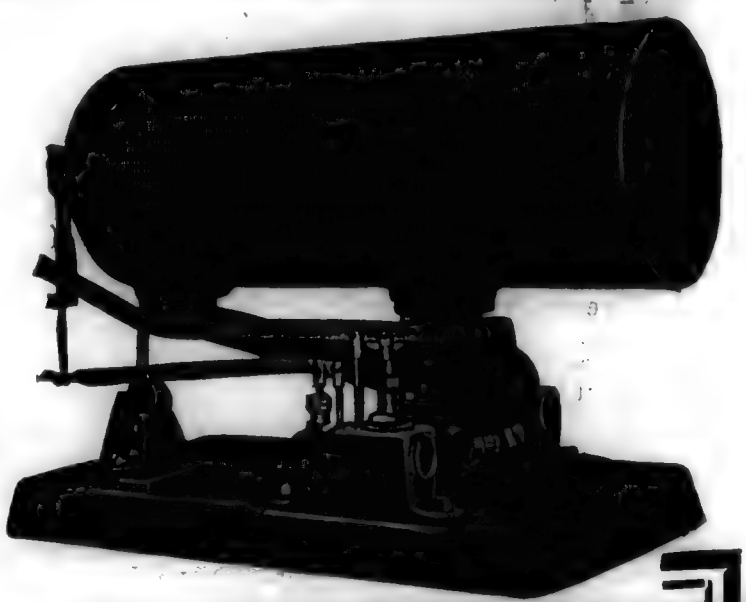
FEEDING THE COILS.

I have had trouble with lack of circulation in the pipes and laid the trouble to lack of depth in the boiler pit. The boiler has now been lowered so that it is considerably lower than the level of the greenhouse. At present the coils, five pipes in each, are fed from the top of the header. Before the top of the boiler was on a level with the top pipe in the coil. Will it be necessary to change the headers, as a plumber advised us, and feed from the bottom of the header? E. C. S.

The data given is hardly complete enough to warrant a definite answer. If the coils are connected directly to the boiler, it would make little difference, and bottom connection could be used, but if the flow pipe is carried at a slight fall to the farther end of the house, as would be preferred, the connection should be at the top of the coils. With this arrangement there is less reason for keeping the boiler below the returns, than when the coils are closely connected with the boiler.

RADIATION FOR FOUR HOUSES.

We have a range of four houses running east and west. The two south houses are 28½x100, then comes one 14x100, and one 15x100, with a lean-to on the north side 5x100. The houses are all six feet to the eaves or gutters, with the outside wall of the lean-to four feet ten inches high. The two wide houses are fourteen feet to the ridge, the others eleven feet, all connected. We figure it as 10,300 feet of glass. The potting shed is on the west end. Will you please tell us how many feet of radiation we need for steam or hot water, to maintain 60 degrees in 10 degrees below zero weather? H. F. C.



Whether the walls contain any glass is not indicated. For the two houses 28½x100 feet, if to be heated with hot water, use five 2½-inch flow pipes and thirteen 2-inch returns, with an additional return for each two feet of glass in the south wall. With steam one 2½-inch flow and eleven 1¼-inch returns will be needed.

To heat the other houses, which are respectively fourteen and fifteen feet in width, use three 2½-inch flows for hot water, with six 2-inch returns, or two flows and eight returns could be

BUILT FOR BEGINNERS

Wilks Boilers are ideal for the man who owns a small greenhouse, who does his own firing and needs a boiler that can be relied on at all times.

Wilks Boilers are self-feeding. Fill the magazine with fuel in the evening and an even, continuous fire will be maintained until morning without any attention.

Wilks Self-feeding Hot Water Boilers are built entirely of steel. Read what this user says about their lasting qualities:

R. D. No. 7, Rockford, Ill., Jan. 1, 1910.

S. Wilks Mfg. Co.:

We are using one of your 20x36 Wilks Heaters in a 20x50-foot greenhouse, and it is giving excellent satisfaction. Has been in constant use since 1883 and seems to be as good as new. Yours truly,

D. E. Burdick.

Wilks Boilers will heat as much as 3000 sq. ft. of glass to 65° in zero weather. Write for Catalogue used. With steam heat one 2-inch flow and six 1¼-inch returns would answer.

The lean-to would require one 2½-inch flow and three 2-inch returns for hot water, or one 1¼-inch flow and two 1¼-inch returns for steam.

HEATING A HOTBED.

I would like to get some information in regard to the construction of a pipe-heated hotbed for propagating sweet potato plants in Louisiana. Would you recommend laying the pipe in direct contact with the soil about twelve or fourteen inches below the surface, or do you think it best to build a flooring under the bed and lay the pipes in an excavation under the floor? It occurs to me that laying the pipes in direct contact with the soil, as mentioned above, is best if a sufficient and uniform heat can be maintained. J. L. D.

The letter does not say whether hot air, hot water or steam is to be used for heating the hotbeds, but so far as running the pipes is concerned, it would be best to sink them in the soil about twelve inches. This will give better results than to have them in an excavation. For a 6-foot frame use two 1¼-inch steam pipes, three 2-inch hot water pipes, or two 5-inch hot air pipes.

PIPING A LETTUCE HOUSE.

Please advise how to pipe our new house, 18x100, for lettuce where the temperature falls to 20 degrees below zero, using 2-inch pipe. The house is protected on the east side by a carnation house, connected. How many returns to each 2-inch flow? The new house will have the benches arranged as follows: On the east side one raised bench thirty inches wide; then a walk twenty inches wide; then another solid bed seven feet wide; then a walk thirty inches wide and then a solid bed four feet wide. The partition between the carnation house and the new house has three feet of glass. The other side has two feet of glass. This is a Moninger ¾-span house about twelve feet to the ridge, with one purlin about the center of bars, heated by a Kroeschell No. 3 boiler. W. F. C.

For the growing of heading varieties of lettuce it will answer if one 2½-inch flow and three 2-inch returns are used on each side of the house. The flows can be on the plates, and the returns can be under the bench on one side,

Fires Once Every Four to Six Hours In Coldest Weather

I am fully satisfied with your No. 2 Kroeschell boiler. I have had different kinds of saddle and tubular boilers, but none of them give such satisfaction as yours. I have 7000 sq. ft. of glass, and your boiler would take care of 8000 sq. ft. of glass. I maintain 50° temperature and fire every four to six hours in cold weather; otherwise from six to eight hours.

and on the wall on the other. This piping would also answer for the curled varieties, such as Grand Rapids, except in the coldest weather, when a more rapid growth could be secured by running a 2½-inch flow under the ridge and a 2-inch return on each side of the wide bed. If 2-inch flows are used, there should be three, with eight returns, under all conditions.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.

The largest load of hardy cut ferns ever drawn into North Adams arrived the other afternoon from Readsboro, Vt. The team was owned and driven by G. J. Walker, of Savoy Center. Mr. Walker is one of the eastern fern dealers who ships to cold storage every fall and holds the ferns for the winter trade. The load contained 588,000 ferns and the gross weight was 9,625 pounds. The ferns were picked in the woods about Readsboro. They were sent to the Pittsfield cold storage and completely filled one freight car.

The Market.

The weather is so much cooler that firing has been necessary for roses. Business is excellent and, with a number of weddings for October, indications are for a busy season. Mums are here and for the next few weeks will be in great demand. Roses and carnations are improving. Asters are still of fair quality.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel has everything in fine shape. His roses are making excellent growth and he will soon be cutting heavily from his Killarneys. The American Beauties are giving him stems of good length and with good flowers. He has installed a 100 horse-power Brownell boiler and has it equipped with a steam trap and a reducing valve, to regulate the pressure of steam in the houses. During the test everything worked well and the steam went through the pipes in a hurry.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having a big trade. They have been cutting heavily of roses and have use for all of them. The carnations are getting a good start. The mums are in good health and give promise of good flowers. The two new houses are about finished and will be planted to carnations.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. recently had a funeral at Harrisburg, Ill., which was about the largest they ever had. It netted them about $800. They had enough of their own flowers and greens for the work, with the exception of about $10 worth which they purchased. Their roses and carnations have been producing lots of flowers. The My Maryland has been doing extra well.

Ben Kramer is getting a good share of the trade, including some large orders.

Austin Wallace is building a house 15 x 100, which he intends to plant to lettuce. His large house will be mostly in carnations.

Miss Nellie Goodge has been improving lately, but is not able to be out.

Karl Zeidler seems to have plenty to do all along. Sundays are always good days for him. He sells large numbers of bouquets to people going to Locust Hill cemetery. He will soon have his heating plant in readiness to start firing.

E. L. Fenton has been soliciting premiums from the florists for the poultry show, and they all are willing to donate something towards the success of the show. Mr. Fenton expects to win a few prizes with his White Wyandottes again this year. E. L. F.

Watch Me Slice This Burnham

JUST slip the bar in this clinker door opening, and in a jiffy I will lift up the fire, dislodge the clinkers, and then by giving it a shake or two the fire will be cherry red before you know it.

It's the cherry-red fire that has the most heat in it, because combustion is then more nearly perfect—no unburned blue gases going up chimney.

When using that slicer, did you see how I could swing it from side to side and had plenty of room to work it up and down? Take it from me—a clinker door that's too small is worse than none at all.

Made in 22 sizes, for either hot water or steam. Will heat from 1,042 to 11,420 lineal feet of 2-inch pipe.

All the Burnham doors are big enough and room to spare. In fact, there's not a single thing that's skimped about the Burnham. Even the ratings are mighty liberal.

If the catalogue says it will heat so many feet of pipe, it will do it. If it don't, Lord & Burnham will show you how to make it do it or send your money back.

If you are like the rest of our customers right now, you are in a hurry, so better wire your order, and the boiler will be shipped same day the order is received.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week and this are a period of transition from one season to another. Practically the last outdoor gladioli have been seen. Asters, too, are about done for. We will have them for the ensuing fortnight, but they will not be nearly so important a factor as they were only a short time ago. The chrysanthemums, cosmos, dahlias and early carnations are just beginning to come in and are thus overlapping the summer blooms. All stock is selling well and, except for a lull in the strength of the demand at times, is bringing top prices. The shipping business is good.

Roses are in a strong, steady supply and as a whole are cleaning up quickly. Now and then some must be held over a day, but they eventually move. Beauties are pretty thoroughly off crop. Lilies are selling well, but there are not nearly enough of them to supply the demand. The lily growers wanted to avoid the strong competition of chrysanthemums, but the latter did not come in quite as soon as they had anticipated. Cosmos and dahlias sell well. Carnations are now offered in a fair variety and find fairly good sale. The green goods market is steady.

Various Notes.

C. J. Ohmer, of West Palm Beach, Fla., is shipping elegant plumosus to this market.

C. E. Critchell is receiving heavy shipments of cut ferns for storage. He will handle more of these goods this year than he has ever handled in any single year heretofore.

W. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., are again shipping Killarney and White Killarney to L. H. Kyrk equal to the high quality of last season.

Michael Baer, the father of Julius Baer, has passed away at the age of 80 years. The Grim Reaper also claimed W. R. Miller, of Covington, September 23.

Albert McCullough, of the J. M. McCullough Sons Co., is cutting excellent valley at his conservatories.

Peter Weiland was down from New Castle last week, for a day, to look over the local end of the business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson took an auto jaunt to Dayton September 22.

Max Rudolph had the large fall opening decoration at the Alms & Doepke stores.

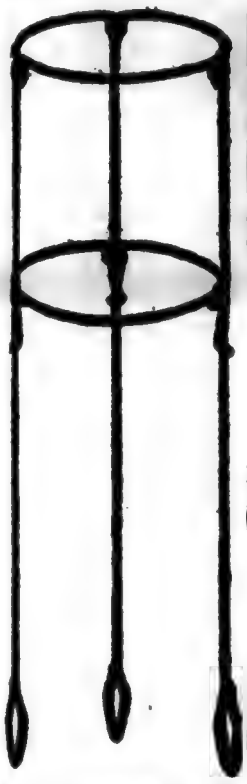
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

LANCASTER, PA.

At the last meeting of the Lancaster Florists' Club there was a fine display of mums from Rudolf Nagel and some choice carnations from Amos Rohrer. The president, A. M. Herr, gave a short talk on the S. A. F. convention. He urged the members of this club to support the S. A. F., saying that it takes money these days to accomplish anything and that this trade will never take its proper place in the world until we have permanent headquarters, preferably in Washington, with our secretary always there and ready for business, with power to employ legal or other talent whenever it is to the best interests of the trade. Quite a bit of enthusiasm was created and it is likely there will be a good representation at the National Flower Show next spring, from this club.

In a general discussion for the betterment of the club it was decided to have the monthly notices open to any announcements of wanting to buy or wanting to sell stock of any kind in a local way only. A committee was appointed for the purpose of arranging visiting tours among the various growers during the season, and the program committee presented a program up to and including the January meeting.

A. M. H.

LAWRENCE, KAN.

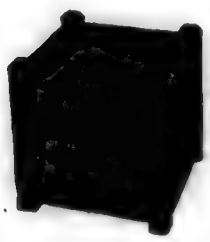
George Ecke has completed an addition to his store building, increasing it to about twice its size, and will shortly install a new ice-box.

A. Whitcomb & Son have just finished installing a new boiler, which Mr. Whitcomb purchased while at the Chicago convention.

The Kline Floral Co. has opened a store downtown, to run in connection with the greenhouse.

The Buch Floral Co. is prepared for a good trade in ferns and potted plants, which are looking exceptionally well at present, and their mums are coming along nicely.

Mrs. Brooks, of the Oread Greenhouse, has had a heavy trade in funeral work this summer and, with the opening of the university, will come in for her share of the cut flower business.



Mr. Hicks has finished overhauling his greenhouse, which was damaged by a heavy wind storm, and is now in shape to take care of his trade as usual.

St. Helen, Mich.—Louis Hayet, who has been head gardener for the St. Helen Development Co., is building a greenhouse with the intention of starting in business for himself.

5-inch pots, ready September 15.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas
.....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

$2.50 per dozen; $15 per 100; $125 per 1000

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE CLERKS' PROBLEMS.

Some people come to buy and some come to look.

Some come to look when they think they come to buy, and some come to buy when they think they come to look.

Some people like to buy flowers themselves, and some people like to have flowers sold to them.

Some desire immediate attention and go away if they don't get it, and some prefer no attention and go away if they do get it.

Some will leave the store disappointed because the salesman did not show them enough flowers, and others will go away disappointed because they were not allowed to look over the stock unattended.

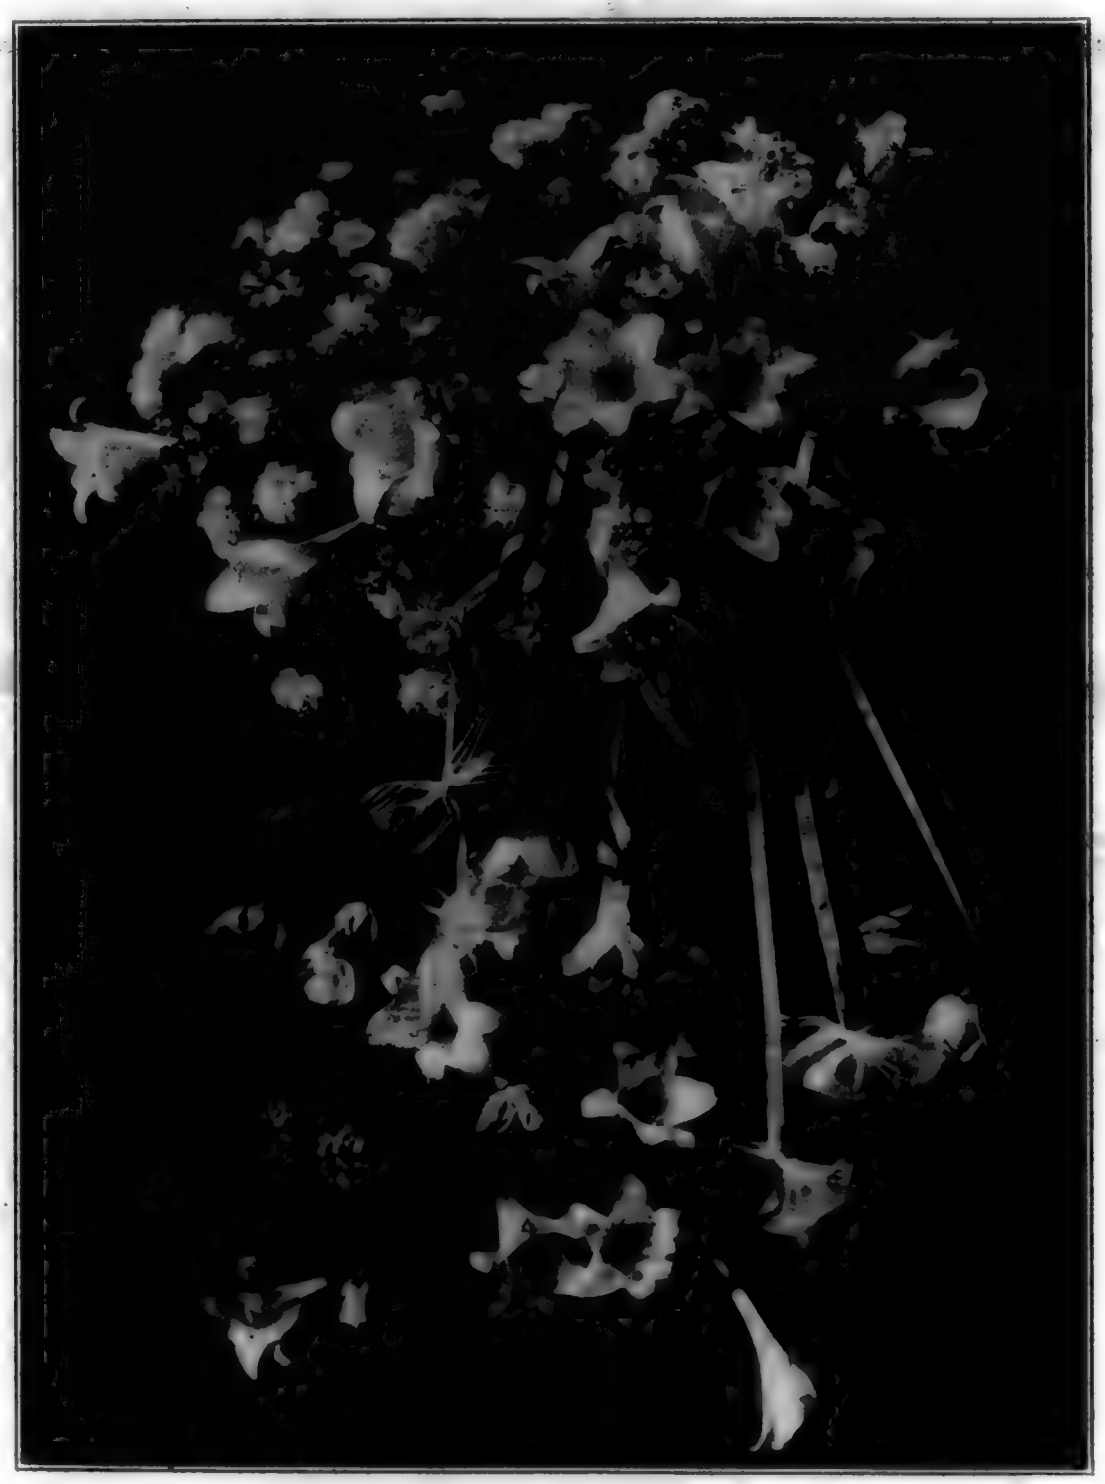
Verily, verily, retailing is not one round of pleasure, and sizing up the customer is some guesswork.

SHOWERED WREATHS.

In the discussion which has been going on with regard to the appropriateness of certain forms of designs for various uses, it has been suggested that it would be better not to use for funerals the styles of arrangement employed for other purposes. Some commenters have suggested that the association of certain flowers with funerals has been disadvantageous to those flowers, and they have expressed the fear that employing styles of designing that are used for social affairs will operate against their popularity if seen too much at funerals. However, many who have used shower effects on funeral designs have found them increasingly popular. The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of a showered wreath sent by Mrs. J. P. Herzog, Cadillac, Mich. She says she has made many of them and found them extremely satisfactory to her customers. She does not speak of any decrease in the call for shower bouquets because of her having showered her funeral wreaths.

THE USE OF AUTUMN FOLIAGE.

First Aid to the Decorator.



The glories of autumn foliage can be appreciated fully only when unrivaled by flowers. Rich and gorgeous they are as a background for flowers, but luscious and magnificent as the central attraction, brought out by a setting of green or developed with as much care as is given to flowers by a thoughtful designer. As with ferns, a mantel banked or a table decorated with adiantums alone awakens one to their real beauty and gracefulness. If any natural accessory is used let it be fruit, berries or other foliage. What is more, much can be attempted in a reasonable time, as the autumn foliage can be used in large branches and is easily put in place. Great sprays of oak foliage, whole stocks of sumach, or an entire vine of ampelopsis can be cut and put in place quickly. As with flowers, however, the later they are put up in contact with the air, the better. Oak foliage can be stored in close boxes for weeks and be as good as new, but most of the other cut foliage is best cut near the time of using. Ampelopsis soon drops its brilliant leaves and is bound to lose much with mere handling, but enough will remain of the foliage, and the falling of the leaves will expose to view the beautiful lines and color of the stems and vine as well as the berries.

Some Good Materials.

The Oregon grape of the Pacific coast keeps for weeks and endures shipping. Store with the stems in water in a cool cellar. The foliage is good almost the entire year and in the autumn it is beautifully colored, from bronze green to a coppery red, with dark purple berries. The north Pacific coast region abounds in rich foliage, both of deciduous and evergreen trees. There is salal, huckleberry, laurel, a variety of conifers, dogwood and vining maple.

In decorative work there are many opportunities to make fine displays. But of course when a florist forgets to charge for cutting, transportation, time and skill, he will say that such work does not pay. The knowing how here is just as valuable as in the depth of winter with the most expensive cut flower work.

As to the use of green foliage to develop the brilliant autumn foliage, there is a fine opportunity in localities where the fringy evergreens, such as cedars, hemlocks and larches, are found to use them in quantity with the reds in oak, sumach, maple and ampelopsis. Where the walls of a room to be decorated are not such a color as will throw the colors into strong relief, make new backgrounds of contrasting foliage.

Some Suggestions.

An autumn decoration for a banquet might enclose the table under a pergola, with a vine decoration of bitter-sweet above and with clusters of grapes hanging from the uprights. Extension lights from the permanent lamps may be used, with shades of some light color which blends with the decoration. For the table center, trail bitter-sweet in a long, meandering line. To this at intervals attach grapes as though growing from it. If for a harvest home gathering, surround the timbers with cornstalks as though the latter were the real framework.

A dinner-table done in the brilliant scarlet of the scrub oak foliage would be a pleasing innovation if worked out in something like the following manner: Over a white table cover lay as fancy directs, but quite closely, the smaller and most brilliantly colored oak leaves. Cover again with a veil of Nile green chiffon. Let the table be set over this. The centerpiece might be marked by a waving band of broad fiber ribbon of a color which blends best with some choice apples in yellow-green and light red. Cluster these here and there on the ribbon with loops. Intersperse these clusters with long sprays of snowberry and a few scarlet oak leaves.

For a round dinner or luncheon table, around a wide center space lay a heavy wreath of dogwood berries with their own red and green foliage. In the center on a doily of the scarlet dogwood foliage set a candelabrum with candles of the same red. From this as a center trace narrow ribbons to the wreath after the manner of spokes in a wheel.

Have bitter-sweet, snowberries and oranges for a yellow and white table. A cluster of oranges fastened together loosely with stems of twisted cream ribbon proceeds from a trailing vine of bitter-sweet, which takes a wreath from around a wide center. Let the orange cluster, with several others of the same kind, lie at the side of the wreath towards the center, while some branch sprays of snowberries are grouped on the outside edge of the bitter-sweet wreath.

Walls and Canopy.

For a wall decoration use clusters of oranges in the same way, hanging at intervals in a frieze of yellow or bronze autumn foliage. Another color scheme for the same design may be invented of ampelopsis with its own berries or of yellow maple with Concord grapes, while a third may be of Oregon grape and light grape clusters.

Wild rose foliage with its own fruit and its color heightened by the addition of hawthorn berries makes a striking bit of decoration. If more red is needed, work in ampelopsis foliage. Beautiful, rich hues may be found in strawberry foliage for centerpieces with red apples. Garden asparagus in quantity, with its red berries, is fine for large rooms, when quantity is needed for a nominal price.

For a bridal canopy effect, cover the frame tree-like with snowberry branches bordered with a draped festoon of narrow ribbon, many stranded. Set this in front of a solid wall of ampelopsis or a tapestry of hawthorn berries. For a table decoration to correspond, use a snowberry and adiantum centerpiece, either in the shape of a solid adiantum plateau with a tracery of the snowberry around the edge or a hanging ball of the snowberry over a mirror bordered with an adiantum wreath.

To close off a music corner or dining-room use a tapestry of hawthorn and snowberry or a screen of arbor-vitæ decorated with sprays of snowberry and ampelopsis in lover's-knot design.

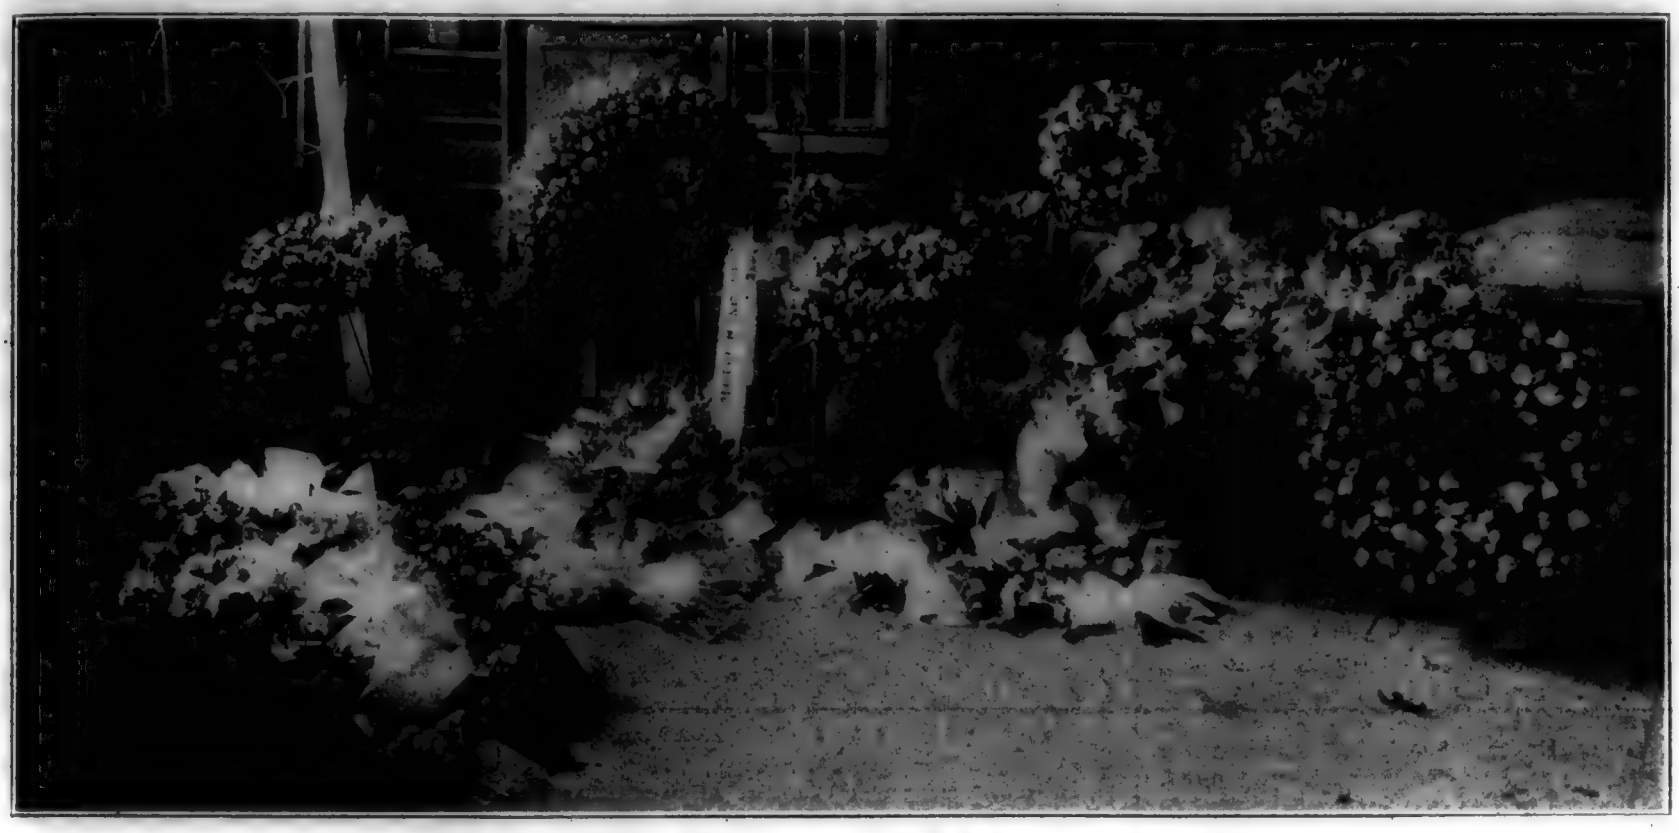
Store of the Spokane Florist Co., Spokane, Wash., During an Opening.



A SPOKANE OPENING.

This is the season of the annual autumn openings and it may be of interest to know what a Spokane retailer did in this line in the spring. C. T. Kipp, proprietor of the Spokane Florist Co., Spokane, Wash., finds it desirable to have a flower store opening at the time the department stores and milliners are making these events popular. He has his openings the same weeks that are selected by the other merchants. "In that way we have the benefit of their attendance," he says. "A great deal of interest is manifested in our store and it is visited by hundreds during the three days we usually run our show. The size of our store, which is 27x90 feet, gives us opportunity to make a good display."

The accompanying illustrations show Mr. Kipp's store as it appeared during his spring opening, just before Easter. In the lower picture the mirror decoration at the left was made with Thomas

Moore tulips and pussy willows, the mirror being draped or framed in orange velvet. The mirror at the back was arranged with yellow velvet and silk, with genistas and daffodils, while in front of it there were hyacinths and spiræas in hampers and baskets. The upper picture shows the other side of the store, including the display section and sales counters.

"The people in the northwest who do not have the opportunity of seeing flower shows that are presented to the people of the eastern cities are much interested in the harmonious arrangement of plants, flowers and accessories and we find the openings, demonstrating the appropriate uses of flowers, though possible in only a comparatively small way, never fail to attract much attention," says Mr. Kipp. "Our store is located in the best section of the retail district of our city and our only advertisement, outside of our satisfied customers, is the window display we keep before the public at all times; we believe it the best advertisement a florist can give the public."

Probably everyone will agree that well kept windows are the best advertising a retail florist can do, but there are few retail stores so fortunately located that the entire flower buying public of the community passes frequently. Yet, there usually is some one newspaper in every town that is read by practically all the flower buyers. Few progressive stores now feel that they can depend solely on store display to attract trade—they feel that they must use the newspaper to attract attention to the store display.

HANSEN'S FUNERAL WORK.

It has many times been noted that, instead of the use of funeral work being on the decrease because of the occasional appearance of the words "Please omit flowers" in funeral notices, and agitation for simplicity in funerals, the use of designs really is on the increase, the summer just closed having seen the heaviest demand for designs in the history of the trade.

The comment is suggested by the accompanying illustration, reproduced from a photograph made recently in the packing-shed of Henry Hansen, of Catskill, N. Y. For this funeral there were over 100 designs and sprays. Mr. Hansen used 7,000 roses, 3,000 valley, 1,500 asters, 1,000 Easter lilies and auratums and 500 gladioli, besides orchids and numerous other flowers in smaller quantities. The work was done by Miss Eliese H. Hansen, daughter of Henry Hansen, and included, besides the designs shown in the illustration, a large number of others and a blanket of white roses, valley and orchids.

A PRIZE DESIGN.

The accompanying illustration shows the standing wreath which won for Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., Grand Rapids, the first premium for floral design exhibited at the West Michigan State Fair. The flowers used were Rhea Reid roses and valley, with adiantum as the principal green.

IS THIS A JUST RULING?

Under the above heading J. L. O'Quinn & Co., Raleigh, N. C., send The Review the following letter:

> We note that on the first Sunday in September Uncle Sam passed a ruling that no mail would be delivered to the lock boxes or at the general delivery windows from midnight Saturday night until midnight Sunday night, except to hotels and newspapers. Now, what we want to know is, is this special privilege ruling just, when, for instance, the traveling man who stops at the hotel, in our opinion, has no more right to his mail than any other business man? The house which he represents probably has not one-fifth as much real money tied up in business as the average local man. As to the newspapers, their business is no more important to them, or the general public, than are the affairs of the average business man.
> If this special ruling is applied all over the country as it is in our city, we think that the country at large should bring a general kick against the wisdom of the post-office department in establishing, or trying to establish, the special privilege connected with the most important branch of the government's business, namely, the mail. We ask this for the general discussion through your paper and would like to hear from other sections of the country.

To the Review it seems remarkable that so many florists find it difficult to break away from business even for the Sabbath. Why any business man, much less a florist, should want his letters on Sunday is something difficult to see. For years and years it has been considered that trade in flowers, like liberty, was only to be had at the price of eternal vigilance, but there certainly is no reason why a florist should do routine business Sunday. If he has orders for a Sunday funeral it may be necessary in some instances to make deliveries Sunday morning, but those who have tried it have found that it is just as satisfactory to make deliveries Saturday night and that nothing is lost by being closed on the Sabbath.

The post-office regulation stopping deliveries on Sunday went into effect in the large cities many months ago. It worked so well that it was put into general effect September 1. It now is law, not a ruling.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

THE EARLY BUDS.

I am sending you two chrysanthemum buds; please tell me what the trouble is and the remedy. The variety is Tarrytown. The buds are crown buds, taken about August 8. The plants are strong and healthy. About the first week in August they had a top-dressing of cow manure and for the last two weeks they have been fed with liquid manure. All my other varieties show more or less of this same trouble, but none so badly as the ones I send. You will notice that they have a skin over them and that there are no petals. Some have the petals around the outside and the center skinned over. Any light on the subject will be appreciated. E. J. L.

The buds were pretty well shriveled by the time they reached me, but there is nothing the matter with them excepting that I think possibly they were taken too early to do the variety justice. It would have been better had E. J. L. pinched out these buds and run his plants up for another growth.

The shape of the bud is all right for a crown bud, which invariably comes looking entirely different from a later bud. If these buds had shown some ten days later, E. J. L. could have taken them at that time and there would have been no question about their opening perfectly, but with these early buds, from the way they look now, it would have been somewhat problematical. Chas. H. Totty.

MILDEW ON MUMS.

What is the cause and remedy of chrysanthemum foliage, after the flower bud has been selected, getting leather-like, and covered with mildew, the lower leaves turning yellow and dying? This is most noticeable on Smith's Advance and Ivory; the former are about ruined by it. As I have never been troubled with it before and other varieties under the same conditions are not affected by it as yet, I do not see what brings it on these varieties. I have always carried the idea that mildew was more prevalent in cold weather and did not show up in warm weather. P. P. L.

Mildew is, of course, more prevalent in cold weather, but it is liable to come at almost any season of the year when too much water is applied and the plants are carried through the night with their foliage dripping wet. Some florists water their mums during the evening and the plants stay wet all through the night, but I have yet to see a florist handling his stock that way who got through the season without a bad dose of mildew. If P. P. L. will notice Crimson Ramblers outdoors during August he will see any quantity of mildew, thereby disproving his idea that mildew never appears in hot weather.

Plants will lose their lower leaves as the wood hardens and, if not carried to excess, this is a perfectly natural process and is nothing to worry about, but the disease that is attacking Smith's Advance in many places through the country is much more serious than this. It is a fungoid growth, like the black spot in Beauties. Some plants of Smith's Advance we had outdoors were entirely destroyed during the hot, moist weather of August. Under glass it would not be a serious proposition, providing the foliage is not wet by nightfall and the plants are not everlastingly soaked with water.

About the only remedy I can suggest is sulphide of potassium applied in the proportion of one ounce to two gallons of water and to maintain the atmosphere as dry as possible.

C. H. Totty.

VITALITY IS LOW.

Enclosed find a chrysanthemum leaf. Can you tell me the nature of the trouble showing on it? The plants are strong and dark green, but occasionally a plant has leaves the edges of which have turned white. On a few other plants the leaves are mottled dark green on light green. Also, when my plants first bloom the flowers are large, but the later ones, although equally good in stem and foliage, come small. Is there any way in which I can remedy the trouble and have the later ones as large as the first? A. L. S.

The leaves forwarded indicate a low vitality in the plants. This can be easily remedied in any variety by a careful selection from year to year in choosing the strongest plants to carry on the stock. Indiscriminate selection of cuttings has done more than anything else to make not a few of our best varieties almost useless.

I do not exactly understand the last paragraph, where A. L. S. says: "When my plants first bloom they are large, but the later ones, though equally good in stem, come small." My assumption from this is that A. L. S. managed to secure a crown bud at the proper season and the resulting flower was all right. Terminal buds will invariably produce a smaller flower, for the simple reason that plants have an additional growth to ripen and the petals are consequently small and lacking in substance. Chas. H. Totty.

CARNATIONS

TOMATOES AS PEST PREVENTERS.

Will tomato plants among carnation beds keep away thrips or red spider? Is there any virtue in the tomato plant in keeping off any insect? Please publish an answer to this question, as our foreman contends there is merit in the tomatoes on account of their odor. Q. J.

Q. J. may have discovered a virtue in the tomato of which I have been entirely ignorant; that is, as far as thrips are concerned. That the tomato will not keep away red spiders can be proved by the fact that I have seen tomato plants literally covered with them. I have also seen a few tomato plants in a large house bring on a bad dose of white fly before the grower was aware of what was happening to him. This pest is especially fond of the tomato.

I believe that you will be wise if you disregard the claims made for the tomato as an insect destroyer or preventer. A. F. J. B.

LARVÆ ON CARNATIONS.

I am enclosing some branches of carnations which are infested with an insect that threatens my season's cut of blooms. This pest does not show any signs of its presence on the plants until the small shoots begin to dry, when the worm or maggot has done its mischief and is ready to hatch out in the form of a fly of some kind, which I have not been fortunate enough to detect as yet. The plants in the field, as well as those in the greenhouse, are infested with this pest, which is a new one to me. Please let me know what to do to get rid of it. C. A. H.

The pest of which you complain is undoubtedly one of the many varieties of larvæ which feed on tender vegetation, both inside and outside of greenhouses. Most of these can be successfully combated with poisoned bait and one of the best of these is made as follows: Mix bran with molasses until you have a mash; then add enough Paris green to make it deadly. A little more or less of the Paris green does not matter, just so there is enough of it. Drop a little of this here and there, where you know the pest is operating. This method is especially adapted to the blooming season, when you do not want to discolor the foliage or flowers.

It is yet early in the season and you may not be cutting any blooms, and, if you are not, I would advise dusting the plants with some good insect powder, like Slug Shot or hellebore. It can do no harm and it might prove just the think that is needed. A. F. J. B.

CONCENTRATION.

The establishment of E. T. Wanzer, Wheaton, Ill., is probably unique among the establishments devoted to the carnation from the fact that only two varieties are grown.

In recent years there has been a pronounced tendency to cut down on the number of varieties; in place of growing fifteen or twenty sorts, the average establishment now is content with six or eight. Mr. Wanzer has grown rather fewer varieties than anybody else in the vicinity of Chicago, but this year has made a further reduction and has only two varieties, Enchantress and White Perfection.

The Wanzer establishment, at which R. Scheffler is foreman, consists of six houses, each 23x200. The entire place is in carnations except for four benches of mums, three benches in the range and one bench in a lean-to. There are in all 33,000 carnation plants.

"Everywhere you go," says Mr. Wanzer, "you will be told that Enchantress is the easy grower, the big producer; it is the one variety by which all other carnations are measured. Consequently any variety that will outbloom Enchantress is the variety to grow in quantity. Our records show that last season White Perfection outbloomed Enchantress 600 flowers per bench. A bench is 690 plants."

The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, which sells the output of Mr. Wanzer's greenhouses, says that evidently concentration, specializing, the growing of few varieties and these in quantity, certainly has profited Mr. Wanzer provided it is a reason for his large cut of first quality blooms.

When Mr. Wanzer says that he grows only two sorts he does not mean it quite literally; he has each season grown a few plants of other varieties merely to compare the result with what he gets from his main crops.

RAMSBURG'S SUMMER QUARTERS.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph made at the establishment of G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H., of which he says: "This shows our summer camp and a part of our grounds. There is a block of Silver Pink snapdragon in the rear, which extends around the camp to the front on the upper side, containing over 2,000 plants for seed only. My family consider the camp the best thing that we have. It is 16x30 and contains a living room and four sleeping apartments, divided by curtains from the square of the frame, which leaves free circulation of air overhead and through the camp, as both ends are screened. The top serves as a protection in spring to an immense coldframe, where we harden off carnations, mums and violets, thus combining health, comfort and profit at a small outlay—in our case less than $100. We are open air enthusiasts and I would have every man, woman and child know the restful joy and benefit of an open air snooze."

THE GLASS SITUATION.

The committees representing the manufacturers of hand blown window glass and the workers' union got together last week and agreed on a wage contract for the season's fire. It was highly favorable to the men. Following the agreement one of the largest factors in the glass trade sent out the following market letter to jobbers:

"The Wage Committee have finished their task, and an agreement has been entered into that carries with it an increase in wages of about twenty per cent, figuring on the present selling price of glass. In addition to a straight advance of fifteen per cent, there is also an upward sliding feature, that is now in effect, which is very favorable to the workmen.

"With various other increases in the cost of manufacturing window glass, higher prices may be expected during the next few months. Popular sizes are scarce, and as hand-made plants will have no new glass on the market for at least thirty days, jobbers are likely to find themselves short of glass during the entire fall.

"In the eastern and central districts it is estimated that not more than 1,000 pots will be operated this season by hand, while in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana less than 300 pots will be considered active. With a wage scale effective from October 15, 1912, to May 29, 1913, it will be seen that thirty-two weeks will be the maximum period that any plant can run. Many of the factories will not be in blast October 15, and there will be various happenings that will tend to curtail production during the fire. No one can figure overproduction for the next season. The stocks in the warehouses of the hand-factories have not been so light in years. These factories will have practically bare warehouses when the new blast is started, which is a most unusual condition. Orders are being freely placed at manufacturers' new discounts, and these contracts are all for rush shipment. The jobbing trade in all sections of the country are enjoying a brisk demand, and it will increase during the next sixty days. With the resumption of the factories, it is believed that they will have contracts closed that will require several weeks to execute, and a strong and regular demand is anticipated for the entire fire.

"On a forecast of this kind, prices are much more likely to advance during the fall and winter than to be reduced; 1912-13 is going to be the best season the glass industry has experienced for several years."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilies.

Just as soon as the multiflorum and giganteum forms of Lilium longiflorum arrive, pot them and place in a shed, cellar, frame, or under a greenhouse bench, where a temperature of 50 degrees at night is maintained. Remember that Easter, 1913, comes extremely early and unless a brisk heat is at command for the plants once they are fairly started into growth, it will not be easy to have them on time. The giganteums love heat from the start and a sure way to spoil them is to stand them when potted in a cool, damp place, one in which Dutch bulbs would revel, but which this lily abominates. The multiflorums will succeed in a lower temperature, but do well treated the same as the giganteums.

If you are growing any of the Formosa bulbs they should now have growths several inches long, and if you want some early flowers a few plants should be placed in a brisk heat. The Formosa is the cleanest of all the lilies. It flowers somewhat erratically; some plants will be eighteen inches high when in flower; others, under the same treatment, five to six feet. While it will stand forcing, the finest plants are grown in an average night temperature in winter of 50 degrees. For cutting this is far ahead of giganteum or multiflorum, and no florist with any call for lilies, especially in a cut state, can well afford to be without it.

Canterbury Bells.

Those invaluable biennials, the Canterbury bells, can now be lifted and potted where they are wanted for spring flowering. Usually 8-inch pots will hold them, unless of extra size, when 10-inch may be necessary. Use a good, strong soil for them. See that you get a nice ball with each plant, and after potting keep outdoors until frost arrives of sufficient severity to threaten breaking the pots.

Anyone who has once grown Campanula Medium in pots for spring trade will never want to be without it again. It makes a superb pot plant and a late batch, which can easily be timed for Memorial day, will be found valuable. The single varieties are superior to the double and hose-in-hose sorts as pot plants, flowers of the two latter being too heavy. Now, if you remembered to sow your Canterbury bells in April or May, all will be strong and bound to flower. However, where sowing was delayed until July, a small proportion only are likely to flower.

Rambler Roses.

Keep the canes securely tied up on the rambler roses intended for forcing, so that they may get all possible sun and become thoroughly ripened. The pot-grown plants ripen up the best and these are better if kept drier at the root now, to check the growths and harden up the canes. By the middle of October any of the ramblers which are growing in the field can be carefully dug up and potted. After potting, give them the sunniest possible location. Tie up the shoots and spray freely until the plants start to establish themselves in the pots.

Berried Plants.

The two principal berried plants for Christmas are the solanum, or Jerusalem cherry, and the ardisia. There is rarely any trouble in ripening the former before Christmas in any ordinary greenhouse, but the ardisias, unless given a light and sunny bench, are liable to have their berries only half ripened, in which condition they are not salable. As berried plants are little called for except at Christmas, no effort should be spared to have the berries well colored. A high temperature is not to the liking of ardisias; 55 degrees at night is better than 5 to 10 degrees higher. Christmas peppers also, if they appear at all late, should have a light, moderately warm bench and be freely sprayed on clear days.

W. W. Wilmore.

Spring Bedding Plants.

The various bedding plants used as a groundwork in bulb beds and which have other manifold uses in spring, including pansies, violas, forget-me-nots, daisies, etc., in the colder states are better wintered in coldframes. Occasionally, if left outdoors, they will winter well, while other winters will largely decimate them. Frames, if aired at intervals and located where the plants can not get wet feet, will carry over any of this class of spring plants with practically no loss. Use some well decayed manure in the compost, especially for the pansies. Set the little plants moderately close in the rows. Soak well with water and give a light shade during the middle of the day, when the sun is bright. All the protection needed by these plants is a coating of perfectly dry leaves and the sashes then placed over these to keep them dry. Wet leaves will soon rot off a host of plants if allowed to stay over them, and if little or no ventilation is given.

WILMORE OF DENVER.

The first published portrait of W. W. Wilmore, the Denver dahlia grower, appears on this page. Mr. Wilmore is a modest gentleman and he has not had his picture taken in years and years—except this snapshot caught by a kodaker in the Wilmore fields, about a mile west of the Denver city limits. Mr. Wilmore makes his home in a pretty bungalow in the midst of his irrigated dahlia fields, 5,000 feet above sea level. He has grown the flower twenty-six years and of late has raised countless seedlings. Among those he has named and introduced are: Manitou, brought out in 1908, a flower of immense size, a specimen being fully seven inches in diameter, of an amber bronze color with a pinkish shade; The Baron, a pale yellow show dahlia with white tips; Portola, a pale pink show dahlia, margined with clear orange bands; Ventura, a yellow shading to light orange, with rather short stems; Gold of Ophir, a large decorative flower of strong yellow color; Mrs. Winters, a superb white decorative flower, well and widely known; Gypsy Maid, cactus, with long, orange scarlet, pointed petals; Annie Moore, cherry and white; Bon Ton, and White Century, a single flower like a giant daisy.

DAHLIAS: BY A SPECIALIST.

[A paper by W. F. Fletcher, of Des Moines, read before the Society of Iowa Florists at its recent convention.]

It has been my great pleasure to devote much of my time during the last few years to the culture of the dahlia, the most beautiful of the autumn flowers, yet I find there is so much I have not learned about this, my favorite flower, that I hardly feel qualified to point the way for others.

While I feel strongly tempted to dwell on the history of the development of the dahlia, I believe what we as florists are most interested in is the most profitable varieties to grow and the better methods of caring for them, including propagation, soil, culture, pests, cutting, digging and storing.

Varieties for Profit.

There are so many varieties listed by the growers of this country and Europe that any choice is naturally a matter of personal preference. We find from experience that it is more profitable to grow only a few varieties of the various types, instead of a large list. The cactus, decorative and peony-flowered types are the most salable, though a few of the show type are in demand. My choice of varieties of the various types includes the following:

NEW REGULATIONS FOR IMPORTING FIELD-GROWN STOCK.

HORTICULTURAL BOARD RULES.

To Carry Out New Law.

The law commonly known as the plant quarantine law, printed in full in The Review for August 1, made it the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture to appoint what is to be known as the Federal Horticultural Board, to be charged with the administration of the law.

As such board the Secretary appointed: W. A. Orton, acting chairman; Peter Bisset, A. F. Burges, George B. Sudworth.

The board has, under date of September 25, issued its rules and regulations for carrying out the quarantine act, as follows:

Regulation 1. Short Title of the Act.

The act "To regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products; to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to establish and maintain quarantine districts for plant diseases and insect pests; to permit and regulate the movement of fruits, plants and vegetables therefrom, and for other purposes," approved August 20, 1912, shall be known and referred to as "The Plant Quarantine Act, August 20, 1912."

Regulation 2. Definition.

For the purpose of this act the term "nursery stock" includes all field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, fruit pits, and other seeds of fruit and ornamental trees or shrubs, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable, and flower seeds, bedding plants, and other herbaceous plants, bulbs, and roots.

All woody plants and parts thereof for propagation or planting are included within the term "nursery stock" as used in this act.

"Field-grown florists' stock" is all florists' stock which is usually grown outside of greenhouses for all or part of the year, such as azaleas, bay trees, araucarias, box, etc.

Regulation 3. Applications for Permits.

Persons contemplating the importation by mail, express, freight, or other form of transportation, of nursery stock as defined in this act from any part of the world will first make application to the Secretary of Agriculture for a permit, stating in the application the general nature and quantity of the nursery stock, the district or locality where grown, the name and address of the exporter, together with the name and address of the importer in the United States, and the proposed port of entry.

By "general nature" is meant the class or type of stocks, as fruit trees, fruit-tree stocks, etc., as specified in the official form of permit.

Applications for permits should be made in advance of the shipment of the nursery stock, but if through no fault of the importer stock shall arrive before the issue of a permit the stock will be held in customs custody at the risk and expense of the importer for a period not exceeding ten days pending the issue of a permit.

Applications for permits should contain the following information:

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FEDERAL HORTICULTURAL BOARD
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Regulation 4. Delivery in Bond.

If the required permit be not at hand at the time of the arrival of the nursery stock, the latter may be delivered to the importer, consignee, or agent for the proper care thereof upon the filing of a voluntary bond with approved sureties in double the invoice value of the property (the amount of the bond in no case to be less than $10), conditioned upon the redelivery thereof to the collector within ten days from the date of arrival and providing that the same shall not be removed from the port of arrival within such period or until the presentation of the proper permit; or, if the importer, consignee, or agent shall so elect, the goods may be retained in the custody of the officer of the customs pending the issuance of the permit, wholly at the expense of the importer.

Regulation 5. Permits for Entry.

On approval by the Secretary of Agriculture of an application for the importation of nursery stock from countries which maintain nursery stock inspection a permit will be issued in triplicate. One copy of the permit will be furnished to the applicant, one copy will be mailed to the collector at the port of entry, and the third filed with the application. Permits will expire on the 30th day of June of the year following the date of issue. They will be in the following form:

PERMIT TO IMPORT NURSERY STOCK.

.....191..

To the Collector of Customs:

.....

Sir: You are hereby authorized, so far as the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture is concerned, to permit the importation under "The Plant Quarantine Act, August 20, 1912," of the nursery stock specified in the application of ....., dated ....., described herein, provided each shipment is accompanied by the certificate of inspection and the shipper's declaration certified by an American consular officer in conformity with the rules and regulations made for the enforcement of the act.

[Here follows a list similar to the list in the application for a permit, showing quantity and general nature.]

Name and address of exporter.....

Name and address of importer.....

Respectfully,

JAMES WILSON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

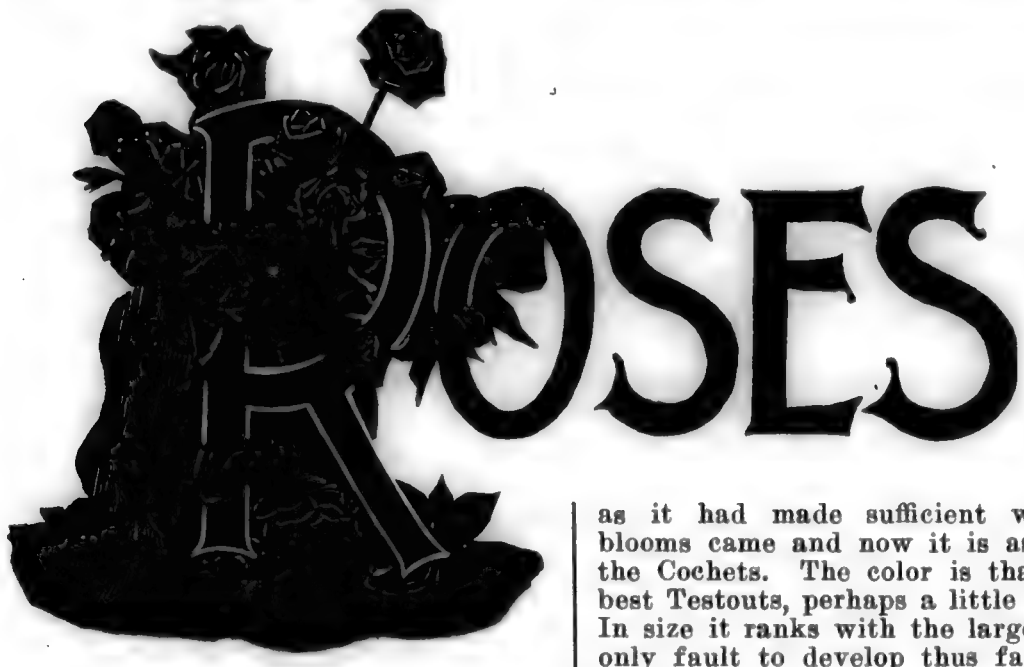
Countersigned:

.....
Executive Officer.

Permits for the entry of nursery stock from countries which do not maintain official nursery stock inspection will be addressed to the collector of customs in the following form:

To the Collector of Customs:

.....



You are hereby authorized, so far as the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture is concerned, to permit the importation under "The Plant Quarantine Act, August 20, 1912," of the nursery stock specified in the application of ....., dated ....., described herein, only upon receipt of notice in writing from an inspector of the Department of Agriculture that the nursery stock has been inspected by him or under his direction at the port of arrival and was found or believed to be free from injurious plant disease and insect pests.

(See Regulation 6 for the ports at which entry of nursery stock from countries having no official system of nursery inspection is allowed.)

Regulation 6. Entry of Nursery Stock.

Entry of nursery stock will not be allowed unless accompanied by a certificate issued by a duly authorized official of the country from which it is shipped, stating that it has been thoroughly inspected by him or under his direction and was found, or believed to be, free from injurious plant diseases and insect pests: Provided, That for stock to be shipped between October 1 and May 31 such inspection shall be made on or after the 1st of October and for stock shipped during the growing season inspection shall be made not more than 30 days prior to date of shipment: Provided further, That until July 1, 1913, the usual inspection certificate covering the previous growing season will be accepted: And provided further, That when the country from which any nursery stock is shipped maintains no official inspection, articles for which a permit has been issued will be admitted only through the ports of

THE NEWER ROSES OUTDOORS.

As Tested by a Tennessee Grower.

The growing of outdoor roses for summer cut flowers, as well as the sale of plants to customers for planting in their own gardens, is becoming more important to the trade each year. This being the case, a report of our experience with some of the new roses in the field will interest many.

Sunburst.

Grown in the nursery row by the side of some hundred other standard and new sorts, this has been the rose to attract the most attention and elicit the most favorable comment from visitors. It has been the freest and most constant bloomer in the field, with the exception of Kaiserin and the two Cochets. It is only a fair grower, though such young plants as one must have of this variety are hardly a fair test on that point. As compared with Mrs. Aaron Ward, the rose nearest like it, it produces double the number of flowers, of better form and on longer stems. More than this, it has not faded under the hot sun as does that variety. In the field the color is a true golden, with a copper heart. The rose has two weaknesses; the color is not uniform on all plants, a defect we hope to remedy by propagating only from the best colored plants, and the flower is not double enough. In bud it is absolutely unsurpassed, but it opens rather too quickly and when open is no more double than the Killarneys, and has the appearance of a Soleil d'Or. The fragrance of the expanded blossom is so like that of a carnation that one with his eyes closed will be fooled every time.

Mrs. Aaron Ward.

This rose has done better this season than last. It is all that has been claimed for it as an outdoor rose. It is quite free, a fair grower only, but withstood our unusually hard winter better than either Neyron or Druschki. It fades almost white in the hot midsummer sun, but does not quit blooming. The color is not uniform on all plants, but it is a great rose for all that.

Radiance.

This is our first year with this rose, but it will not be our last, by any means. The plants were a little slow about starting to bloom and our first impressions were not good. It is a strong grower, however, and as soon as it had made sufficient wood the blooms came and now it is as free as the Cochets. The color is that of the best Testouts, perhaps a little brighter. In size it ranks with the largest. The only fault to develop thus far is that the bud is not so pointed as we could desire.

Excelsa.

We had our first bloom of this variety this year and it is certainly a winner. In color it outranks Crimson Rambler, and as a grower there is little comparison. Not a trace of rust or mildew has appeared, and it is equal to Dorothy Perkins in making wood. It is almost an evergreen here in Tennessee.

Shower of Gold.

This rose has not bloomed for us, but in growth it has come up with Excelsa, which it resembles in foliage and habit. We kept no plants of blooming age, but in the hands of purchasers it is reported to be by far the best yellow rambler.

Jonkheer J. L. Mock.

This rose has been such a complete disappointment that we cannot help feeling that we must be in some way to blame. It lacks in color, which has not been clear and decided; it is also deficient in freedom of bloom, and in size. The plant is a strong grower. All our plants are young and, like Betty, it may not do well till the second year.

Molly Sharman-Crawford.

This has been another disappointment. It has bloomed freely and is white, but aside from this has shown little merit. Unless it improves greatly, it will be discarded.

Flower of Fairfield.

While not new any more, this rose should have a word, for it has been much overadvertised. It is not so good in color with us as its parent, Crimson Rambler, is diseased as badly or worse, and has never bloomed any oftener—once each season.

Antoine Rivoire.

This is among the best half dozen roses for outdoors. In size and color the flower is fully up to those produced inside, and it is one of the hardiest of the hybrid teas. We have failed in three years to discover its weaknesses.

Hiawatha.

This is another rose that is not new any more, but it deserves a word just the same. It is one of the strongest growers of all the ramblers, has no disease, is as hardy as an oak, and attracts more attention than any other rambler. The bright red flowers, set off by such a large center of such bright golden stamens, its fragrance, its freedom of bloom, its large clusters on long stems, and its long standing qualities make it the rose to plant wherever a rambler is desired.

Rena Robbins.

After two years of trial, we consider this one of the roses that have come to stay. It varies greatly in color at different seasons of the year, but is always a desirable rose, with plenty of big buds of exquisite form and fragrance. It is only fairly free in growth, and not quite hardy.

Chateau de Clos Vougeot.

Not so free a bloomer as desired, but hardy and an entirely new color. In bud and bloom it is good, and during the latter half of the season it is free. A good rose.

Edward Mawley.

This rose has made so little wood that we are unable to decide whether it is inferior or just slow in maturing.

Bessie Brown.

A Cochet seedling that is not quite new. In color it is between the pink and the white, and so is prettier than either. If there is any difference in growth and freedom of bloom, it is in favor of the newer rose.

Climbing Paul Neyron.

This is more properly a Climbing La France than a Neyron, but is easily the freest bloomer of all the climbers we have grown, and is as hardy as Neyron. It is never out of bloom more than a day or two with us. Freer than Climbing Soupert.

Mme. V. Beaumont.

This rose has proved to be a good grower and a free bloomer. It is too single to be a really great rose, but is still a good rose and worth growing.

Leslie Holland.

A weak grower and as yet a poor bloomer. This is the first season we have tried it, so it has not had a fair test.

Lady Pierre.

Another of the roses that will take away the reproach of our not having a good yellow rose. It is a strong grower and a free bloomer, with a grand bud. Its petalage is about the same as that of Killarney. In color it is what we are accustomed to call yellow in other flowers, with a tendency to run coppery.

Mrs. Herbert Stevens.

A good grower and a free bloomer; about the size of Hermosa, without that rose's good color. A good common rose of a faded pink color, and of no value as a cut flower.

Rose Queen.

A good grower, but not so free as it should be. The flowers are so good that they make up for the lack in numbers, and the color is one of the best pinks we have ever seen.

F. R. Patzer.

A medium to good grower, with a fine flower on the order of W. R. Smith in color and shape, though not as free as that variety. Though not one of the best, this rose, we believe, will live and have a permanent place.

Robin Hood.

In this rose we had hoped to find a better red rose than we have had, but were disappointed. It is similar in color and form to Helen Gould, and no better. Not so free, so bright, or so good in shape as Rhea Reid.

Alice Lemon.

After two seasons' test, we pronounce this rose not a robust grower and not a free bloomer. The bud is rich salmon, of elegant form.

Mrs. G. W. Kershaw.

This rose has proved to be only ordinary in every way.

Aline Schneider.

A truly yellow rose that is a fair grower and a fairly free bloomer. Its color makes it worth growing, as it is hard to get. It is the best rose of its color we have ever seen.

Mme. Ravary.

Not so free a grower as we would desire, but a good bloomer. The buds are a decided copper, fading to a coppery pink on opening. This is one of the new roses that are worth keeping.

Zelia Bourgeois.

For those who desire a white baby rambler this leaves little to be desired. It is white, free and as good a grower as the original baby.

Cardinal.

We are about to decide this to be the best red rose for the open ground in this part of Tennessee, Rhea Reid being its only real rival. It could be described as an everblooming Mme. Charles Wood. It is hardy, blooms all of the time, and is red—not crimson red.

Floyd Bralliar.

SPOT ON OUTDOOR ROSES.

Enclosed find several leaves of an outdoor rosebush. Can you let me know through your columns what causes the spots on the leaves?

A. F. K.

This spot on the foliage of outdoor roses is common; in fact, there are few seasons when more or less varieties are not similarly affected in about every collection. It usually appears in late summer and early fall on well matured foliage, and weather conditions are responsible for it. When we get hot days followed by quite cool nights with heavy dews it starts to spread rapidly. To counteract it, spraying with Bordeaux mixture or sulpho-tobacco soap is helpful. Some varieties are more susceptible than others to its attacks. Some yellow or coppery-tinted roses, such as Soleil d'Or, Persian Yellow and Harrison's Yellow, are often badly affected, while the more vigorous hybrid perpetuals are immune. While it gives the roses an unsightly appearance, it comes late and does not apparently impair their vigor. It can scarcely be avoided here, even when remedies are used prior to its appearing. C. W.

South Bend, Ind.—The last meeting of the St. Joseph Horticultural Society was held at the home of C. P. Bradley, near this city. Mr. Bradley was also one of the principal speakers.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The demand is keeping up steadily; in fact, it seems to be increasing, for the receipts of flowers, though larger than a week ago, are taken up quickly. With the cool weather has come a much better quality of blooms, giving them a midwinter aspect. Stiff prices rule throughout most lines. Roses are the flowers now most in demand. The supply of all kinds, except American Beauties, has been increasing steadily and is in a fair way to take care of all requests. The Beauties meet with a heavier demand than the limited supply can take care of.

The chrysanthemum season is at the threshold. The supply for last week was regular and was sold at good prices. Carnations, too, came in for their share of popularity. They are getting better each week. Other offerings are Easter lilies, valley, a few sweet peas, cosmos, dahlias and orchids. All of these sell well. The quantity of valley coming in can hardly take care of the call. The green goods line is ample and is selling well. Some fine leucothoe is coming to the wholesale houses.

September 28, at the Flower Market, all the florists who had cut flowers disposed of them long before the closing hour.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving a good supply of orchids. He is also finding a good market for his American Beauties.

E. G. Gillett has been getting fine October Frost from the greenhouses of the W. R. Miller estate, in Covington. Mr. Gillett says that all the mums at this place are good and clean from the ground up. They also have a fine lot of pompons that are coming along nicely.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange was first to have sweet peas of this season's indoor cut. They have had them for the last two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hoffmeister celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday, September 28.

Charles Garvey, manager for Peter Weiland in Cincinnati, was called home to Indianapolis last week because of the illness of his father. While he is away, Bob Jennings is in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett were members of a party that visited Dayton September 29.

Mrs. M. Weiland was the guest, for several days last week, of her daughter, Mrs. P. J. Olinger.

James Caldwell, son of Tom Caldwell, who was one of the best of the old landscape gardeners in this city, was killed September 29 in an automobile accident near Venice, in Butler county. He and three friends were joy-riding when their auto went over an embankment and turned turtle, throwing Mr. Caldwell out on his head and breaking his neck.

L. H. Kyrk easily cleaned up on heavy receipts of roses last week.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There was a good demand for stock all through the last week. In the early part of the week a great scarcity of flowers was noted at all of the wholesale houses, but later in the week considerable stock came in and the retailers seemed eager to pick up anything that looked good, even at advanced prices. The sudden cold snap caused a shortage among our local growers and little is coming in from them.

Chrysanthemums are coming in more freely in white and yellow, and the demand cleans them up daily at from $10 to $20 per hundred. Roses have been more plentiful than any other flowers, but scarcity of other stock causes them to be in big demand and at present carnations are selling well; a great deal of poor stock has been sent in, but anything good is placed on advance orders. Easter lilies have advanced to $12.50 per hundred and lily of the valley sells at $4. Dahlias and cosmos are also scarce, though usually a glut at this time of the year. Frost is expected to take a hand at any time now, and kill off all the outdoor stock. Smilax and ferns are plentiful.

Various Notes.

R. Karlstrom, representing W. A. Manda, Inc., of South Orange, N. J., called on the trade last week. Andrew Peterson, of Hoopeston, Ill., also was a caller during the week.

Edwin Hey, whose establishment was known as the Grosvenor Gardens, at 627 North Kingshighway, has given up his place and all his fixtures were sold last week. He is looking for a new location in the west end.

Henry Jennemann, at Webster park, will not cut any of his fancy dahlias this season, as the summer was too hard on the plants. The trade will greatly miss these, as they met with a great demand.

Carpenters were busy all the week on the second floor of the building of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., arranging for more room in the supply department, to receive the large shipments that are coming in daily.

Arthur F. Waldmann, at 5897 Delmar avenue, says he had a great run on pot ferns during the last month. This month he will have a sale on 3,000 pot mums.

The Metropolitan Floral Co. will furnish the decorations for the automobile show which is to be held at Forest Park Highlands. Mr. Geranios, the head of the firm, is much pleased with business prospects for this month.

Conrad Bergstermann is showing a fine lot of fancy-leaved caladiums in his show house, fronting on Grand avenue. The house also contains some fine specimen decorative plants.

Grimm & Gorly have a new delivery wagon, with round glass on the sides, on which is shown the earth and the inscription, "We give the earth with every plant." Frank Gorly, manager of the store, says they disposed of a great many large ferns during the last week.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. received some fine shipments of roses last week, and also a splendid lot of lily of the valley. A large shipment of ribbons and other supplies arrived during the week. The new firm is now in shape to supply any and all demands.

Meurer Bros. and John Held, who have fine places in the southern part of the city, have their houses filled with winter-blooming plants for the local trade.

Edward Westmann has given up the flower store which he recently opened at 3166 South Grand avenue. He has not made known his future plans.

The Tower Floral Co. and the Bentzen Floral Co., on North Grand avenue, have had a good run of large designs in funeral work during the last week. They are looking forward to a splendid fall and winter business.

At the new St. Louis fair, which opened its doors September 23, to last a week, there were no floral displays, but the management has promised the florists to build a floral hall for display for next year and they will offer suitable prizes.

The Engelmann Botanical Club will resume its regular monthly meetings this month. Secretary Pring will send out advance notices to all the members for the first meeting.

Henry Berning has been getting fine shipments of the early white mum, Smith's Advance, from the E. G. Hill Co., and also good blooms of yellow. They cleaned up nicely all the week.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, October 10, at 2 o'clock, in Odd Fellows' hall. President Weber is looking for a large attendance, as this will be the first meeting at which he will act as president. The trustees have arranged for a good time.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Judging from the general demand for wedding flowers, one would imagine it was the month of June, as the florists all report an unusual amount of wedding work, as well as numerous calls for church decorations. Fortunately, though, the weather is not like June, but is rather chilly. This, however, is bringing on some fine roses for wedding bouquets. Roses are showing up most satisfactorily, with a good, brisk demand, fine quality and good supply. Carnations are holding their own, being of excellent quality and in good supply. Lilies seem to have gone back in the last week and were scarce and the orders for them came in from all directions. The people are now commencing to turn their attention to chrysanthemums, for which there is a good demand but little stock. Chrysanthemums seem to be about two weeks late this year, for while Golden Glow and a few other early varieties are in, the supply is scant.

Palms and Bostons have been paying for their keeping during the last two weeks and it has been rather difficult to scratch up enough to go around.

Outdoor stock will no longer cut in on the greenhouse man's trade, as our first killing frost came September 29. Consequently, all hands are busy with their geranium cuttings. The cooler weather conditions are helpful to the indoor stock, which seems to be taking on new life. The season is again at hand when much of the florists' profits go up in smoke; and all the empty corners are being filled with their annual winter boarders, the decorative palms, bays, etc., from cemeteries and lawns.

During the first two weeks of September business was not exactly rushing, but it picked up and during the last two weeks the retailers have noticed a decided change and at the present trade is brisk.

Various Notes.

Another occasion which greatly increased the sale of flowers last week was the automobile parade given under the auspices of the Edgemont Improvement Association, in which every lady had to carry a large bouquet of flowers. At the conclusion of the parade the flowers were collected and sent to the hospitals.

M. Anderson is still in Cleveland, looking after the interests of his store at that place.

The Miami Floral Co. is cutting some fine roses and carnations. This concern tells us that trade along all lines is entirely satisfactory.

Miss Minnie Graham, of the Rike-Kumler floral department, says that trade is picking up wonderfully.

A letter from Jos. Bittner, who left recently for Los Angeles, Cal., tells us that he is much taken with the place.

Herbert Bartholomew spent September 29 in Franklin, O., where he played football with the Wolverines. Roy Ewing accompanied him as a rooter.

Allen K. Howard, who has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Young for the last few weeks, has gone to Akron, O., where he has accepted a position.

Henry Ehrhardt and his son, of Sidney, O., motored to Dayton September 29.

A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was in Dayton last week, calling on the trade. He spent September 29 as a guest of George Bartholomew.

Mrs. M. D. Schmidt has returned from a visit to Louisville, Ky.

The Heiss Co. says it had some fine decorating jobs last week that helped out wonderfully in making last week the best one in some time.

The Advance Floral Co. also reports a fine week on decorating.

Jos. Furst says that he has decided to quit the florists' business.

The Dayton Floral Co. had a fine week on funeral flowers and this week has several big decorations booked. It has a big job at the Y. M. C. A., to decorate for the Butchers' and Grocers' convention.

E. E. Schaefer and H. H. Ritter were appointed as judges to look over the lawns and yards of South Park. Each year President John H. Patterson, of the National Cash Register Co., offers a cash prize for the best yard in South Park. Consequently this is one of the prettiest and neatest parts of Dayton. Everybody competes for the prize.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Engle have had as their guest during the last two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Moyer, of Austin, O.

Miss Virginia Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. I. Schaefer, met with quite a serious accident last week when she fell from a hickory tree. She was picked up in an unconscious condition. Fortunately, no bones were broken, although she was badly bruised.

Mrs. B. Haschke is cutting some fine October Frost chrysanthemums at her greenhouses.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business has been quite good of late. Outside flowers are on their last legs and roses are now the leading flowers in the markets. With cool and clear weather the quality of roses steadily improves. Beauties are selling well and are higher in price, as are Kaiserins, Wards, Hillingdons and other standard sorts; even the short-stemmed stock is in fairly good demand, for the supply has decreased and the passing of asters has increased the demand. Carnations increase in quantity, but there is no surplus yet. Whites sell the best. Crimsons and scarlets are hard to move. Violets are not large yet, but their numbers are growing and they are selling quite well. No doubles have yet appeared, but some are due this week.

In chrysanthemums, Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are still most in evidence, but Monrovia, Pacific, Polly Rose, October Frost and Unaka were all seen this week. These are selling well. Valley is good and selling well. Of lilies there is a fair supply. Speciosums and auratums are about over and longiflorum has the field to itself. Cattleyas are now in good supply. Gardenias are increasing in numbers, but are not long in stem as yet. Asters are decreasing steadily in number. Good, clean flowers sell at quadruple the prices of a month ago. Gladioli, sweet peas and other outdoor flowers all cut less of a figure. Dahlias still are of fine quality. Asparagus Sprengeri is good and adiantum only moderate in quality.

Various Notes.

J. A. Budlong & Son Co., at the Boston Flower Exchange, has Double White Killarney, Sunburst, Killarney Queen and Cardinal roses of high quality. The first named seems to be a winner as grown by this firm.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has a fine new delivery wagon. Trade is reported as good. Tubbing hydrangeas has just been finished. A bench of poinsettias looks fine, also a batch of several thousands of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow mums are being cut in quantity.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are busy boxing several hundred thousand Dutch bulbs. Of these they are the largest growers near Boston. They have had quite a call of late for white statices in addition to the blue varieties, of which they grow a large batch.

William Sim has this season grown a large quantity of asters under glass. They have clean flowers now, when outside ones are getting badly spotted. They are starting to house their single violets, some 75,000 in number.

Neil Boyle, of Malden, has 15,000 roses planted. The varieties are Pink Killarney, White Killarney, Hillingdon and Richmond. He is cutting a nice crop from these now. He grows some thousands of lilies for Easter, in addition to his roses, preferring giganteums.

F. H. Houghton reports business as starting up well. He has secured several good wedding orders, a large one October 12 at which he has decorations at church, house, several tents, and in addition will make flower and shrubbery beds to create suitable fall effects.

William S. Grassie, of Waverley, has good Golden Glow mums and a nice assortment of asters at the Boston Flower Exchange.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, is sending in fine Gloriosa, White Wonder, Pink Delight, Beacon, St. Nicholas and other carnations to Geo. H. Noyes at C Park street, also some excellent mums.

The directors of the Boston Flower Exchange hope to have necessary alterations completed so that the new market leased at Winthrop Square will be ready for occupancy early in January.

Frank J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is now the cattleya and gardenia king of this section, growing more of these two specialties than any other grower. They are well grown, too, as an inspection of his greenhouses will testify. Cattleya labiata is now in fine crop and C. Trianæ has hosts of sheaths and promises a fine winter crop. Mr. Dolansky is starting to sell direct to his customers from his greenhouses or his stands at the Boston Flower Exchange, in charge of G. F. MacDonald.

Chrysanthemums will be the topic at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club meeting October 15. Active preparations are being made for the twenty-fifth annual banquet, to be held early in November.

Visitors last week included: F. G. Sealey, representing Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.; F. Gomer Waterer, the rhododendron specialist of Bagshot, England; John Young, New York, and David Smith, of Thomas Smith & Sons, Stranraer, Scotland.

Edgar Bros., of Waverley, have one large house planted with winter sweet peas. They grow some thousands of mums and are cutting Golden Glow and other early sorts.

Welch Bros. Co. reports fall trade as starting up in good shape.

Thomas F. Galvin furnished some elaborate decorations for the new Copley Plaza hotel last week, on the occasion of the convention and banquet of the International Chambers of Commerce of the World. President Taft was in attendance at the banquet.

Wax Bros., on Tremont street, have a big lot of wedding orders this week, which are keeping them busy.

Local bulb merchants report an exceptionally strong call, narcissi and late tulips being in especial demand.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, is now bringing in good daily picks of single violets to the Boston Flower Exchange. Mr. Cummings has some 15,000 mums also coming along nicely.

W. N. Craig.

One of this week's visitors is Mr. Eintracht, representing Wertheimer Bros.

CUTTINGS.

Please tell us through your columns the best way to take cuttings, if it is better to trim off part of the leaves of geraniums or not, also carnation cuttings. My grower and I do not agree on this and I would like to get some authority on it. F. V. B.

Trim off all the geranium leaves clean, except one or two small ones on top of the cuttings. This prevents mold in the cutting bench, for if the larger leaves, or any part of them, are left they will only cause decay. Then again, the cuttings grow quickly once they are in the sand, and the fewer leaves they have when inserted, the better. This holds good of practically all cuttings of a soft nature. Tropical plants of many kinds and others of a more woody nature do not need to have the leaves cut off so closely.

With carnations, all growers do not agree. The majority we are acquainted with shorten back the leaves somewhat. The cuttings seem to root equally well whether trimmed back or not, but if the leaves are shortened they look neater and are more easily handled.

OBITUARY.

George T. Carpenter.

George T. Carpenter, a well-known and highly respected florist of Philadelphia, died suddenly from heart failure September 25, at his home at Sixty and One-half street and Girard avenue, West Philadelphia. Mr. Carpenter was born in London, England, and was 68 years of age. He came to this country when a boy, commencing business as a florist at Wyalusing avenue and Fifty-fifth street in 1873. Twelve years later he removed to Girard avenue and Sixty and One-half street, where he grew plants chiefly for wholesaling, and some cut flowers, notably chrysanthemums and bouvardia. Mr. Carpenter had been in poor health for some time, but his death came as a shock to his friends. He is survived by two sons.

William Baylor Hartland.

Announcement is made of the demise, at Cork, Ireland, September 15, of William Baylor Hartland, proprietor of the Ard Cairn Nurseries and known among the trade all over the world. He was 76 years of age.

W. R. Miller.

W. R. Miller, aged 60, pioneer citizen of Covington, Ky., who conducted a greenhouse at 2128 Eastern avenue, died September 23 of valvular heart trouble. He leaves a wife and three sons—Charles C., Alfred A. and Walter R. Miller, seed merchants.

Richard E. Evans.

Richard E. Evans, 62 years old, a pioneer florist of Salt Lake City, died September 15. Mr. Evans suffered a paralytic stroke over two years ago, from which he never recovered. The end had been expected for the preceding two weeks. During this time he had recognized no one and had been in a comatose state most of the period. He is survived by a widow, a daughter and three grandchildren. He also leaves a brother and sister.

Mr. Evans was a member of Deseret camp No. 406, Woodmen of the World, and funeral services were held under the auspices of that order.

William McLean.

William McLean, of St. John, N. B., passed away September 21, at the home of his son-in-law, William Charlton. He was 65 years of age and had been ailing for only a few days. He was, perhaps, the first man who grew vegetables in a greenhouse in St. John. He was born in St. John, but for many years conducted a greenhouse at Ashburn. Later he went into the florists' business there, where he remained for twenty-two years. About eight years ago he returned to St. John and went into partnership with his son-in-law. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Charlton, and one brother, Robert, of Ashburn.

Frederick Jacquemin.

Frederick Jacquemin, president of the Jacquemin-Lambach Floral Co., St. Louis, died September 20, at his residence, 1148 Bayard avenue, after an illness of several months, of throat trouble. Mr. Jacquemin was a native of St. Louis and had spent his business life in the Jacquemin-Lambach Co., which was established by his mother, Mme. Elise Jacquemin, twenty-five years ago. He was 49 years old, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Cora Linder Jacquemin, and two sons, Frederick, 13, and Walter, 9 years old.

Benjamin Chase.

Benjamin Chase died at his home in Derry, N. H., September 27, following a period of illness dating back nearly a year. He had been able to be about his home and even to walk in the village till within the last month. His wife died January 7. Mr. Chase was one of the most highly respected men of the town. He was born in Auburn, August 18, 1832. He grew to manhood on the paternal estate in Auburn, attending the district school in his boyhood and youth. Subsequently he attended for several winter terms a select school at Lee. With only brief interruptions he aided his father in the work upon the home farm and as a millwright for agricultural pursuits. He was encouraged by his father in a free use of the mechanical tools in the home workshop, and developed much skill in that line, so that in 1867 he laid the foundation of a manufacturing business in Derry. He established the plant-stake and reed factory and for many years did a successful business, conducting all its interests unaided. The original mill stood on the site of the present structure. It was burned in 1883. He rebuilt and fire again destroyed the entire set of buildings December 8, 1910. Previously to this fire Mr. Chase had disposed of his business to the Benjamin Chase Co., becoming president and turning the entire management over to his nephews, John C. Chase and Chas. B. Chase. Mr. Chase was of a very ingenious nature and to him is due the credit of originating the intricate machinery that is now used in the company's plant. June 17, 1875, Mr. Chase married Harriett D. Fuller, of Dunbarton. An only child, Mrs. Charles E. Newell, and three grandsons survive.

Mr. Chase was for many years a member of the American Association of Nurserymen and was personally known to the older generation of the trade as the pioneer in the business of making printed wired wood labels.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—M. C. Wright, Philadelphia representative of Lord & Burnham Co., was here September 21, conferring with Commissioner Warner in relation to the erection of greenhouses in one of the city parks.

New Britain, Conn.—The marriage is announced, September 18, of Anders C. Strom and Miss Anna Marie Schwartz, at the home of the bride's parents in Cromwell, Conn. The groom is in the florists' business here and Mr. and Mrs. Strom will make their home on Roberts street.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE express companies complain that the additional work caused by the new Interstate Commerce Commission regulation as to labels and registering is responsible for delays in shipments.

THE memorial to Ernest Calvat, subscribed for by chrysanthemum growers all over the world, has now been erected on the tomb of the great French chrysanthemum raiser in the cemetery at Grenoble, where he lived.

THE regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act will be found on page 13 of this issue. The law itself was printed in full, prior to its enactment, in The Review for August 1, 1912. It is important that all who import nursery stock or plants familiarize themselves with the regulations. A permit must now be obtained before plants can be imported.

THE clearing house reports show a larger volume of money passing through the banks than ever before in the history of the country, but a good many florists are asking for further time on their accounts, stating that their own collections have been unusually slow through September. It is a condition for which there appears to be no explanation except a failure on the part of the florists to get after their money.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

In all the affairs of business there usually is a quite apparent cause and effect. It pays to note them:

Enclosed find $1 for the renewal of our subscription to The Review. It is a business investment for us well worth the cost just to read the advertisements, if for nothing else.—L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del., September 19, 1912.

Please discontinue our advertisement, as we are all sold out. Your paper certainly reduces stock for its advertisers.—Felsch Bros., Maywood, Ill., September 21, 1912.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

John Young, manager of the trade exhibition to be held in connection with the National Flower Show next spring, reports the following as having already taken exhibition space to the rental values set after the names:

Peter Henderson & Co., New York	$1,000.00
A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn	600.00
Revere Rubber Co., Boston, Mass	325.00
W. E. Marshall & Co., New York	220.00
John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.	200.00
The Weathered Co., Jersey City, N. J.	270.00
Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J.	300.00
Reed & Keller, New York	300.00

Work on the official program is actively progressing and a considerable number of pages of advertising already have been sold.

THE INTERNATIONAL SHOW.

It is learned from one of the English exchanges that "the European address of the National Flower Show of the Society of American Florists, to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York city, April 5 to 12, 1913, is A. Staines Manders, 75 Chancery Lane, London, W. C., England."

INFORMATION WANTED.

In a number of instances florists have made purchases of the Royal Co., Iowa City, Ia., which have turned out unsatisfactorily; the florist having given a note, collection has been attempted by the Iowa City State Bank, claiming to be the innocent holder of the note. In several cases suit has been brought or threatened by the bank.

The Review is asked to supply the names of florists or attorneys who have successfully defended the suits.

If florists who have fought the matter out will write to The Review they may be of assistance to others of the craft.

NO LONGER PIONEERS.

In accordance with the action taken at the Chicago convention of the S. A. F., Secretary Young is mailing to some of those heretofore classed as Pioneer members notices to pay dues—and to pay dues from January 1, 1912.

There was a mix-up on this Pioneer membership. Action establishing it is said to have been taken at the Cincinnati meeting, but it escaped the reporters, including the official stenographer. The board of directors gave Pioneer membership, carrying with it exemption from the payment of dues, to all when they had paid for twenty-five consecutive years. It developed that this was not in harmony with the intent of President Valentine, on whose recommendation the Pioneer membership was established, and at the Chicago convention in August the society was asked to correct the record. This caused a long discussion, ending in action limiting the Pioneer class to those who attended the first convention held by the society and who had paid dues for the succeeding twenty-five years. Therefore there will be no further addition to the list of Pioneers, who in effect are life members. Those who attended the second and third conventions and who had continued to be members for twenty-five years had been exempted from one or two years' dues, respectively. They are now asked to pay for 1912, being replaced in the list as annual members.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Little change has taken place in the market during the last week, unless it was the increased demand for carnations that brought a firmer price than has been in effect since last spring. Stock may have been a little more plentiful, but the demand also became more brisk. White carnations came in for quite a run and on these as well as Enchantress the local wholesalers were able to get good prices for stock of fair length of stem. Beauties and white roses also found the demand greater than the supply, although the Beauties appear to be coming in more

We can fill your Orders for Roses

Buyers who have been having difficulty in getting all the Roses they need should note that WE are filling all orders. No trouble, if you order of us. freely. The increase in the shipping calls was one of the main features of the week's business and it was noted that more orders and larger ones were received than for the corresponding week last year. Local trade likewise picked up considerably and the city buyers evidenced a willingness to pay fair prices in order to obtain first quality stock.

Chrysanthemums are rapidly becoming a factor. The supply has increased rapidly during the last ten days and yellow and white are to be had in large numbers and of good quality. Pink is not yet available except in small lots, but another week or two will see the mum market in full blast. A good demand was reported during the last few days and those of good quality were readily disposed of at prices about on a par with those of other years.

Roses probably increased in supply faster than anything else and, while the increase in the arrivals was by no means great, it gave a certain relief to the market. Quality is excellent. Beauties have seldom been better than those that have reached the market in the last two weeks. Medium stems are in strongest demand and hardest to supply. The Killarneys have found a ready market, the white having the heaviest demand. Richmonds moved faster than usual, while Marylands and Mrs. Taft were cleared to an advantage. The other roses, including Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Melody, Sunburst and Radiance, held firm in the face of an exceptionally good call. Valley still finds a quiet market. Lilies are a little more plentiful and are improving in quality.

The orchid market underwent a sudden change in the middle of last week, when consignments of eastern Cattleya labiata came to hand simultaneously with telegrams from eastern wholesalers offering them at $25 per hundred. The local cuts are increasing, but are not yet heavy enough to meet the demand, for the wholesalers who are buying to ship prefer to send the fresh flowers at extra money rather than to take chances on stock that already has traveled a thousand miles. The eastern cattleyas find their sale mostly to local retailers who expect to work up the stock the same day.

The first violets of the season reached the Chicago market September 25 and were of rather better quality than usual for the early shipments from Rhinebeck. They brought from 75 cents to $1. Daily receipts have been the rule since the first lot, but the quantity is not yet large; not over half a dozen boxes a day for the entire market. There will be plenty in another week or two.

The greens market continues quiet, although smilax has stiffened in price. Small quantities of boxwood are arriving. Large lots of ferns are being received for storage.

September Business.

The general report is the money value of sales in September was about the same as a year ago. Some houses have had excellent increases, but others have had decreases. The majority, however, have come out about even with last year. September of 1911 was a month of large supply and extremely low average prices. This year the month started the same way, because of about the hottest weather of the

ANNOUNCEMENT

ORCHIDS AND GARDENIAS

We wish to call your attention to the fact that after October 1st we will sell all of our own products direct to the buyer, making a specialty of Orchids and Gardenias. We grow 25,000 flowering Cattleya plants and devote three large houses to Gardenias.

We solicit regular shipping orders. Just now we are cutting a fine grade of Cattleya Labiata, Gardenias, Fancy Roses, Chrysanthemums and Carnations.

G. Frank McDonald, formerly with N. F. McCarthy & Co., will manage our salesroom. His wide experience in handling Cut Flowers will be very beneficial to the trade. Established Orchid plants, all the best varieties, for sale.

Quality and Promptness our Motto. New England Headquarters for Orchids and Gardenias.

season. After this had lasted long enough to force out all the buds on the rose plants a sudden severe fall in temperature gave them a check from which they have not yet recovered. It really is surprising how little some of the growers have been able to cut in the latter half of the month. The average price of roses doubled, but there were so few flowers that it had little bearing on the cash income. For the whole market September was not far different from last year, probably a little ahead, due to some increase in glass.

September Weather.

The first ten days of September were among the warmest on record for the season, the second ten days were unusually wet, and the last ten days were colder than normal, the first frost, according to the weather bureau, occurring September 26, nine days earlier than usual. There was sixty-seven per cent of the possible sunshine, sixty-eight per cent being normal for September.

Various Notes.

D. D. P. Roy, twenty-two years with Vaughan's Seed Store, has joined the sales force of A. Henderson & Co.

John Poehlmann completed his month's service on the grand jury October 1. He gave the work almost his full time and was one of the leading members. It was a big job but one he found full of interest.

Johnson & Chronis, the south side retailers, are putting a second White truck into commission next week, a duplicate of the first one.

The Cook County Florists' Association, through a committee of its trustees, of which John Michelsen is chairman, is planning to establish a permanent clubroom, located in the vicinity of the wholesale cut flower district.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co., with city store at 30 East Randolph street, reports that at the greenhouses the third Kewanee boiler is just being installed. It is of 125 horse-power, to take care of the new glass erected this season.

Peter Reinberg cut his first chrysanthemums of the season at the end of last week.

The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, completed the digging and shipping of its peony roots last week. E. E. Pieser, who was the purchaser, says the quantity proved to be approximately 100,000 clumps.

The latest addition to the store equipment of Poehlmann Bros. Co. is a receiving stamp, which marks the hour of receipt as well as the date. It stands on the desk of Otto W. Frese and is applied to every incoming order.

Mrs. E. E. Pieser has returned from her visit at Winnipeg.

A. L. Randall is erecting a handsome residence in Rogers Park, next door to the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson.

Lester L. Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., was at Pittsburgh last week to attend a meeting of window glass interests which preceded the settlement of terms with the workmen. Mr. Partridge is confident the market for glass will advance under the terms of the new deal and he takes much pleasure in pointing to the largest stock of glass his firm ever has held—over 30,000 boxes bought before the advance had fairly begun.

H. C. Wendland and his brother left September 30 to join Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., at Chatham, New Brunswick, for a moose hunting fortnight. Mr. Wendland, himself, is a Bull Moose.

Miss L. A. Tonner, who severed her connection with the A. L. Randall Co., September 30, after having been with the company since the start of its supply department, is preparing to go to Baconton, Ga., where she is investing in the pecan and nursery business. She Buchbinder Bros. have put in a second display refrigerator of handsome design for M. B. Hirsch, the retailer located at 346 East Fifty-first street.

Being in crop with roses during a period like the last three weeks is rather fortunate; at least F. F. Benthey, with Kyle & Foerster, thinks so. He holds an interest in the greenhouses conducted by his son, F. J. Benthey, at New Castle, Ind., and has watched with pleasure the movement of an unusually large crop of Beauties and Killarneys which started two weeks ago.

Erne & Klingel report that stock moved well all last week and that shipping orders were larger and more numerous than at any time since the firm opened its doors last May. Both members of this firm assert that business for the first five months has proved better than anticipated.

Louis Bauscher, of Freeport, is in town this week attending the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star.

George Collins, who formerly was foreman for Peter Reinberg and now is in charge of Henry Smith's greenhouses at Grand Rapids, Mich., was a caller on the market this week and reports that his mum crop has reached the cutting point. The first 300 were cut September 24.

In his Knight motor John Michelsen took George Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co.; George Economopolos, of the Alpha Floral Co.; H. N. Bruns, the west side retailer and valley grower, and Hugo Schroeter, buyer for B. Schroeter, of Detroit, for a tour of the Maywood and Elmhurst establishments September 27. In The Review office next day Mr. Schroeter said the rose plants at Wendland & Keimel's are more nearly alike than the peas in a pod.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

September closed and October has commenced with a market so buoyant as to diffuse an atmosphere of hopefulness everywhere. There is an increasing supply of flowers, with the balance between supply and demand fairly evenly established. Yellow chrysanthemums and white roses are scarce. Cattleyas and ordinary grade dahlias are plentiful. Dahlias are sold in immense quantities. The fancies are in brisk demand at good figures. The select sell well. The ordinary grade is in oversupply. The chrysanthemum varieties today are Golden Glow and Monrovia, yellow; Smith's Advance and October Frost, white; Glory of the Pacific and Unaka, pink. They are improving in quality and are most welcome. The disappearance of down-eastern Beauties has left the local Beauties in undisputed control of the field, creating a shortage for the time being. Pink roses are plentiful and in active demand, excepting the shorts, the largest grade, by the way. Red roses are rather dull. White roses are eagerly sought. Carnations are improving every day. With their improvement their support strengthens. Cattleyas give the wholesalers a lot of work to find buyers for them all, there are so many. They are of excellent quality. The supply of valley is increasing in anticipation of the weddings. Cooler nights have improved the single violets. Adiantum is in good demand. The first oak foliage has appeared.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club was held in Horticultural hall Tuesday evening, October 1. The present officers were all unanimously reelected for the coming year. They are: President, J. Otto Thilow; vice-president, Thomas W. Logan; treasurer, George Craig; secretary, David Rust. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., president of the Society of American Florists, gave an illustrated lecture on the International Exhibition held in London last spring, with European scenes horticultural added.

Riverton.

The town of Riverton is picturesquely situated on the east bank of the Delaware river a few miles above Philadelphia. It boasts a number of pretty homes, a yacht club and a nursery of international repute. That nursery is owned and operated by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., a company that stands for what is best in commercial horticulture. The dominating spirit in the company is J. D. Eisele. From boy to vice-president, Mr. Eisele has given his best to his profession. His profession is proud of his achievements. Riverton is the headquarters, not the entire nursery. There are two wings; one is at Locust Farm, where the triple alliance, peonies, Japanese iris and hardy phlox, now reign. These three prosper at Locust Farm. All are covering more ground year by year. Their appearance testifies to the wisdom shown in their selection and to the skill shown in their cultivation. One of the three, hardy phlox, is said to be grown more extensively at Locust Farm than anywhere else in the world.

The other wing is at Riverview, where the two ranges built two years ago are running with the precision of perfect machinery. Kentias, domestic and imported, side by side, are of prime importance. Both citizens and foreigners display perfect physique; there is no choice between them. Phœnix Roebelenii is fast coming into line as a staple palm, deservedly so, with its air of sturdy grace. Ananas sativus variegatus, too, is leaving the novelty class of commercial foliage plants, at least at Riverview. Extremely pretty are these tiny pineapples, with their regular, variegated foliage, crowned here and there with the deeper coloring of new growth.

Outside are the dahlias and cannas, vast beds of dahlias, the cannas in lesser numbers, both evidencing culture and system everywhere. The new French hydrangeas, mostly of the forcing type, are a feature of the frames, their existence there a bold cultural stroke that carried them safely through the rigors of last winter in these sash-covered frames. They are in the pink of condition. A cool greenhouse could not have improved them.

The buildings and grounds alike show the pride that is taken in their appearance.

Various Notes.

A novel enterprise in this city last week was the sale of flowers on the street corners and in the hotels and shops by girls and women for charity. They bought over 20,000 dahlias from J. J. Habermehl's Sons at the Bellevue-Stratford, disposing of them to all who would buy. The sale was in aid of the Children's Homeopathic Hospital. It is said to have realized a good round sum.

Miss Kunder, of Charleroi, Pa., came to the city with her father a few days ago in answer to the floral school advertisement of Charles Henry Fox.

J. Otto Thilow reached Broad street station from Richmond, Va., on the evening of September 30, exactly on time. Mr. Thilow, who was met by the representative of one paper, the most progressive, visited Tak-it-ezy, the summer home of William F. Dreer, at Northeast, Me., and the Carolinas during his vacation.

Edgar Upton and family left this city for Denver, Colo., September 30.

The flower store of Kugler's restaurant reopened October 2, after three months of inactivity. John Wilson is the new manager. His friends wish him success.

Recent visitors include C. D. Mills, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Kimball Patterson, Ocean View, Cal.; William F. Gude and Adolphus Gude, Washington, D. C., on their way to Waretown; R. L. Hawkins, Bridgeport, Conn.; A. H. Siedel, Buffalo, N. Y.; Andrew Yeager and Mrs. Yeager, Allentown, Pa.

Harry Keffer, formerly a buyer for John Wanamaker, and last season manager of Kugler's flower store, will open a flower stand at the northeast corner of Broad and Walnut streets in a few days.

Leo Niessen, who personally attends to his company's dahlia orders, disposed of 80,000 dahlias in two days, September 27 and 28. Of these, 20,000 went in one order.

Harry Bayersdorfer is proud of his first little granddaughter, who arrived September 17.

Jacob Becker has opened his new retail flower store at 5210 Market street. It is handsomely appointed.

It is announced that J. Liddon Pennock will do the buying for his firm, Pennock Bros., this season.

Eugene Weiss, greatly improved in health, called on his friend Samuel F. Lilley recently.

Thomas B. Meehan, who broke his kneecap August 28, on the steamer returning from England, is slowly recovering at his home in Germantown. Mr. Meehan expects to be about again soon.

Sydney Bayersdorfer returned to the city September 29 after a few weeks' business trip in the south. Mr. Bayersdorfer, who was cordially received by the southern florists, had the pleasure of receiving a letter from his father complimenting him on his good work.

George W. Carpenter will continue the business of his father, the late George T. Carpenter, at Sixty and One-half street and Girard avenue.

Emil H. Gerschick has ordered a motor delivery car, Ford pattern, for delivery this month.

A friend says there is no Canna Woreley, adding that maybe it should be Kate F. Deemer. I agree.

Harry and Frank Michell, sons of F. J. Michell, are taking a course in agriculture at State College, Pa., to be followed by a course in horticulture.

of Rice. It was the largest shipping day that this firm ever has experienced.

Phil.

Godfrey Aschmann wrote, September 30, that business is not good, but he evidently has confidence in the immediate future, for he has prepared for this season a larger stock than ever before. The araucarias are his pride, their heads as even as a field of wheat. Pteris Wilsoni he has dubbed the Progressive Democrat fern; he uses it largely for edging poinsettia pans as well as for fern dishes. Mr. Aschmann is a hard worker—he never lets up—he knows what plants the trade wants, and sees that he has them ready at the proper time; those are the secrets of his success.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The month of September finished with a week of rain, which did considerable toward keeping business quiet. As a whole, September has been fairly good, and the prospects for a heavier month in October are exceptionally bright. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful, with the possible exception of good American Beauties. Such as are coming into the market are bringing $3 to $4 per dozen. New York violets have made their appearance, but they are not really good as yet, shattering at touch, and there is not much demand for them at $5 per thousand. Dahlias have started to arrive in good shape, and already there are more of these on the market than the storekeepers care to see. With the markets crowded with dahlias, the demand for the indoor and more profitable stock is greatly diminished. White chrysanthemums are to be seen now in the stores, though but a few yellow ones have yet appeared. A good crop of these is expected by about the middle of the month.

Roses are bringing from $4 to $8 per hundred, according to variety, length of stem and condition, but for the poorer grades a considerably lower figure is asked. Carnations are moving at 50 cents, with a top price of $2, and there are but few worth the latter amount on the market at present. Cosmos is also making its appearance here. If, however, the weather continues as it has been for the last week, there will be plenty of complaints of poor business. The palm and fern sales are being continued with more or less success by many of the stores.

Various Notes.

George C. Shaffer had a number of "opening" decorations during the month of September, which, with a large amount of funeral work, kept him and his force exceedingly busy. Among the larger jobs of decorations handled by him was that for the opening of Mayer Bros. & Co. Here red gum leaves, palms, ferns and dahlias were used to good advantage and the display was indeed a pretty one. He also had the decorating of the New Fredonia hotel for its opening, and a number of smaller jobs.

Kenney Davis, foreman for F. H. Kramer, at his Anacostia houses, has gone to Richmond, Va., where he has entered the employ of Ratcliffe & Tanner, at 25 West Broad street.

O. A. C. Oehmler, secretary of the Florists' Club of Washington and for over eight years an employee of Gude Bros. Co., will engage in business for himself at 1329 G street, N. W. He hopes to have his store ready for opening early next week.

week by the Brookland Brotherhood, at Brookland, D. C., has been postponed until October 8 and 9, because of the rainy weather. This affair is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the residents of that section.

W. F. and Adolphus Gude were the week-end guests of John Westcott at his summer home at Barnegat Bay, N. J.

The Board of Trade, at its next meeting, will again take up the matter of better fire protection for the business houses in the downtown district. They advocated the installation of the high pressure water system last year, but met with defeat at the hands of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, who would not sanction the expenditure of the necessary amounts, possibly because of the fact that the installation would have little effect on present insurance rates. The local trade wants the system established, regardless of any of these reasons.

C. L. L.

WHITE MARSH, MD.

While the annual dahlia shows of the last five years, held by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., have been a credit to the firm, the one September 24 to 28 was the most elaborate yet attempted. The indoor exhibition was set up in a part of the large packing shed and covered a floor space 40 x 100 feet, there being upwards of 50,000 flowers along each side, so arranged as to conceal the wall. There was a continuous bank of dahlias ninety feet long and six feet high, set up in 10-quart galvanized buckets which were hidden by oak foliage. The blooms were in solid blocks of one kind, six feet long, so staged as to bring out the contrasting colors. Thirty different varieties were staged in this way.

The center table was covered with boards in a pyramid shape, pot flats 18 x 24 inches were filled with moss, and short-stemmed dahlias were stuck in them, one variety in a box. They were then set up edgeways on the staging, which required 120 boxes to cover it.

Each box was filled with a different variety, thus making not only a most pleasant effect but introducing a most satisfactory way of showing each variety to the best advantage, somewhat on the English exhibition board style. In this way every flower was shown at its best, especially the cactus varieties.

On the opposite side of the center an effort at design work was made. In preparation a slanting staging was built, which was covered with flats filled with moss, making a solid bank sixty-four feet long and six feet high. Commencing at one end, a 12-foot space was covered with Delice as a ground, in which was a cornucopia of Golden West, followed by a photograph of four of the presidential candidates, each in a frame of dahlias 5 x 6 feet. Taft was surrounded by Souvenir de Gustave Doazon; Wilson, by Cuban Giant; Roosevelt, by Mrs. Roosevelt, and Chafin, by Grand Duke Alexis. These were followed by a block the same size of pompon dahlias, in which were circular beds each four feet in diameter, featuring special kinds, finishing with another 12-foot space of Jack Rose, surrounding a cornucopia of Master Carl, altogether making a magnificent and much admired arrangement, requiring about 10,000 flowers.

A design 6 x 2 contained a life-size bust photograph of the senior member of the firm surrounded by a Camæliaflora in a Maltese cross effect filled in with Jack Rose, making a frame five feet wide, at each side of which were panels eighteen inches wide of Kriemhilde and Prof. Mansfield.

In the field there are about thirty-five acres of dahlias and fifteen acres of cannas, all in the best of shape, with every prospect of a splendid crop of roots. The stock houses of geraniums in the standard varieties have all been replanted, requiring nearly 130,000 plants, which are ready to commence propagating and which should furnish an enormous amount of cuttings, which are potted directly from the stock into 2-inch pots.

Freeport, Ill.—John Bauscher, the Chicago street florist, enjoys the unique distinction of being the greatest "jiner" in Illinois, possibly in the United States. At the meeting of Freeport lodge No. 617, B. P. O. E., September 19, Mr. Bauscher was initiated along with fifteen others into the mysteries of Elkdom, this last affiliation making a total of forty-two secret organizations to which he belongs.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The first local frost of the season signalized the closing days of September and the menace of overabundant outdoor flowers is lifted. This week will see the last of the asters and gladioli. Dahlias have also suffered from the cold temperature, and the tone of the market reflects the more cheerful outlook.

The orchid supply promises to continue overabundant for several weeks. It will be November before the shipments become normal, and present low prices are likely to continue. A drop from $1 to 30 cents and under for cattleyas in a week is most unusual. The chrysanthemum shipments are increasing rapidly. Every wholesale window is ablaze with color and as fine stock as New York has ever before seen in October arrived weeks ahead of the usual time. This whole month will be dominated by them; all the popular varieties and several novelties will be in evidence before this week is over. Prices for the inferior grades are low, and the wisdom of growing only first-class flowers is again emphasized.

Dahlias were featured last week at the American Institute exhibition. Some beautiful conceptions in basket arrangements were seen in the retail windows, but the general demand for them was light and prices, except for the best, were discouragingly low. Lilies remained firm at $6 to $8 per hundred, mostly at $6, and valley of quality rose to 3 cents, there being a short supply.

Carnations improve slowly. Most of them are short-stemmed and $2 per hundred has been the top figure for the best. The low grades are disposed of at 50 cents per hundred. Last week the best roses of the season to date arrived. These, in all the new and old varieties, were absorbed rapidly and for the best $6 to $8 was the quotation. Sunburst, Bulgarie, Mrs. Ward and Double White Killarney were in special demand. The quality of American Beauties is fast improving and prices are steady, with a tendency upward.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place Monday evening, October 14. Chairman Hendrickson announces this as dahlia night.

The progress made in behalf of the National Flower Show is good. The secretary announces many contracts for exhibition space, including one of 1,000 square feet for Peter Henderson & Co.

The exhibition by the Horticultural Society of New York September 28 and 29 was the closing one of the year at Bronx park. Future shows will be held at the Museum of Natural History, the first November 5. The show of dahlias on Saturday was light. The best display was by P. W. Popp, of Seven Oaks, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who carried off the bulk of the prizes.

From October 6 to October 15 the American Armada of 123 fighting craft will anchor in New York harbor, and pass in review before the President on the final day. This is the largest fleet any nation has ever assembled within any harbor in the world. It will be strange if the florists do not benefit by the call for decoration which is inevitable.

lyn, for over forty years, died suddenly September 27, in the greenhouse. He was over 70 years of age and was pensioned by the Weirs three years ago.

Carl Kamman has opened a retail store at 31 West Fifty-eighth street.

Alexander Kupferman, of Thomas Young's force, has returned from a month's vacation in Canada.

A. Kollmiller has opened a handsome store on Madison avenue, opposite Dards.

Craig Muir has moved from Forty-second street to West Fortieth street, near Sixth avenue, and is building up an excellent trade.

R. H. James, the Harrisii lily bulb grower, of Bermuda, was a recent visitor; also H. P. Neun, of Rochester, N. Y.

At Arthur T. Boddington's a force of twenty-five are busy night and day with the fall shipments. The large cellars are crowded with importations, and these are being rapidly disseminated. The sweet pea sales have been enormous this season. Harry A. Bunyard takes a most optimistic view of the trade outlook.

The Elliott Auction Co. sold the entire stock of the Bonnie Brae Nurseries at New Rochelle October 2, and October 9, at West End, N. Y., will sell the W. G. Eisele stock.

William Duckham, of Madison, N. J., left for England on the Mauretania October 2. He will add to the pleasure of his home visit his influence with the European houses in behalf of the National Flower Show here in April.

The Flower Auction Co. continues its daily sales at 146 West Twenty-eighth street at 10 a. m. An earlier hour is contemplated.

Little space remains unlet on the Guttman floor of the Coogan building. The Henry M. Robinson Co. says Mme. Russell is easily winning first honors among its new roses.

S. S. Pennock was in the city September 24 after an interesting trip to Panama and the canal.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, will be in the city next week on his annual plant purchasing trip.

The eighty-first American Institute exhibition took place September 24 to 26, W. Rickards, manager. The principal display was of dahlias. A. J. Manda won the prize for the ornamental group of plants. Lager & Hurrell had a bank of orchids in forty varieties. The Julius Roehrs Co. had a fine bank of foliage plants and orchids, not for competition. A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, showed a vase of Miladi, which was much admired. J. T. Lovett showed his ewer-bearing red raspberry and his new grape, Catawba-Concord. Chas. H. Totty's new pink rose, No. 190, won much commendation. John Lewis Childs and E. S. Miller staged new varieties of gladioli. Messrs. David Herbert & Son, W. A. Finger, C. H. Totty, Stillman, Popp, Cottam and Head were the prize winning dahlia exhibitors. A fine display of fruits and vegetables was made, as usual. The attendance was satisfactory.

100,000 SQUARE FEET OF GLASS AT YOUR SERVICE

last week and there is a demand for good flowers at prices that average well with similar periods of other years. Asters went out almost like snuffing a candle; one day there were plenty and the next day nothing but undesirable blooms. With the going of the asters came the early carnations and chrysanthemums, so that there was no gap in the supply. Roses are showing great improvement and are now retailing at from $2 to $10 per dozen. Carnations are easy at $1 to $2 per hundred and violets, of which the first general pick came in September 28, bring 50 cents per hundred. The chrysanthemums are bringing $1 to $2.50 per dozen.

Various Notes.

The annual fall exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the parlors of the Mathewson Street church September 24 and 25 and was the largest and best held in many years. The show occupied three large rooms and covered double the space originally planned for. The dahlia exhibit was immense, both in quantity and quality. It is estimated that there were 10,000 dahlias in the show. Eugene A. Appleton was the superintendent. The prizes were well distributed.

There has been an unusual amount of greenhouse building in Providence and its suburbs this summer and there is an unusual amount at present in progress or under contract. D. N. Potter, Inc., is to erect one house 40 x 190, for early vegetables; Richard Higgins is putting up a house 32 x 101; John W. Hogan, one 25 x 100; F. Philip Swanson, one 25 x 100, and W. S. Tosdoff, one 22 x 125 feet. These are all within the city. Fred B. Luther will begin the erection of several houses as soon as he can obtain a suitable location for them, and Franklin & Crosby, of Danielson, are busy getting up another house.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

LIMA beans, the first deliveries of the new crop, are bringing record prices in California.

THE Libscomb Grain & Seed Co., Liberal, Mo., has increased its capital from $30,000 to $75,000.

THE novelty list of Ernst Benary, Erfurt, Germany, announces a white Primula malacoides.

ROBERT LIVINGSTON, of Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O., is convalescing after an illness with malarial fever.

THE Holland seeds of the 1912 crop are coming to hand in considerable quantities. Every boat brings several hundred bags.

THE Portland Seed Co., Portland, Ore., is laying the foundations for a new warehouse and office building at East Alder and East First streets.

JAMES BRAND, manager for Arthur S. Ritchie & Co., Belfast, Ireland, will shortly remove to Canada, where he intends to commence business on his own account.

DE GIORGI BROS., Council Bluffs, Ia., are erecting a 2-story brick building at the corner of Fourteenth avenue and Third street at a cost of $7,000, for use as warehouse and offices.

CRENSHAW BROS. & SAFFOLD, Tampa, Fla., are erecting a new warehouse and office building, one story high, to occupy half a block on Polk street, between Tampa and Ashley streets, opposite the Atlantic Coast Line passenger station.

THE Secretary of Agriculture, acting under the authority of the new law, has established a quarantine against potatoes from all countries where the tubers are known to be affected with wart disease—and that cuts off importations from some of the principal exporting countries.

UNDER date of September 16, A. Le Coq & Co., Darmstadt, Germany, preface a crop report as follows: "The crop of most grass seeds has now been harvested and, contrary to the preceding year, we have this year to report a favorable yield of most grass seeds. America especially had a good crop, which caused a great reduction of prices."

THE regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act will be found on page 13 of this issue. The law itself was printed in full, prior to its enactment, in The Review for August 1, 1912. It is important that all who import nursery stock of plants familiarize themselves with the regulations. A permit must now be obtained before plants can be imported.

WILLIAM HENRY MAUL, of Philadelphia, has purchased the plot 60x111 feet at the corner of Twenty-first and Arch streets, extending through to Cuthbert street, as the site for the erection of an 8-story seed warehouse of reinforced concrete construction. The assessed valuation of the property is $30,500. The consideration for the transfer is not disclosed, but it is stated the new building will cost upwards of $100,000.

Visited New York: R. H. James, St. Georges, Bermuda.

R. M. Priddy has purchased an interest in the seed and plant business of E. L. Johnson, at Lagrange, Ga.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, received 200 bags of spinach seed on the boat from Rotterdam September 23.

The stock of the Chicago Dock Co., one of Chicago's big warehouse concerns, is owned by the Albert Dickinson family.

The Central Feed and Seed Store, Wichita, Kan., has been placed in the hands of a receiver on request of an eastern incubator manufacturer.

Julius Loewith, of Loewith, Larsen & Co., New York, has returned from Europe, after visiting the most important growing sections of clover, grass and field seeds.

The Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station has issued Bulletin No. 116, "Corn Growing in the East," which will be of interest to some in the seed trade.

The warehouse of Messrs. Gartons, Ltd., seed merchants, of Warrington, England, which was burnt down at the end of April, has now been rebuilt. The building contains seven floors, each 60x185, with a total superficial area of 69,660 feet, capable of storing 10,000 tons of seed.

The Shugart-Ouren Seed Co., Council Bluffs, Ia., reports an increase of over thirty per cent in its business for 1912, the sales reaching $250,000, and is looking for a still larger season in 1913. The business was established in 1893. It is now a corporation, with the following officers: President, C. G. Ouren; vice-president, F. R. Davis; secretary, John P. Davis; treasurer, A. P. Schofield.

RUMOR DENIED.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, make prompt denial of a report current in Philadelphia in the early part of the week, to the effect that their corporation has been purchased by Sutton & Sons, of Reading, England. Thorburn & Co. say there is absolutely no fundation for the story, with which was coupled the further report that Alexander Forbes, who has just resigned as manager for Peter Henderson & Co., after twenty-five years of service in that capacity, had been appointed manager of Sutton's American interests.

When the rumor reached The Review the following telegram was sent to Thorburn & Co.:

Reported your firm purchased by Sutton and Alexander Forbes appointed manager. Please confirm. Mark the telegram collect night press rate.

The response was prompt and unequivocal. It read:

Report absolutely without foundation.—J. M. Thorburn & Co.

THE PHONE RINGS

March 17th, 1913 (Easter Week)

"Hello, is that you, Jones?"
"Yes, who are you?"
"Why, this is Smith, the East Side Florist. I understand you have a fine crop of lilies in flower."
"I certainly have—they are fine and will bring a good profit too, because good lilies are scarce this year."
"Well, Jones, can't you spare me a few? I need them very much."
"Why, what's the matter with your own crop, Smith?"
"Sorry to say they don't look very good and won't be in on time for Easter—it's an awful disappointment to me."
"Why, that's funny, mine did all right, and are fine. I had to force them a little hard, but they stood it all right. What brand of bulbs do you use?"
"Well, don't know as they were any special brand. I bought them from the same man I buy my other bulbs from—guess he gets them in New York somewhere. Where did you get yours?"
"Mine are HORSESHOE BRAND GIGANTEUM, from Ward. It's the best brand to buy in the long run. I fooled around for years before I found it out. I've tried all kinds, but none can equal them. Ward makes a specialty of lily bulbs and no one can compete with him in quality."
"That's what Jim Brown said; he uses Horseshoe Brand too, and has a fine lot, but wants 20c a bud for them and I can't afford to pay that."
"That's what I want too, Smith—I can get 25c retail this year for all I have, so why should I sell them for less?"
"Well, can't you help a fellow out when he gets in such a fix? I need 3,000 flowers."
"Sure, I'm helping you out by giving you any at all. I'll let you have 500 at 20c each, that's all I can spare."
"All right, send them over right away, for I need them now. Guess I'll buy Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs next time and see if I can't get a better crop myself. Thanks; good-bye, Jones."

Vegetable Forcing.

PEPPERS, SPINACH, ETC.

Please give a little information on growing green peppers, spinach and cauliflower in greenhouses during the winter. Please give temperature, varieties to plant for best results, time of starting seed for a Christmas crop, and any other necessary information for the beginner in these vegetables. I have grown lettuce and radishes for several years with good results and believe I can do as well with the varieties named above. I have a house in which I will grow tomatoes, also one which will be planted to cucumbers, and will carry a high temperature, which I believe will be ideal for peppers on the side benches, which have not head room for the crops named. B. F. C.

It is pretty late to plant seed or peppers to force in a greenhouse this year. Spinach likes a cool temperature, the same as lettuce. Green peppers like a temperature of about 60 to 65 degrees at night, and 75 to 80 degrees in the daytime. Cauliflower needs about the same temperature as spinach. Spinach you will not find profitable inside, as it can be grown equally well outside in the south all winter and is shipped north by carloads, selling at low prices, as a rule.

Green peppers are easily forced. They should be planted about two feet each way. Ruby King and Upright Salade are the two best varieties I know of

"WORTH WHILE" BULBS

SINGLE EARLY TULIP: WINTERSON'S "BRILLIANT KEIZERSKROON"

"Worth While" quality bulbs are of the "better" kind, and we invite the most critical comparison.

Complete illustrated wholesale catalogue mailed free upon request.

THE GRANDEST OF Bedding Tulips
Winterson's "Brilliant"
KEIZERSKROON

A bed of this most beautiful of tulips when in bloom is certainly a dazzling sight. The combination of colors, brilliant red and dazzling gold, cannot be surpassed by any other variety. The flowers are of extra large size with very strong stems, which protect them against rain and wind storms; furthermore, on account of their general strong character, they make a perfect showing for a longer time than any other variety. We have received from a specialist in Holland an exceptionally fine stock of this Tulip and offer them at the low prices as below.

NOTE—Keizerbloom is also a most desirable sort for forcing and house culture.

	Per 100	Per 1000
Price, First size Bulbs	$1.10	$ 9.50

for forcing. If you insist on trying spinach, I would recommend the Long Season variety, although several of the varieties are about as good. The variety of cauliflower called Snow Storm is considered the best for forcing. This is not the variety known as Early Snowball.

The house in which you have your tomatoes is better for the peppers than the warmer house, which has cucumbers in it, although they will do pretty well in the warmer house. Peppers are slow and it takes several months from the time you plant the seed before you will begin to pick any fruit. Cauliflower is quicker, but requires careful attention. If the plants are checked or stunted in the least at any time they will not do well. H. G.

Cambridge, O.—Fred W. Arnold recently purchased the business conducted for many years by I. A. Oldham.

Waynesboro, Pa.—A local newspaper prints a portrait of Henry Eichholz in connection with a story regarding his having raised a lavender carnation and purposing to keep at it until he achieves sky blue.

Saugus, Mass.—At the annual exhibition of the products of the school gardens here, there was a fine display of dahlias from E. F. Dwyer & Son, of Lynn, and of asters from Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—Burnette Bros have bought the stock and fixtures of the Winters Floral Co., 5 Lincoln street.

Gilroy, Cal.—Max Crow, nurseryman and florist, with greenhouses near this city, has had a good season's business in the line of soft-wooded stock.

Hillside, Ore.—W. C. Hoffman is successor to the Western Floral Co. His postoffice address is Route 1, Hillsdale. The greenhouses are at Sylvan, Ore.

Petaluma, Cal.—Henry Schnabel, until recently at the town of Stanford University, Cal., has purchased the Main Street Nursery, at 605 Main street, formerly owned by W. A. Reinholt. He will handle cut flowers, as well as a general line of nursery stock.

San Francisco, Cal.—The contract for the greenhouses for the Panama-Pacific Exposition has been awarded to Neil A. McLean, of this city, as the lowest of nearly a score of bidders. It is provided that the houses are to be ready for use thirty days from signing the contract, and that's going some, even if the number and size of the houses are not stated in the press bureau's announcement.

Baker, Ore.—At the Baker County Fair the Baker Floral & Seed Co. exhibited a 36-inch wreath of magnolia and cycas leaves, tied with red, white and blue ribbon. It was a facsimile of the wreath sent by the United States to the funeral of the emperor of Japan, copied from the illustration in The Review, and it attracted much attention because of the facts regarding the original, brought out on a card attached to the wreath.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There is an upward trend in business which is gratifying at this time, after the slump during the summer. There is plenty of stock of all kinds and it is being used up nicely. Asters have given way to mums. Although the mums are not yet in their prime, we may expect a full supply at any time. Inside mums seem to be a shade cheaper than they were one year ago, but still the prices are fair and the growers are not complaining. In carnations the crop is getting heavier daily, now that the new plantings are producing good flowers. There is a slight scarcity of roses, owing to the fact that the week of warm weather some days ago brought everything into bloom with a rush and there has been but little since. Dahlias and gladioli are beginning to show the effects of the long nights and are not as good as they were. Amaryllis and Japanese lilies are about over for the year. Valley is in good supply and moves nicely. Orchids are about in sufficient supply to fill requirements.

All outside stock is on the wane. Sweet peas are over, with the exception of a few scattering patches. Funeral orders, with quite a bit of other trade, have kept everyone in good humor for the last few weeks. The indications for the continuance of a good demand were never brighter.

Various Notes.

S. T. Turpin, of the Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O., has been in town for a few days with a choice line of florists' ware. He reports a heavy trade.

The grounds formerly occupied by the Pacific Nursery, at the Presidio, are now a portion of the fair site. Mr. Kempf has removed to Colma and will start business again at that point.

Nagata & Co., of Melrose, have finished two rose houses, each 25 x 200 feet; they will plant immediately to Liberty.

D. Greuttner, a well known florist of Vallejo, Cal., is in town on a short trip. G.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

Conditions in the flower business are about as usual for this time of year and are getting slowly better. Trade of all kinds is showing some improvement; consequently the call for flowers will follow. Stock is still fairly plentiful, with the exception of carnations, which are rather scarce. Some pretty good carnations from young stock are now coming in, and in about two weeks there will probably be plenty for all demands. There are lots of roses and a few chrysanthemums on sale and they are bringing good prices. Good asters sell well. Rubrums are still with us. Some of the stores are making larger displays of orchids than we used to see. Cattleyas are plentiful and in good demand. A good amount of valley is being grown, but not in excess of sales. Some good wedding decorations were called for last week.

Various Notes.

H. B. Slauson is cutting violets. The cool nights are bringing on the autumn crop nicely.

The growers got most of their Dutch bulbs in last week. Some of them are not growing quite so many as last year.

At Rosaia Bros.' flower farm, at Thomas, in the White river valley, they are cutting a fine crop of Maids and Brides from plants benched August 1. The greenhouses were not erected in time to house the roses earlier, but the quality of the flowers and the length of the stems are all that can be desired. They have a lot of Killarney, but will not cut much from them for some time. Carnations, mums, poinsettias and a few pot plants under glass, besides an immense quantity of outside flowers, are being grown. They contemplate the erection of about 25,000 more feet of glass this winter. They are going in largely for orchids and expect to grow almost enough flowers of all kinds to satisfy the demands of their constantly increasing business. On Friday morning, September 20, they had a slight frost down there, but not sufficient to injure outside flowers seriously.

Victor Johnson now has charge of Mrs. L. W. McCoy's store in Pike Place Market. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is showing a gradual increase as the fall season approaches. Activity is evident on all sides. Mums are coming in nicely. Asters are rapidly receding; they never fully recovered after the heavy rains in August. Of roses there is almost an oversupply, especially in Maids, of which the cut is unusually heavy. Other varieties are in proportion. Carnations are improving in quality, as well as increasing in quantity. Local violets are coming in nicely and meet with a daily clean-up. California-grown violets are shown in some stores, but prove to be poor sellers. Orchids and valley are to be had in limited quantities. The gladiolus season has about passed and only inferior ones are to be had.

Shipments of baskets and supplies arrived last week from the eastern supply houses. Many new features are among the shipments.

The Portland dahlia show proved a wonderful success and was attended by large crowds. Many prizes were awarded. The Portland Seed Co. was first on best general display and second on cactus dahlias. The Willamette Dahlia Co. was first on best twelve cactus dahlias and first on novelties. Gill Bros. were first on single dahlias, second on general display, second on novelties and second on display. The Routledge Seed Co. was first on peony, decorative and collarette varieties. Zimmerman Bros. were first on best display of old-fashioned garden flowers. The success of the show assures an annual display of larger proportions. Wm. Schaumann, A. J. Clarke and James Forbes acted as judges. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The increase in business since my last notes has kept up and a lot of stock of all kinds has been handled. Many weddings and much funeral work of the better class have kept the help busy at the retail stores and all are agreed that trade is far better than at this time last year.

Indoor roses are not too plentiful; the quality is good for the season. The outdoor roses continue to arrive in quantity; Winnie Davis, La Detroit, Maman Cochet and White Cochet are among the best varieties. The wholesale houses do not seem to be overloaded with carnations, nor do the retail stores, but cards in the doorway florists' stands read "Carnations, 5 cents per dozen," so there must be plenty somewhere. Cosmos and gladioli make a fine show in the windows and both are good. Asters are gone, their place being taken by chrysanthemums. Local growers of the latter have had considerable trouble with insects and the flowers have not as yet been as good as those shipped in from the north. Monrovia is as popular as any and can be depended upon more than Golden Glow. Valley is about equal to the demand. Orchids are scarce as yet, though growers promise full deliveries shortly. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and good. Violets are improving, though it is still a little hot for them.

Various Notes.

At the Diamond Hill Nurseries there is a grand stock of Asparagus plumosus in all sizes and the plants are clean and healthy. Mr. Keffel also grows large quantities of fruits, such as the loquats, cherimoyas and guavas, the stocks being large and of good varieties. He is still undecided as to his new location.

John Gordon is back in harness again at Morris Goldenson's and reports a good time while away.

W. Wolters has been exceedingly busy at the Hill street store and had to put on outside help during the time the regular staff was on vacation. He deserves all the success that is coming to him, for no one has done more to maintain a high standard in the business.

Violets are leaders with S. Murata just now, immense quantities being shipped daily.

Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy at the Hayward Floral Co.'s place of late. H. Reeve Darling says that more than twice the volume of business done last year is the September total.

Business is booming at the Los Angeles Flower Market, heavy shipments of northern grown chrysanthemums being handled. Mr. Morton says that his local growers are coming on with fine cuts, but that the earlier ones were not of best quality. Orchids are now handled here quite extensively.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports a big demand for baskets and supplies. A large and varied stock is carried by this up-to-date wholesaler.

There are many larger stores that do not handle as much stock as the Broadway Florist, D. Stathatos. He is in a good position to catch a lot of transient trade and caters to it with good, showy stock in large quantities. He makes a specialty of Boston and Whitmani ferns.

Paul Staiger has been under the weather for a few days with throat trouble, but a slight operation eased him somewhat, so he is able to be around. Mr. Mundwiler has had his hands full during his partner's illness, there being considerable shipping business now, as well as the usual retail and landscape work.

The quality of the roses now coming to Wright's Flower Shop is excellent and includes good long-stemmed Beauties, Prima Donna and My Maryland, all from young stock at the Gardena greenhouses. Mr. Wright handles the entire cut of water lilies from the Sturtevant ponds at Hollywood and they make a fine show, as the varieties are novel and striking, large and of varied colors.

O. C. Saakes and the whole of his staff have been kept on the jump with decorations of late.

There is another addition to the long list of flower growers who have bought land at Montebello. This time it is J. B. Booker, of 720 East Vernon avenue, who has secured five acres and intends to build a dwelling house, and greenhouses a little later, for cut flower growing. H. R. Richards.

CHICAGO NOTES.

palms used by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Mandel Bros. and Marshall Field & Co., were furnished by them and they have orders from several other large mercantile establishments.

John Zech, of Zech & Mann, says that the shortage of Beauties was more serious during the last week than he has ever known it to be during September. "Every order seemed to call for Beauties and carnations during the last week," he said.

E. B. Washburn, who has been overlooking the construction work at the new Bassett & Washburn ranges at Greggs Station, will depart for the west about November 1 to rest from business cares for a time. The new houses will be completed before that date.

C. A. Samuelson intends to put a second delivery car into service, in addition to the White truck now in use.

A. L. Vaughan, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., says business for the month of September held at about even terms with last year. The first two weeks of last month was the only reason for the failure to break records, as the last two weeks finished strong.

Harry Manheim, shipping manager for Hoerber Bros., says stock came in more freely during the last few days, but the increase in out-of-town orders left things just about the same as the week before, well cleaned up at the end of the day.

Miss Anne Sigmund, formerly with the Chicago Florists, has taken a position with the Madison Floral Co., at Madison and Clark streets.

GODFREY CALLA.

Will you kindly give cultural directions for the Godfrey calla? How old before they bloom? Do you recommend planting in pots or benches?

A. L. A.

The Godfrey calla will flower when small. We have had them blooming while in 3-inch pots. They will succeed in either pots or benches, but pot culture we have found gives the most flowers, although it means, of course, somewhat more labor. In 6-inch and 8-inch pots we find they grow and flower beautifully in a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. They give treble the number of blooms of the old calla. Feed them liberally with liquid manure, also with surface dressings of fine bone or Clay's fertilizer.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

A NOTICE of the death of Benjamin Chase, Derry, N. H., the pioneer manufacturer of printed wired wood labels, appears in the obituary column this week.

DR. L. O. HOWARD, the government entomologist, has returned to Washington after a trip to Europe to confer with the entomological officials of the governments of England, Belgium, Holland, France and Germany. It is understood he specially was interested in the nursery inspection methods employed abroad.

THE regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act will be found on page 13 of this issue. The law itself was printed in full, prior to its enactment, in The Review for August 1, 1912. It is important that all who import nursery stock or plants familiarize themselves with the regulations. A permit must now be obtained before plants can be imported.

NOTICE OF QUARANTINE NO. 1.

U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued the following official notice under the new quarantine law:

WHITE PINE BLISTER RUST.

United States Department of Agriculture,
Office of the Secretary,
Washington, D. C., September 16, 1912.

The fact has been determined by the Acting Secretary of Agriculture that a tree disease known as white pine blister rust (Peridermium strobi Kleb.), new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in the following countries, viz., Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, and Italy.

Now, therefore, I, Willet M. Hays, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, under authority conferred by section 7 of the act approved August 20, 1912, known as "The Plant Quarantine Act," do hereby declare that it is necessary, in order to prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust, to forbid the importation into the United States from the hereinbefore named countries of the following species and their horticultural varieties, viz., white pine (Pinus strobus L.), western white pine (Pinus monticola Dougl.), sugar pine (Pinus lambertiana Dougl.), and stone or cembrian pine (Pinus cembra L.).

Hereafter and until further notice, by virtue of said section 7 of the act of Congress approved August 20, 1912, the importation for all purposes of the species and their horticultural varieties from the countries named is prohibited.

Done at Washington this 16th day of September, 1912.

Witness my hand and the seal of the United States Department of Agriculture.

WILLET M. HAYS,
Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

REGULATIONS FOR IMPORTERS.

[Concluded from page 13.]

New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Jacksonville, and New Orleans, after examination by inspectors of the Department of Agriculture at the port of arrival, if found to be free from plant diseases and insect pests.

Collectors of customs will be notified from time to time, through the Secretary of the Treasury, of the countries which maintain official nursery stock inspection.

Entry will not be allowed unless the case, box, or other container or covering is plainly and correctly marked to show the number of permit, the general nature and quantity of the contents, the district or locality and country where grown, the name and address of the exporter, and the name and address of the importer.

Nursery stock offered for importation without compliance with these regulations will be refused admission. Nursery stock, inspected as provided herein, which is found to be carrying dangerous insects or plant diseases may be treated or destroyed, as circumstances require.

Regulation 7. Foreign Certificate.

Certificates of inspection will be accepted if countersigned by duly authorized officials of foreign countries or their agents. On and after July 1, 1913, certificates shall give the date of inspection, name of the grower, the district or locality, and country where grown; a statement that the stock has been inspected by a duly authorized official and found, or believed to be, free from dangerous insects and plant diseases, and shall bear the name of the responsible inspection official for the country of origin.

Lists of officials in foreign countries authorized to inspect nursery stock, giving their names and official designations, will be furnished to collectors of customs through the Secretary of the Treasury.

Regulation 8. Notice of Shipment.

Immediately upon the entry and before removal from the port of entry of shipments of nursery stock the person receiving the stock shall notify the Secretary of Agriculture, in writing, stating the number of permit, the general nature, age or height, and quantity of the nursery stock, the country and locality where grown, the date of entry, and the name and address of each of the consignees to whom it is proposed to forward the nursery stock, together with the probable date of delivery for transportation.

At the same time, a copy of the notice to the Secretary of Agriculture shall be sent to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the State, Territory, or District to which the nursery stock is to be shipped. Lists of such officers may be obtained on application to the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Regulation 9. Declaration.

On and after December 1, 1912, all shipments of nursery stock to the United States from countries which maintain an official system of nursery stock inspection shall be accompanied by a declaration of the shipper, produced before an American consular officer, as follows:

I, ..., the undersigned, do solemnly and truly declare that I am the..... (grower or shipper) of the stock herein mentioned and described, and that it consists of nursery stock which I believe to contain no injurious plant disease or insect pests.

Regulation 11. Marking of Packages.

Packages containing nursery stock which arrive not marked according to the law will not be delivered until they shall have been so marked under customs supervision and at the expense of the importers. (See also paragraph 2, Regulation 6.)

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The fall season has opened with bright prospects ahead. Carnations and roses are much better than two weeks ago, especially the home grown ones. The growers expect to be cutting early mums soon, which will relieve the shortage a great deal. The downtown store windows are looking attractive, considering what there is to display. Funeral work and decorations are having a heavy run for this time of year, which makes the demand on white stock quite heavy. Potted plants of chrysanthemums are looking especially good in all the greenhouses. It looks as if there will be plenty for fall business, which fact has never been known in the city before.

Various Notes.

A. F. Barbe is back from a sojourn in Europe, which he greatly enjoyed. His greenhouses, which are planted mostly in carnations, are looking good.

James Payne's place is looking well and he says business is good.

The greenhouses of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. are all in good shape and the stock is exceedingly fine. It would be a credit to anyone.

W. J. Barnes has about completed his building, which consists of an attractive store and office of concrete, 22 x 50 feet. He thinks concrete is the only thing for greenhouse construction.

W. H. Sawvel's greenhouses are looking good, especially his house of carnations.

Visitors: Robt. Karlstrom, representing W. A. Manda; G. Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co. W. J. B.

Leroy, Ill.—W. W. Rike is putting up a new 20-foot stack.

5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers, rosy amber turning to bright pink; has proven a special favorite in the New York market this season.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz; $10.00 per 100

Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color; a splendid novelty particularly for late flowering, it is not suited for forcing, but for Decoration Day and later flowering it is very valuable.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Fraicheur. Very large, regularly shaped flowers, white, delicately suffused with rose, very free flowering.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite during the past two years; one of the best.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 5.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous. One of the most successful Hydrangea growers in the U. S. considers this as one of the very best varieties yet introduced.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ornament. Large pretty mauve-pink flowers, very free flowering.

5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose tint; a very promising sort.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine, quite distinct from all others, an easy variety to force and a sort that we believe will be one of the winners.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 " 40.00 "

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections, flowers produced in immense large heads; this variety is on the style of the La Lorraine, but is an earlier bloomer.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. E. Mouillere. This has been the favorite white variety in the New York market this year, very free flowering, of good size and form. Awarded silver medal at the National Flower Show at Boston last year. A great favorite with English growers, one London grower known to us handling over 30,000 of this variety alone.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Described by the introducer as a delicate flesh rose-color, of a pleasing shade. In our soil it has been the most beautiful deep blue we have seen, and which has been admired by everyone; a vigorous grower, very free and early; the individual flowers as well as the trusses being of immense size. One of the easiest to force early.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mme. Raymond. Large trusses of perfectly round flowers of a transparent white, passing to a tender rose. Entirely distinct and in competition with all the other white varieties was awarded a certificate at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a decided and fine acquisition.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "

Hydrangea Mlle. de Tremault.

Mlle. de Tremault. As the result of our own trials we are convinced that this variety, which is yet but little known, is the best very large flowered white yet introduced. As free flowering as any, of splendid erect habit and beautiful foliage, it will produce flower heads as large as the old popular Otaksa. We strongly recommend it.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white, flowers large and freely produced; a grand variety for a 5- or 6-inch pot plant. From our own observation we are inclined to consider this the best of all the whites and we recommend it for careful trial.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Very large panicles of milky white, irregularly dentated flowers. One of the best growers says that this should have been awarded the Silver Medal given to Mme. Emile Mouillere last year as the best white.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear flesh-rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties, color clean and clear, every one should try this.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 6.00 "

Mons. G. Renault. Very large flowers of a bright rose with carmine reflex. A most promising variety, very free and easily forced.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 "

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business is gradually becoming better, and decorative work and the sale of cut flowers will soon be at their best. The garden flowers are about gone, though a few asters are still in the market. Carnations are still rather short-stemmed and small. Roses are good, but not plentiful, the demand being greater than the supply. The best roses in this market are My Maryland. A few violets have made their appearance, but are still small and do not keep well. Mums are showing the effect of the warm September and are soft and small.

The ever-ready demand for hardy ferns can now be well supplied. They are at their best and there are quantities of all varieties. The stock of Bostons is great and they all have a fresh, healthy appearance.

Various Notes.

Rice Bros., the wholesale florists, have outgrown their old Sixth street quarters, which they have occupied for a number of years, and are moving to their new place on Fifth street, where they will be abundantly able to care for the large business which they have established. They will be much better equipped, especially in their supply department, to meet the growing demand of the northwest.

James Souden, who recently accepted a position with J. J. Le Borious, of Duluth, is in Minneapolis, making arrangements to take his family back with him.

Wm. F. Holmes, formerly with the R. M. Chapman-Basting Co., has opened a flower store at 910 Nicollet avenue, and Mrs. Maizie, for many years with O. C. Swanson, has taken Mr. Holmes' place with the Chapman Co.

Miss Whitted reports a good week, with several weddings and some funeral work. W. F. H.

New Castle, Ind.—P. J. Lynch has been made a member of the Republican state central committee and will direct the campaign in this district as acting chairman.

Camden, N. J.—James P. Hill, well known Cooper street florist, recently married his deceased brother's widow. Oscar D. Hill was killed in a railroad accident while on his wedding tour a year and a half ago. A child was born of the marriage. The widow came to reside with her brother-in-law and he won her affections.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Trade conditions are highly satisfactory in general, and September closed with the best record in several years. The weather has become much cooler, with temperatures as low as 38 degrees at night, and frost is expected almost any time. Stock is rather on the scarce side, though mums are a little more plentiful. There are some good carnations, but more short-stemmed ones. Roses are good, but the cut has seemed to shorten up in the last few days. Beauties are rather scarce. There are still small lots of gladioli and asters coming in, with plenty of cattleyas and oncidiums for all demands.

Various Notes.

I am not at liberty to mention names, but there are several "kikes" who are ordering goods sent C. O. D. and are not able to lift them. If they succeed in getting them released, they are theirs; look out for them.

Albert T. Lorch & Co., the carnation specialists, will consign their immense output to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. for the season.

The McCallum brothers, who were injured in a collision some time ago, are still in the hospital, though both are getting along nicely. As there are no broken bones, the most serious trouble arises from the bruises received from being rolled about and run over by the front wheels of the auto, after they had been knocked off the motorcycle. They are to be congratulated that they still live.

The North Side park, where James Moore is foreman, has a fine display of Cattleya labiata and other orchids, which are attracting the attention of visitors, and his chrysanthemums for his show are looking quite promising. The general stock of stove plants also looks well.

Charles Hoffmeyer, of Carnegie, Pa., who is so busy looking after his growing business that the trade almost forgets what he looks like, was in the city last week. Except for some "rheumatics," he is the same old Charlie.

F. H. Westhoff, the carnation grower of Allison Park, is trying out a house of roses this year. He has been a success as a carnation grower and should do well with roses.

On Sunday night, September 29, we had the first frost this fall, and Monday was the coldest September day in twenty years.

A meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, October 1, with an exhibition of dahlias. There was some discussion regarding the advisability of appointing a publicity committee to create a greater public interest in flowers. President E. C. Ludwig manages to keep up a good deal of enthusiasm among the members and to secure a good attendance.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Auburn, N. Y.—Herbert M. Mills filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States Court here September 20, with liabilities of $7,689.81 and assets of $7,487.52. Of the liabilities, $5,825 is secured and $1,864.81 unsecured. His chief asset is real estate, property valued at $6,725 being scheduled. He has $250 worth of stock. All of his creditors in both classes are of Auburn.

Syracuse, N. Y.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against Henry Morris, florist, 210 East Genesee street, Syracuse, September 20, in the United States court at Utica by Tracy, Chapman & Tracy. The law firm represented the Sedgwick Farm Land Co., $500; the Mason-Henry Printing Co., $12.65, and William S. Orr, $2.45. The petition states that Morris is hopelessly insolvent and can not pay the debts. September 19 he signed a written admission to that effect, it is stated.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is on the increase and we are all in hopes that before long we shall be back in the good old rush of winter business. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and it will not be long before they are the queen of autumn. There is about the same quantity grown here this season as last and, by the outlook, most of them will be good. Carnations are more plentiful from day to day, but the stems are still quite short. Another week or two on them will put them in fine condition. White and pink are more plentiful than any others at present. Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Perfection and White Enchantress, with a few Victory and Beacon, are about the output. Roses, while they are better in quality, have been short at times. There is call for valley, as quite a few weddings are booked. Lilies have been scarce, as nearly all the growers seemed to have cut out at the same time. A few violets are coming in, but they are short-stemmed as yet.

Various Notes.

Guy H. Woodrow is still confined to his bed and the attending physician pronounced it a light case of typhoid. We are all in hopes he will soon be out again.

Robert Livingston has been laid up for several weeks with a bad case of malarial fever, but is reported somewhat better. J. M.

OUR MOTTO: WE BELIEVE.

We believe in American business methods; we believe and have faith in our customers; we believe that truth is an asset and that our word is as good as our bond; we believe that the best is none too good for our customers.

THIS ENDS OUR LIABILITY IN SELLING ONLY THE BEST.

Who? Godfrey Aschmann, the Araucaria King of Philadelphia. He and his Araucarias are more popular than pennies are with school children. No arguments needed to sell his goods; 25 years' experience in importing and shipping the Araucaria (his specialty) makes him the Araucaria King of all America. Now is the time to stock up your houses.

WHEN YOU BUY, IT PAYS TO BUY GOOD STUFF

Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, September 14, 1912.

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

See what one of our customers says, who bought $44.45 worth, Sept. 3, 1912:

Dear Sir: BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1912.

Your shipment of Palms, Plants and Ferns arrived in fine shape. I certainly am well pleased with all stock you sent me, and I will send you another order shortly.

S. W. BAKER, Billy the Florist, 93 Front St., Binghamton, N. Y.

CARNATIONS.

The following entirely unsolicited testimonial came to me with an order under date of Sept. 5, 1912:—"I want to say for the good of the trade and for your benefit, also, that your plants last year were the best I ever handled. I bought 2200 plants and did not lose one in the whole lot. You may use these few words above as you see fit, if of any benefit to you."—Wm. E. Mosher, New Bedford, Mass.

This man was pleased with his stock. My stock this year is as good and most of it better than last year. I personally dig all orders and guarantee satisfaction. About 30,000 plants left. Order early.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. These plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early, for which reason I quote the following low prices: Boston for 6-in., 20c. Whitmani compacta for 5 and 6-in., 25c. Cash or reference. See my classified carnation adv. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. One of many reports: "I had 3000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February and from then on were a sight; immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. E. Peckham, Norwich, Conn. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery in good condition guaranteed. Cash.
L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

Propagation.

Division of roots is the most common and the easiest way, and, I believe, the most satisfactory method of propagation. While fine blooms are often produced on plants grown from cuttings, such plants will not withstand a prolonged drought. Care must be taken that you have a good, healthy eye to each tuber. The size of the tuber is not of great importance.

larger eastern growers is grown from cuttings. It is a good way to increase your stock of any variety of which you are short, but the plants will require a great deal of watering in a dry season.

The dormant roots should be started about the first part of February and cuttings may be made as soon as the third set of leaves has formed. The cuttings should be placed in sand, where they will root in two to three weeks. They should have a bottom heat of about 60 degrees and the temperature of the house should be 5 to 10 degrees higher. The cuttings will root more quickly if the heat is greater, but the plants will not be as strong. Keep the sand moist. If cut just below the leaves, cutting will nearly always produce good tubers with plenty of eyes. If cut midway between joints, you may have a good plant growth above ground, but only a few stingy roots, which will not keep over winter.

Plants grown from cuttings usually produce better flowers, but not so many as those grown from divided roots.

Dahlias are also propagated by grafting and from seed. Seedlings do not come true and grafting is of no value to the florist.

Soil and Culture.

Dahlias will thrive in almost any ordinary soil. They do better, however, in a sandy loam, grow more dwarf, flower longer and produce better stems. Contrary to general belief, a highly manured soil is not good for dahlias, as it stimulates an excessive growth of foliage at the expense of the flowers. If the soil is not rich enough, an application of a solution of one part nitrate of soda to twelve parts of water may be made at the time the first flowers appear. If used too freely, the nitrate is liable to bleach the pinks and reds. Wood ashes and bone meal are good.

In the latitude of Des Moines dahlias should be planted from May 15 to June 15. They should be planted in rows about three to four feet apart, and about three feet apart in the rows. The ground should be plowed to a depth of eight or ten inches. Lay the tubers on their sides and cover about six inches. After the plant has made three to four sets of leaves, pinch off the top, which will cause a more bushy growth and do away with the necessity of staking. Keep the ground loose. Cultivate deeply until the buds appear; then draw the soil up around the plant to form a dust mulch and lay by. If you can do so, water freely during dry, hot weather, soaking thoroughly.

Probably the greatest pests the dahlia has to contend with are the white fly and the borer worm. The white fly is especially troublesome during dry spells. An occasional spraying with a nicotine extract will do away with this trouble. For the borer worm we have no remedy after it has taken up quarters in the stalk, except to cut it out and kill it. If you have been spraying with a nicotine solution it is not probable you will have much trouble with them.

Do not be afraid to cut bloom with long stems, though you may have to cut away a great many buds. The blooms will keep best if cut in the evening, also if much of the foliage be removed from the stems.

Digging and Storing.

After the frost has killed the tops, cut the stalks off a few inches above the ground. Dig the clumps, remove the soil from the roots and let them lie in the sun for an hour or so, just long enough to dry the surface; then store away. If your roots have been grown from cuttings they can usually be plowed up without injury. We have found it best, where we have large clumps, to have two men work opposite each other, digging with spading forks, as the tubers are not so liable to be broken off.

We have heard much complaint about dahlia clumps not keeping well over winter, and we have lost a great many ourselves. The most satisfactory method we have tried is to pack in barrels or boxes, placing the clumps upside down, so the somewhat acrid juice in the stalk may not run down and cause them to rot; then cover with moss to keep from drying out. The clumps should not be packed until they are dry. If there is damp soil clinging to them, or if the surface of tubers is wet, they are liable to rot. The barrels should be stored in a dry, cool cellar, free from frost.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE FUEL MARKET.

Coal men report that the car shortage has hampered all efforts to move the supply, which is in turn said to be far less than in other years. Consequently the market has advanced on all grades. While the operators have been short-handed at the mines for a long period, the car shortage was sighted some time ago and every argument was used to move the coal during the summer months and those who got caught can blame only themselves. As for prices, the limit on some grades of smokeless has been topped and some dealers are asking $1.60 for Pocahontas and are not overanxious to sell at that figure on account of the lack of means to make deliveries for some time yet. What the midwinter rush will bring in the way of even more advanced prices is uncertain, but the coal men say the cars will not be any too plentiful. Those coals other than the smokeless are also feeling the effects of the anthracite shortage and until the mines can be operated to the full capacity it is said that prices will continue to advance.

FROM STEAM TO HOT WATER.

I have a greenhouse 27x50 feet and fourteen feet to the ridge. The walls are four feet high, built of brick. The house is heated by steam. There are two 2-inch flows and two 2-inch returns, starting from the northeast corner and running around three sides of the house and back by the same route. The pipes are all under the side benches, as I use the center of the house for large palms. The boiler is six feet below the greenhouse. There are about 420 feet of 2-inch pipe in the house now and I want to change to hot water, using the same pipe. I need 55 degrees in zero weather, southern Indiana climate. Will you tell me how to pipe the house?

W. A. M.

The sketch shows the boiler at one corner of the house, with two 2-inch flow pipes running around three sides of the house and back to the boiler. This makes the pipes 250 feet long, which is far more than is necessary, although the amount of piping is only one-third what it should be to furnish a temperature of 55 degrees in zero weather.

A simple way of heating the house would be to put in a coil of six 2-inch pipes and run them around three sides of the house, and there connect them with a 3-inch pipe which should run directly to the boiler.

Another way would be to run a 2½-inch flow pipe along each wall on the plates. One flow should run across the farther end of the house. Underneath each flow pipe run five 2-inch returns. Connect the return coils with the boiler by means of 2½-inch mains.

A GENERAL PURPOSE HOUSE.

With material the workmen had left over from my larger house I am building a small house on my residence lot, to be devoted to general purposes. I am sending you a rough sketch of same, on which some questions are noted. I would appreciate it if you would let me know at once what you think of my calculations. Of course I had nothing to do with the calculations on the large house, as it was all done for me; hence you see I am green on the subject.

H. V.

The sketch shows a house 10½x18 feet, in which a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees is desired. There is also a coldframe six feet wide along one side. The house has about two feet of glass in each side wall and about one-half of each end is protected by a workroom. There is a Wilks boiler, 16x30 inches, with a 1½-inch tapping, located in a pit five feet deep.

The piping as proposed shows one 1½-inch overhead flow and twenty-six 1-inch returns. It would be far better to use one 2-inch flow and nine 1½-inch returns, connecting the coils with the boiler by means of a 2-inch return or two 1½-inch. While it would be better to have 2-inch tappings at the boiler, it will answer if a 2x1½-inch reducer is located close to the boiler.

To keep the coldframe at 50 degrees, run two 1½-inch pipes along the front and one at the back. Connect the end

IT STANDS TO REASON

That there are those coal shippers who will and actually are taking advantage of the present shortage of coal cars and the scarcity of mine laborers to make a sharp boost in prices, placing the price far above the real value of the coal itself. They ask you "to feed the kitty"—to satisfy their desire to rake in huge profits on the "get-rich-quick" plan. Furthermore, they get away with it—at times.

We Want Your Business—but—we are satisfied with a fair margin of profit and are content to let others bite prices and conduct their business on a boot-legging basis. We are ready to figure with any greenhouse buyer, whether he wants shipments now or later. Our prices are based on the cost of production—not what we think a customer can be held up for. Our idea is to secure your business now and by fair treatment and prompt shipments hold it and have it 10 years hence. We handle all grades of greenhouse coal and have a big supply of bituminous stock for quick delivery. Write today for prices on any grade—whatever you need or may need.

of the main flow pipe with these returns by means of a 1½-inch pipe.

In case the temperature desired in the main house is only 50 degrees, place valves on four of the return pipes, wherever convenient. If for any reason the use of 1-inch returns is preferred, a generator should be connected with the expansion tank, and the flow should be given a slight fall in all cases. Thirteen returns would suffice for 55 to 60 degrees. Natural gas could be used for fuel.

PIPING AN OHIO RANGE.

Can you give me any information on how to heat my greenhouses with steam? Beginning at the south side of the range, the houses are as follows: A lettuce house, 12x50; then a carnation house, 15x40, with a rose house, 15x15, at the west end of the carnation house; then, at the north side of the range, a begonia house, 10x30, with the boiler room at its east end and the potting room at its west end. The houses are all connected.

All the pipes are to be under the benches, except in the lettuce house, where they will be on the sides. All the houses are five feet high to the eaves, with glass in the gables and two feet of glass in the sides, with the exception of the north wall. I shall use 1½-inch pipe and I wish to carry ten pounds of steam. The outside temperature in this part of Ohio seldom falls lower than 10 degrees below zero. I have a cast-iron boiler, rated for 700 square feet. Will it heat all the houses?

J. E. S.

It will be well to run a 2½-inch flow pipe from the boiler to the middle of the east end of the carnation house, where a 1½-inch flow should be taken off for that house and the main continued as a 1½-inch flow to supply the lettuce house. To supply the begonia and rose houses, a 2½-inch flow should be carried overhead in the begonia house and, after being reduced to 1½-inch, should be continued through the rose house to the south end.

In addition to the overhead flow pipes in each of the houses, the following returns will be required: For the lettuce house use four 1½-inch; in the carnation house use four returns; for the begonia house four returns will be sufficient; the rose house will require six 1½-inch returns, in addition to the 1½-inch flow pipe which passes through each house under the ridge. A boiler of the size mentioned should be amply large to heat the houses.

HOT WATER OR STEAM.

I expect to erect a greenhouse 28x125 near a river. On account of striking water, I can not dig deeper than four feet for the boiler pit. Is it possible, with this depth for the pit, to put in a hot water system? If not, is steam heating practical for this size of greenhouse? The location is southern Wisconsin.

H. W. W.

While a deeper boiler pit would be desirable, a good circulation can be secured with hot water, under the conditions named, by using overhead flow pipes and keeping the returns as high as possible.

The temperature desired is not given, but for 60 degrees five 2½-inch flow pipes and thirteen 2-inch returns should be used. For 50 degrees put in three flows and ten returns. In case there is glass in the side walls, use an additional return for each two feet of glass. Run one flow pipe on each plate and one under the ridge. If five flows are put in, the others should be under the purlins.

twenty feet) to the farther end of the house, where they should be connected with the return coils.

Except when a steam pump, trap or similar arrangement is used, it is necessary to have steam coils from two to four feet above the water level of the boiler, and for small plants it is desirable to use a gravity system. For this reason hot water will be preferable to steam in the house described.

PIPING IN SOUTHERN TEXAS.

Kindly inform me how many square feet of greenhouse space I can heat, with the boiler I propose to install, to a temperature of about 60 degrees when the outside temperature is as low as 20 degrees above zero, which is about the minimum here, in southern Texas. I intend to put in about a fifty horsepower, horizontal steam boiler, but will use it for hot water, piping each of my houses with one 2-inch supply and eight 2-inch return pipes. I have two houses at present, one of them 23x180 and twelve feet to the ridge, the other 35x100 and fifteen feet to the ridge. I shall place my boiler so that the bottom of it will be about eight feet below the floor of the greenhouses.

Which is more detrimental, to keep a boiler filled with water during the summer months, or to drain it? Are reinforced concrete smokestacks as durable as iron or brick ones? C. H.

A good deal depends upon the quality of brick used in a chimney, as well as upon the character of the concrete, but ordinarily a properly constructed, reinforced concrete chimney will be many times more durable than an iron chimney or even a brick one. It is better to leave the water in a boiler during the summer, than to drain it.

Under the conditions mentioned, a fifty horse-power boiler should heat about 10,000 square feet of glass to 60 degrees. The radiation which it is proposed to use is about right so far as area is concerned, but unless run under pressure there should be a considerable increase in the number and size of the flow pipes, as a 2-inch flow pipe will not heat much more than 1,000 square feet of glass. For the house twenty-three feet wide, three 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns should be

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

ORDER YOUR Kroeschell Boiler

Do You Want True Heating Values?

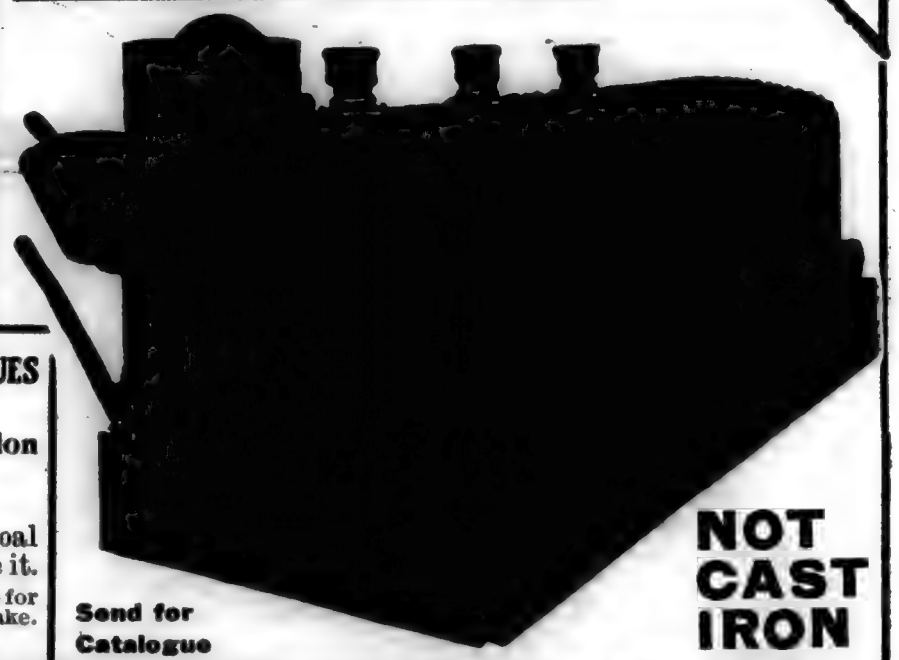
Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and during the past cold winter have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating, etc., etc.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell boiler and you will never be disappointed.

It's the cheapest and best in the end.

The KROESCHELL BOILER has the Highest Standard of HEATING VALUES



Immense Self-cleaning Heating Surface
Longest Fire Travel—Perfect Combustion—Free Circulation
Thin Waterways—Safety—Durability—Economy
Kroeschell Boiler Ratings Are Guaranteed

The Kroeschell boiler will develop more heat per pound of coal consumed than any other boiler on the market, and we do prove it.

Read what our customers say about our boilers and be convinced. What we do for them we can do for you. Take our advice on boilers and you will make no mistake.

NOT CAST IRON

Kroeschell vs Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boilers break down twice in four years; Moral: Use Kroeschell Boilers--they are safe

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years—always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 Kroeschell Boilers and do not worry about their breaking down. GRANT NEWPORT, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

The floral court at the fair never looked more attractive than on the occasion of the big event of September 24 to 27. Frank Shorer, who had charge of this department, deserves great credit for the admirable way in which he had everything arranged. Dahlias were shown in large numbers. J. K. Alexander was the largest contributor. Geo. H. Walker, Dighton, Mass., and the Manchester Dahlia Gardens also showed extensive collections. E. A. Carson, of Rochester, and H. E. Meader had a nip-and-tuck contest in the designs, pot plants and many cut flower classes, both showing splendidly.

H. E. Meader showed one of the grandest displays of gladioli I have seen this season. All his spikes were remarkably fine. Most of the really good novelties and many standard varieties, including some fine seedlings, were included. Mr. Meader's collection was fit to compete at the Boston and other big shows and would render a good account of itself. W. N. Craig, North Easton, Mass., judged the floral department. James M. Hayes, the courteous assistant secretary of the Rochester fair, is a keen horticulturist. His specialties are asters, pansies and tomatoes. Of these he sells large quantities at his own establishment. C.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

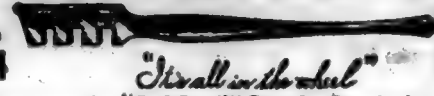
JEWETT CITY, CONN.



The new greenhouse which A. A. Young has been building this summer is completed, and contains 8,000 new carnation plants in fine condition, ready for the coming season. The new house, which has a steel frame throughout, with concrete sides and beds, is 40x208 feet. In the roof and sides there is 10,000 square feet of glass. This house was placed exactly on end with another large house, making now the main house, which is 40x325 feet. In this one house there are 15,000 plants, which, with those in the other, smaller houses, make the aggregate of 30,000 carnation plants.

In order to place the new house so as to combine it directly with the other large one, a house 20x120 had to be moved fifty feet back and fifty feet sidewise. This house has been built twenty years, the frame being of cypress. Mr. Young conceived the plan of cutting it in half, thus making two 60-foot sections. Then by means of a cradle, which was built under the house, F. H. Gilbert accomplished the feat of moving it 100 feet without cracking a single pane of glass. This house is devoted to miscellaneous flowers, including Easter lilies, sweet peas, callas, asters, gladioli, chrysanthemums and decorative asparagus.

Mr. Young's place now totals 30,000 feet of glass. He is growing thirteen varieties of carnations: White Wonder, White Perfection, Queen, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Winona, Lawson, Winsor, May Day, Crimson Glow, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Beacon and Gloriosa. He has an elaborate system of feeding the plants, the fertilizer being all applied in liquid form and pumped from mixing vats in the boiler room.

Bridgeport, Conn.—C. M. Pflomm has started work on an iron frame greenhouse at 1067 Central avenue.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.

The new greenhouses of J. F. Wilcox & Sons have become one of the show places of the vicinity. The pair of houses are 1,000 feet long, the longest houses in the west, and many florists are visiting them. In addition, the public marvels at their size and many who are flower buyers motor to the new houses merely to satisfy their curiosity regarding a cut flower farm under glass.

It was six years ago that Herman Bros. Co., Ninth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, began growing cut flowers. They started with three houses, but the business has grown so rapidly that the range now contains more than 150,000 square feet of glass. Roses, carnations and chrysanthemums are the principal crops. The company has a retail store in town, where a prosperous business is done, in addition to some wholesale trade. O. H. Herman has charge of the greenhouses. Fred Herman and three sisters, Louise and Pauline Herman and Mrs. John Gardner, are the other members of the company.

F. L. Lainson, on Canning street, is having an excellent season. His business has developed rapidly and he now has two large ranges of glass in first-class shape, with a large and handsome home standing between the two sections of his plant.

L. H. Reams is looking forward to a big season in greenhouse vegetables. He started in the business five years ago with only 12,000 square feet of glass, but now has 125,000 feet. The general prosperity in the west is counted on to give him a big business year.

Plymouth, Mass.—While operating the delivery car of the Stevens flower store, September 19, Alton Stevens was in collision with a man on a bicycle. They rushed the bicyclist to the hospital, but it was found he was not seriously hurt.

Lawrence, Kan.—The Kline Floral Co., which purchased the Luther greenhouses a year ago, has opened a retail store at 811 Massachusetts avenue, in the room with the Pierce Music Co. A handsome refrigerator has been put in and the fixtures are all in white enamel.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

Bloomington, Ill.—John R. Gee has overhauled his heating apparatus and put his place in good shape for winter.

Ayer, Mass.—George E. Felch is just completing an addition to the greenhouse he built last year The original house was 16x55. It now is 16x100.

Alton, Ill.—In a runaway September 25 Joseph Krug, 75 years of age, was thrown from his buggy against a telephone pole. He was unconscious an hour before he was found by his son, Aloysius Krug.

Bessemer, Ala.—Mrs. W. D. Brown is adding another greenhouse to her establishment, which she calls the Colonial Greenhouses. Business has been excellent, asters having been an unusually profitable crop this summer, and prospects for the winter are fine.

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Have you a Garland Trussed Iron Frame House? Have you ever investigated them? Here is what Mr. Irving Dunford, of North Olmsted, Ohio, says in his letter of July 20th:

"Under separate cover, I am sending you a picture of my new greenhouse which I promised to send you. THAT GREENHOUSE HAS DOUBLED MY BUSINESS THIS SPRING."

On July 30th we received his order for another iron-frame house. Why? Because he had investigated and tried our houses out. Write him and see what he has to say Do not delay your investigation. Write us today for information.

PATENT IRON GUTTER

One of the features of this gutter is that it can be put up in wrought iron, any lengths (without boring holes), by bolting the gutter together and screwing clip to the roof-bars for any size glass.

The above is only one of the many latest and up-to-date materials we have. Get our prices on Greenhouse Louisiana Cypress material, heating, ventilating, bench materials, hotbed sash, etc.

Some Construction Parts

Pick out any of the construction parts shown here—write us the number letter, and we will give you a price that will interest you.

A. Angle Eave Roof Bar Bracket, wrought iron post and post fitting, equipped with side ventilating.
B. Same as A with solid glazing.
C. Sill detail for double-boarded sides.
D. Base board detail for double-boarded sides.
E. Branch column strut detail when attached to angle purlin. The Grip Tight Column Fitting is bolted to the purlin, and the column strut, the bolts passing directly through these members.
E1. Ridge detail with column cap fitting for center column.
E2. Double Strut with "Grip Tight," Bolted Through, Strut Fittings for Branch Columns.
(M shows a Friction Clamp Type of Fitting. Not as efficient as the "Grip Tight," as they depend entirely on friction to prevent their slipping.)
G. Cast Iron Adjustable Foot Piece for columns.
H. "Hang Fast" Column Fitting for angle purlins. It is adjustable for different roof pitches.
I. Cypress Eave with boarded sides.
J. Cypress Eave with hinged sash.
K. Cypress Eave with solid glazing.
L. Ridge detail. The ridge and cap are "cut in" to take vent sash, making a weather-tight joint.
M. Double Strut Friction Clamp Fittings, not bolted through.
N. All cypress side gutter.
O. All cypress center gutter.
P. Same as H, only adjusted to sharper pitch.
S. Angle Iron Plate, with roof bracket attached, used with 3x4 wooden post.

OUR RIBBONS ON THE MIKADO WREATH

¶With justifiable pride we inform the Florists of America that the Ribbons used on the Wreath presented by Secretary of State Knox, on behalf of the United States Government, at the funeral of the Mikado of Japan, were furnished by the National Floral Ribbon House. This is but another evidence of the high standard of our goods. Whether used for Royalty or Ordinary Citizen, there are none better to be obtained. Newspapers throughout the world described the beautiful floral piece mentioned above.

¶Below is shown a cut of the Wreath, also a letter from the well-known florist who is entitled to great credit for the artistic skill displayed in designing this Celebrated Wreath.

This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

THE ART OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

INTRODUCING THE SERIES.

What Is Art?

There is at the present time a great deal of discussion on the "art" of floral arrangements. We hear and read many varied opinions on the subject and believe that a little free and open talk and some practical demonstrations of the theory of design making will be of material assistance to many of those in the trade who are making a real effort to master the principles of floral arrangement and become masters of their craft.

Let us first of all try to analyze the subject and bring "art" to the understanding of all of us; let us simplify, so that shorn of its technicalities we may see and recognize art when we meet it.

What is art?

Art is the making of a pleasing final of design.

So we must ask one more question: What is design, or designing?

Design may be defined as space, and art in designing is concerned with the breaking up of space into pleasing parts, that vary in material, tone and color.

The Review takes pleasure in announcing that it has arranged with Fred C. W. Brown, whose lecture with the stereopticon was the big hit of the Chicago convention, for a series of illustrated articles on design making. The second article will appear next week.

There is a prevailing impression that one must be educated to an appreciation, to an understanding of art. Then let us further define our subject.

Art is simplicity, balanced proportion, and harmony of coloring.

The school of art will teach you a scientific method of producing a pleasing eye picture, but to possess the faculty of appreciation of art it is not necessary to study its theories.

Art is simplicity, therefore it does not tax the mind.

Art is balanced proportion, therefore it is pleasing to the eye.

That which is artistic is harmonious. Therefore art is soothing to our senses.

Simplicity.

Our first illustration is of a wreath. I have chosen the wreath because of its simplicity. Art is simplicity. We have covered our design with a massed effect, using carnations, and have retained the original design in its most simple form, by adhering as closely as possible to the symmetrical lines of its accurate proportion.

It is necessary to enrich this design, so we must add to our foundation, as the plain wreath is not sufficiently attractive. To gain a greater attraction we must have opposition, for opposition creates attraction.

It is necessary that we clearly understand this principle, so in the second illustration you will see our opposition in the form of ribbon ends.

The Point of Opposition.

Now, if you will stop for a moment, and reason, you will realize that at the point of greatest opposition you will find the greatest interest. So we find our point of greatest opposition at the meeting place of the ribbon ends and the main body of the wreath. Therefore, this being the center of interest, we have placed here our interesting subject of ribbon bow.

We created this point of interest and have qualified it, so our finished wreath tells the story of a wreath of carnations with a bow of ribbon attached.

The story is simple and surely does not need explanation, argument or persuasion to convey its meaning.

The Plain Wreath of Carnations. The Same Wreath Provided with a Center of Attraction.

Illustrating the Simple Methods by Which Artistic Results Are Secured in Arranging Flowers.

You do not need to even read to answer the question of its identity.

There has been the principle of art in all its construction. First, the wreath of pleasing proportion; then, the increased interest which we created by our opposition of ribbon ends, and the qualifying of that point of interest by our bow of ribbon. You will notice that the principle of reason has been employed in all the construction of the wreath and in the placing of the ribbon. So in all your work use reason and be reasonable, always keeping prominently before your mind that while art can not limit you, simplicity is the keynote of success.

Applying the Principles.

We will try to embody these principles in a series of illustrated articles to follow, and trust that the worker with cut flowers who would "leave the educating to the other fellow" will read, and realize that he will gain in prestige and material wealth by conforming to the "only way"—the way of art, the way that is embodied in all successful work, even though it be done unconsciously. Fred C. W. Brown.

condemned, not flowers, but what some of them were pleased to call the ostentation with which they sometimes are used. George R. Clark replied, showing the point of view of the public and the florists, setting the clergy right on one or two points, for it seems that many of them thought the flowers were bought by the family of the deceased instead of being, as all florists know, usually the sympathetic offerings of friends, none of whom miss the comparatively small sum expended.

The Review does not believe that there is any menace to the trade in the occasional outcry against flowers at funerals. The use of flowers is prompted by a sentiment too strong to be thrust aside at the mere say-so of the more or less hidebound parties who are back of the periodical outcries.

OPPORTUNITIES.

This is from Albert Pochelon, of L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, who recently was elected secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, the Retailers' Section of the S. A. F., and who has entered enthusiastically on his duties:

"Any up-to-date florist who has a mercantile training, by just studying for a short while, can see that there is a big field of business which we are not getting as yet, when we consider the number of American travelers in Europe, also the great number of people who have relatives in this country, or vice versa. It is not only for occasions of funerals that flowers are used; it is not always necessary to order flowers by telegraph or cable. There are at least fifty different occasions for which flowers are wanted and, rest assured, if our flower buyers are once a little more educated to the more modern and right up-to-date methods of handling the florists' business, there is no telling how large a business between florists in different cities can be worked up. On the other hand, even if we do get that far we have not accomplished any more than many other mercantile institutions have that are still improving. I will say that the florists' business has made rapid strides, but not quite as rapid as a great many other lines of business."

ADVERTISING.

The man who says advertising doesn't pay usually is the same one who doesn't trouble himself about circulation when buying space.

An advertisement looks the same in a paper of 1,000 circulation as it does in a paper of 2,000 circulation, but it doesn't pull the same.

Not long since the post-office "pinched" a "publisher" who was printing just enough copies to have one for each advertiser—but he claimed a circulation "at least as big as" the other fellow's.

Some of the standard magazines are so firmly convinced that exaggeration in advertising is bad business that they will not permit advertisers to use the word "best" in their copy.

Yes, much money is lost in advertising—but not by the man who picks out the paper of largest circulation among the kind of people he wants to reach, and sticks to it. The paper of largest circulation always is the one carrying the most of your kind of advertising.

A Standing Wreath of Croton Foliage.

WREATH OF CROTONS.

The illustration of the standing wreath shows the rich effects that can be produced with croton foliage. The wreath is made entirely of crotons of many varieties, with two Cocos Weddelliana. It was sent by the Robert Craig Co. to the funeral of the late George T. Carpenter, September 28, 1912. It was greatly admired.

A MEMORIAL WREATH.

The illustration on page 11 is reproduced from a photograph made at Grand Forks, N. D., showing a wreath five feet high, on easel, made by the Wickler Floral Co. J. Wickler writes:

"This is a wreath we made for the local Salvation Army Corps for their memorial services in honor of the late General Booth; the illustration will show the General's picture quite plainly. The wreath had been carried in a parade from the Army hall to the Grand theater, and, after the services, again carried around town before the photograph was taken; hence the arrangement of the flowers and foliage suffered more or less. We used asters principally, a sprinkling of sweet peas and at the bottom a few sprays of hydrangea blooms. Color effects, not shown in the picture, were obtained by using coleus foliage. The flowers were all the way from deep purple through every shade through lavender to white."

FLOWERS AT FUNERALS.

The Ministerial Association of Scranton, Pa., has been discussing the subject of flowers at funerals and recently one of the local papers printed interviews with a number of clergymen who

STOPPING THE PAPER.

I notice Review readers ask for advice on all sorts of subjects and I should like a little information on the following: About seventeen months ago I subscribed for a certain publication, paying for a year in advance. I did not notice when the year was up, for the paper kept on coming and no bill was sent. Now, however, when I am a ways in the second year, I have received a bill for the full year. Must I pay it? I don't want the paper and wouldn't have subscribed again had I been asked. But I am told a paper can collect such bills. What shall I do?

F. M.

In the matter of collecting bills a publisher has the same rights as anyone else; no more and no less. If you get a weekly delivery of coal from a dealer, you are due to pay the bill as long as you accept the coal.

Nowadays publishers of worth-while papers stop mailing when the time paid for has expired. To do otherwise is to confess a doubt as to whether a renewal would be forthcoming if the subscriber knew the situation.

The thing for you to do each time it arrives is to write "Refused" on the wrapper and hand the paper back to the mail carrier. It is done so often in such cases that the post-office has a supply of printed cards to use and it is the duty of the mail carrier to send one of these cards to the publisher, telling him to stop mailing the paper. If the publisher sends a bill for the part of a year, you should pay it, just as you should pay for any other merchandise you accept when delivery is offered. But if he does not send a bill you need not let your conscience disturb you.

WINTERING IN FRAMES.

Could I winter gaillardia, delphinium and achillea seedlings in a coldframe?

G. F.

Gaillardia, delphinium and achillea seedlings will winter finely in a coldframe. Give them a coating of dry leaves, once the soil is well frozen about them. Then place sashes over them. Air out during mild spells.

C. W.

SEEMS TO BE A MISNOMER.

Kindly explain to me what is the meaning of the word nanus. I have asked several of the florists here and they say they do not know; so by answering me in The Review you will undoubtedly enlighten many. I have on several occasions sent for Asparagus plumosus nanus, also for Asparagus plumosus, and have specified that I wanted nothing but the climber, yet nothing comes but the 1-foot or 2-foot height. The soil has nothing to do with preventing them from growing, as I have about 300 climbers that are planted in the same soil, out in the open ground, and though they are cut down to the ground every year, they come up in the spring and climb twelve to fourteen feet next year.

A. W.

The word nanus signifies dwarf, but in the case of Asparagus plumosus nanus the term seems to be a misnomer. It is A. plumosus nanus that is mostly grown for cutting by florists, and this variety frequently grows from ten to twelve feet in a season after the plants are well established, but such vigorous growth is seldom seen before the plants are three years old.

The chief distinction between A. plumosus and the nanus variety is found in the fact that the latter has branches that are more thickly covered with foliage, and are flatter than those of the original species.

GODFREY CALLAS.

Will you please tell us what treatment to give our Godfrey callas? We put them just one in a 6-inch pot and set the pots in the ground to the rim. We kept them growing all summer and they made splendid growth, but now each one is surrounded by ten to fifteen little plants. What shall we do with them? Can they bloom satisfactorily with all those little plants in the 6-inch pots? If not, how shall we get them out? If we turn the pots upside down and dump the plants out we can separate them and put the little plants in other pots, but would that not affect the big plants so as to retard the blooming? We want them to bloom this winter, not in May and June, as they did this year. Please answer as soon as possible, as we do not want to make a mistake in their treatment this year.

L. M. S. & C.

Your treatment of the callas has been a little different from the ordinary method. Where these were rested and allowed to become perfectly dry, it is a simple and easy matter to separate these little bulblets and plant them in pans or small pots. It is really surprising what small plants of this calla will flower. Some of ours bloomed in 3-inch pots last winter. It would be difficult to detach these growing bulblets with roots intact without in some measure hurting the older plant. The better plan, therefore, would be to reduce their numbers by simply cutting or pulling them out, leaving three of the best in each pot to grow. We have found that by planting three in a 6-inch pot and the same number in an 8-inch pot when stronger, and removing all side growths, we get fine results from the Godfrey. Feed regularly and give a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees.

C. W.

You do not need to even read to answer the question of its identity.

There has been the principle of art in all its construction. First, the wreath of pleasing proportion; then, the increased interest which we created by our opposition of ribbon ends, and the qualifying of that point of interest by our bow of ribbon. You will notice that the principle of reason has been employed in all the construction of the wreath and in the placing of the ribbon. So in all your work use reason and be reasonable, always keeping prominently before your mind that while art can not limit you, simplicity is the keynote of success.

Applying the Principles.

We will try to embody these principles in a series of illustrated articles to follow, and trust that the worker with cut flowers who would "leave the educating to the other fellow" will read, and realize that he will gain in prestige and material wealth by conforming to the "only way"—the way of art, the way that is embodied in all successful work, even though it be done unconsciously. Fred C. W. Brown.

condemned, not flowers, but what some of them were pleased to call the ostentation with which they sometimes are used. George R. Clark replied, showing the point of view of the public and the florists, setting the clergy right on one or two points, for it seems that many of them thought the flowers were bought by the family of the deceased instead of being, as all florists know, usually the sympathetic offerings of friends, none of whom miss the comparatively small sum expended.

The Review does not believe that there is any menace to the trade in the occasional outcry against flowers at funerals. The use of flowers is prompted by a sentiment too strong to be thrust aside at the mere say-so of the more or less hidebound parties who are back of the periodical outcries.

OPPORTUNITIES.

This is from Albert Pochelon, of L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, who recently was elected secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, the Retailers' Section of the S. A. F., and who has entered enthusiastically on his duties:

A Standing Wreath of Croton Foliage.

FLOWERS AT FUNERALS.

The Ministerial Association of Scranton, Pa., has been discussing the subject of flowers at funerals and recently one of the local papers printed interviews with a number of clergymen who

"Any up-to-date florist who has a mercantile training, by just studying for a short while, can see that there is a big field of business which we are not getting as yet, when we consider the number of American travelers in Europe, also the great number of people who have relatives in this country or vice versa. It is not only for occasions of funerals that flowers are used it is not always necessary to order flowers by telegraph or cable. There are at least fifty different occasions for which flowers are wanted and, rest assured, if our flower buyers are once a little more educated to the more modern and right up-to-date methods of handling the florists' business, there is no telling how large a business between florists in different cities can be worked up. On the other hand, even if we do get that far we have not accomplished any more than many other mercantile institutions have that are still improving. I will say that the florists' business has made rapid strides, but not quite as rapid as a great many other lines of business."

ADVERTISING.

The man who says advertising doesn't pay usually is the same one who doesn't trouble himself about circulation when buying space.

An advertisement looks the same in a paper of 1,000 circulation as it does in a paper of 2,000 circulation, but it doesn't pull the same.

Not long since the post-office "pinched" a "publisher" who was printing just enough copies to have one for each advertiser—but he claimed a circulation "at least as big as" the other fellow's.

Some of the standard magazines are so firmly convinced that exaggeration in advertising is bad business that they will not permit advertisers to use the word "best" in their copy.

Yes, much money is lost in advertising—but not by the man who picks out the paper of largest circulation among the kind of people he wants to reach, and sticks to it. The paper of largest circulation always is the one carrying the most of your kind of advertising.

WREATH OF CROTONS.

The illustration of the standing wreath shows the rich effects that can be produced with croton foliage. The wreath is made entirely of crotons of many varieties, with two Cocos Weddelliana. It was sent by the Robert Craig Co. to the funeral of the late George T. Carpenter, September 28, 1912. It was greatly admired.

A MEMORIAL WREATH.

The illustration on page 11 is reproduced from a photograph made at Grand Forks, N. D., showing a wreath five feet high, on easel, made by the Wickler Flora' Co. J. Wickler writes:

"This is a wreath we made for the local Salvation Army Corps for the memorial services in honor of the late General Booth; the illustration will show the General's picture quite plainly. The wreath had been carried in a parade from the Army hall to the Grand theater, and, after the services, again carried around town before the photograph was taken; hence the arrangement of the flowers and foliage suffered more or less. We used asters principally, a sprinkling of sweet peas and at the bottom a few sprays of hydrangea blooms. Color effects, not shown in the picture, were obtained by using coleus foliage. The flowers were all the way from deep purple through every shade through lavender to white."

STOPPING THE PAPER.

I notice Review readers ask for advice on all sorts of subjects and I would like a little information on the following: About seventeen months ago I subscribed for a certain publication, paying for a year in advance. I did not notice when the year was up, for the paper kept on coming and no bill was sent. Now, however, when I am a ways in the second year, I have received a bill for the full year. Must I pay it? I don't want the paper and wouldn't have subscribed again had I been asked. But I am told a paper can collect such bills. What shall I do?

F. M.

In the matter of collecting bills a publisher has the same rights as anyone else; no more and no less. If you get a weekly delivery of coal from a dealer, you are due to pay the bill as long as you accept the coal.

Nowadays publishers of worth-while papers stop mailing when the time paid for has expired. To do otherwise is to confess a doubt as to whether a renewal would be forthcoming if the subscriber knew the situation.

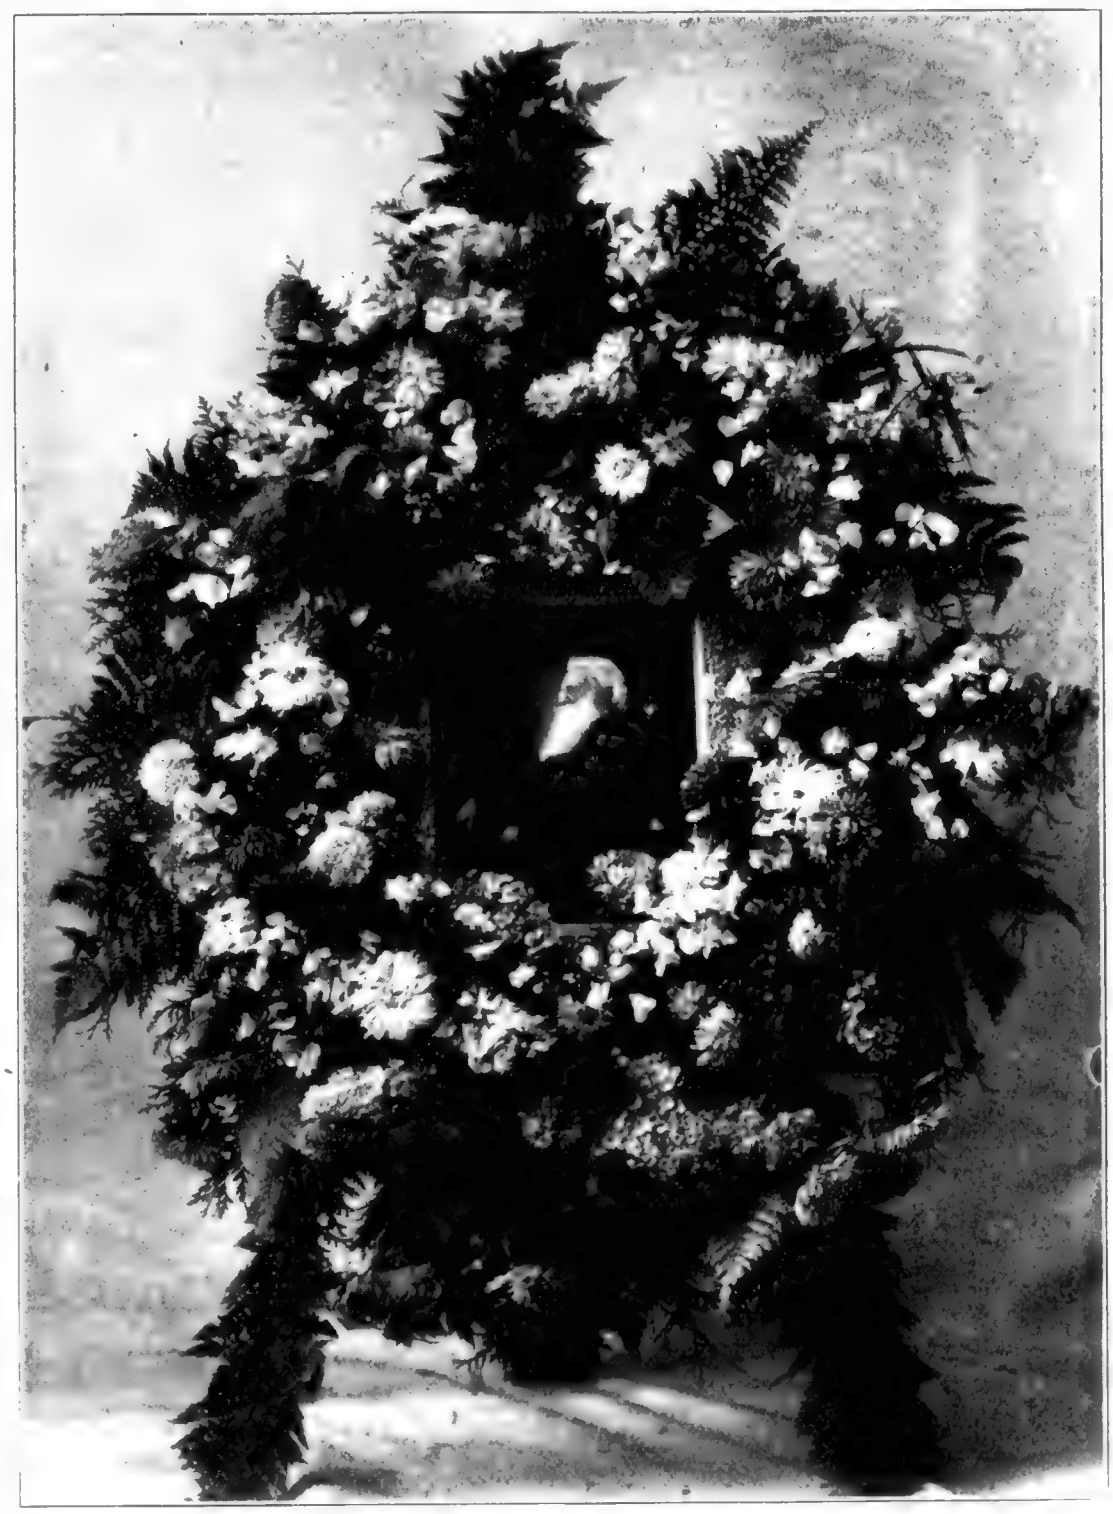
The thing for you to do each time it arrives is to write "Refused" on the wrapper and hand the paper back to the mail carrier. It is done so often in such cases that the post-office has a supply of printed cards to use and it is the duty of the mail carrier to send one of these cards to the publisher, telling him to stop mailing the paper. If the publisher sends a bill for the part of a year, you should pay it, just as you should pay for any other merchandise you accept when delivery is offered. But if he does not send a bill you need not let your conscience disturb you.

WINTERING IN FRAMES.

Could I winter gaillardia, delphinium and achillea seedlings in a coldframe?

G. F.

Gaillardia, delphinium and achillea seedlings will winter finely in a coldframe. Give them a coating of dry leaves, once the soil is well frozen about them. Then place sashes over them. Air out during mild spells.



C. W.

SEEMS TO BE A MISNOMER.

Kindly explain to me what is the meaning of the word nanus. I have asked several of the florists here and they say they do not know; so by answering me in The Review you will undoubtedly enlighten many. I have on several occasions sent for Asparagus plumosus nanus, also for Asparagus plumosus, and have specified that I wanted nothing but the climber, yet nothing comes but the 1-foot or 2-foot height. The soil has nothing to do with preventing them from growing, as I have about 300 climbers that are planted in the same soil, out in the open ground, and though they are cut down to the ground every year, they come up in the spring and climb twelve to fourteen feet next year. A. W.

The word nanus signifies dwarf, but in the case of Asparagus plumosus nanus the term seems to be a misnomer. It is A. plumosus nanus that is mostly grown for cutting by florists, and this variety frequently grows from ten to twelve feet in a season after the plants are well established, but such vigorous growth is seldom seen before the plants are three years old.

The chief distinction between A. plumosus and the nanus variety is found in the fact that the latter has branches that are more thickly covered with foliage, and are flatter than those of the original species. W. H. T.

GODFREY CALLAS.

Will you please tell us what treatment to give our Godfrey callas? We put them just one in a 6-inch pot and set the pots in the ground to the rim. We kept them growing all summer and they made splendid growth, but now each one is surrounded by ten to fifteen little plants. What shall we do with them? Can they bloom satisfactorily with all those little plants in the 6-inch pots? If not, how shall we get them out? If we turn the pots upside down and dump the plants out we can separate them and put the little plants in other pots, but would that not affect the big plants so as to retard the blooming? We want them to bloom this winter, not in May and June, as they did this year. Please answer as soon as possible, as we do not want to make a mistake in their treatment this year. L. M. S. & C.

Your treatment of the callas has been a little different from the ordinary method. Where these were rested and allowed to become perfectly dry, it is a simple and easy matter to separate these little bulblets and plant them in pans or small pots. It is really surprising what small plants of this calla will flower. Some of ours bloomed in 3-inch pots last winter. It would be difficult to detach these growing bulblets with roots intact without in some measure hurting the older plant. The better plan, therefore, would be to reduce their numbers by simply cutting or pulling them out, leaving three of the best in each pot to grow. We have found that by planting three in a 6-inch pot and the same number in an 8-inch pot when stronger, and removing all side growths, we get fine results from the Godfrey. Feed regularly and give a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. C. W.

CARNATIONS

SPOT DISEASE.

I am sending you a carnation plant and should like to know why the shoots are dying and what is a good remedy. I sprinkled lime on the bed and some of it got on my plants. Would that cause the trouble? A. J. S.

Your plants are affected by one of the spot diseases, apparently the same one that gave so much trouble on the Mrs. Lawson variety a few years ago. I would suggest that you go over the plants, carefully cutting out all the diseased shoots. Then spray heavily with Bordeaux mixture twice a week for two or three weeks, and then once each week for a time, until you see that you are getting the upper hand. Wash the Bordeaux off each time before putting on the next application. The lime you sprinkled on the benches could have only a beneficial effect on the diseased plants. A. F. J. B.

IN NEBRASKA.

The accompanying illustration shows the new house recently completed by Charles Winkler, of Hastings, Neb., who planted it in July with 5,000 carnations and already is getting a good cut. Mr. Winkler and his men did all the work of erection on the house. The material was supplied by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, including iron gutters and pipe-frame benches, and the erection was done by the greenhouse employees.

Mr. Winkler recently purchased two lots just west of the post-office, on which he is erecting a building for a retail store. A new 6-story hotel is being built on the opposite corner. Mr. Winkler paid $6,000 for the site, and within one hour was offered $7,000 for his bargain, but he refused to sell. He intends to make the place his permanent retail headquarters.

WHEN TO STOP PINCHING.

Will you please tell me when to stop pinching carnations back on strong plants, to have them in crop in December? W. B. F.

To be able to tell you just when to stop pinching carnations to get them into crop at a certain time, one would need to know how you pinch. At this time of the year it takes from six to eight weeks from the time the bud appears until the developed bloom can be cut. The time will vary somewhat according to variety and weather conditions. The time required for a new break to progress to the budding stage will also vary according to the variety and the weather conditions, as well as the general condition of your plants.

Growers do not always agree on what constitutes pinching, and for that reason it is not always safe to use the word without qualifying it. What we understand by pinching is to remove the top from a shoot which has begun to run up, but does not yet show a bud. This we frequently do during the first few weeks after the plants are benched, but never later than September 1. After that time we merely remove the buds we do not wish to bloom, taking off the stem to where we want the breaks to come for the next crop. This method tends to promote a steady cut through the season, and we are able to work closer to the time we want to begin cutting blooms. A. F. J. B.

STEM-ROT AND STIGMONOSE.

Can you tell me what ails my carnations? We never had a finer lot of plants, but I am afraid we are going to lose the whole bench. Some of the plants, from which we are cutting blooms and which seem to be in first-class, healthy condition, die and wither away like hay in twenty-four hours. The enclosed cuttings are from one plant which is dying. The plants die in patches of six to ten. A. C.

Your trouble is unquestionably caused by the common carnation stem-rot, and if it is so bad that the plants are dying in patches of six to ten plants, I fear there is not much chance to save any kind of a decent stand. Without seeing the plants, it is difficult to suggest what might be the cause of it, as there are many ways in which the disease is started into activity. Perhaps the best course would be to throw out all the plants, refill the benches with new soil and replant with new plants. I would advise giving the benches a good coat of hot limewash before putting in the new soil, to kill what spores might be hanging around.

The shoots enclosed showed another disease, which, however, has no connection with the stem-rot. The numerous light spots in the leaves show the presence of stigmonose, in an advanced stage. If the general run of the stock is like these shoots, then by all means replenish your stock with new, healthy plants. A. F. J. B.

REMOVING THE FLOWER STEMS.

I recently counted twenty-five bloom stems on one carnation plant before I had cut any blooms for market. Should those plants be thinned or let go? Is there anything that would help to make the stems stronger? The soil is a good, heavy, black loam. The varieties are as follows: Alma Ward, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Dorothy Gordon, Victory and Beacon. F. E. W.

There are a great many factors which might have more or less bearing on the question of whether you should allow your carnation plants to develop all the blooming shoots they carry at this time. If I knew just what you are working for, it would not be a difficult matter to advise you. I shall discuss the question from several angles and trust that you will find the information you are seeking among the various suggestions offered.

Is it your object to secure as steady a cut of blooms throughout the season as possible? If so, then do not allow your plants to develop a heavy crop during October and November. Instead of allowing the buds to develop into blooms, go over the beds about twice each week, or even once each week, and take off a portion of the blooming shoots which carry buds of a certain size, say about the size of a pea. Cut the stem down to where you may expect good, strong breaks. This will cause these stubs to break several days sooner than those on which you allow the blooms to develop. In other words, never allow your plants to carry an extremely heavy crop of buds in the same stage of development at one time, during the early part of the season. Just as sure as you do, there will come a time when the crop will be off in just the same degree.

New Carnation House of Charles Winkler, Hastings, Neb.

Carnation Houses of Rolf Zetlitz, Lima, O.

If you desire a heavy cut during the winter months, and if the blooms have no real value to you now, then it will pay you to remove the blooming stems as indicated above, but take them all off as they reach a certain stage of development. Keep in mind that it will require about six to eight weeks to develop the bloom from the time the bud appears, and be governed accordingly.

If the blooms can be used to good advantage now, and the plants are well established, showing shoots in every stage of development, then it would be a question in my mind just how far this cutting away of flower stems should be carried on. If you can cut any considerable portion of the blooms so that the breaks from these stubs will start before the youngest shoots reach any considerable height, then not much thinning out need be done. I think there is too much manipulating of crops being done, with the idea of hitting the holidays with a heavy cut, regardless of what may be cut during the rest of the season. The result is that during January and February we frequently see a glut of blooms which could have been used to good advantage during late November and early December. Just last winter we had a good case in point. Two years ago the rose growers made the same mistake, with the result that thousands of roses were dumped in the large flower centers at Christmas time, and in February good roses could hardly be had in any quantity.

Then, again, you must also consider the varieties somewhat. There is absolutely no sense in allowing Beacon to develop a single bloom until after November 1 or even later. The color is poor and the bloom will not keep. It is strictly a midwinter variety. Victory is just the opposite, and needs to be worked the other way. Work for a big plant, thereby getting a large cut early and another later in the season, allowing Beacon to fill in during midwinter. The other varieties you name are all good during the entire season, except Mrs. C. W. Ward, which is best in the fall and toward spring. The color is inclined to be poor during the dark weather of midwinter.

Wood ashes are the best and most generally used agent for strengthening the stems. Their use, however, must not be overdone. Too much will make the stems brittle at the joints, which is more annoying than weak stems. After the plants are in the house about three weeks, I consider it a good time to give them a top-dressing of wood ashes. I put a handful to each row, halfway across a 5-foot bed, scratch it in lightly and then water. This sweetens the soil, as well as adding the potash. Later on, the condition of the stems will indicate whether more is needed or not. A. F. J. B.

THE ZETLITZ HOUSES.

Rolf Zetlitz has a highly prosperous business at his place opposite the cemeteries at Lima, O. He has up-to-date houses that always are kept in the most perfect order. A general line of bedding plants is grown, as is natural in such a location, but more space is devoted to carnations than to any other crop. The accompanying illustrations show two of the Zetlitz carnation houses as they appeared September 24.

WORMS ON CARNATIONS.

I am enclosing some tops of my carnations, and wish you to advise me as to how to treat my plants to get rid of the trouble. I benched them in the second week of September. I have found two worms about half an inch long, but on most of the plants affected I cannot find this trouble-maker. I shall appreciate a prompt reply, as the trouble seems to be increasing. A. E. B.

The little worms, of which you found two specimens, are doing the damage of which you complain. Hand-picking is, of course, the surest way of destroying all those you can get your hands on, but it should be supplemented with some other remedy, such as Slug Shot or hellebore. Use these as directed and there should be no trouble in eradicating the pest. A. F. J. B.

SHAMROCKS FROM SEED.

Please state in The Review the kind of soil and temperature for propagating shamrocks. L. G.

Use a mixture of equal parts of leafmold and loam, with some fine sand added. Sow in shallow flats, covering the seeds lightly. A temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night is sufficient, and later 5 degrees cooler will be better for the little plants. The present is a good time to sow the seeds. C. W.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

How many years will a Belladonna delphinium last without dividing it; in other words, not touching it at all but just letting it grow? G. F.

Delphinium Belladonna and other hardy larkspurs will live a good many years without dividing or replanting. They do better, however, if moved every third year to new ground. This keeps them free from disease and makes them more vigorous. They like deeply spaded, well enriched ground. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

House Tender Plants.

While the first killing frosts have cut down tender plants in many places, there are some sections where it may not be cold enough for a month yet to harm anything; still, even there prevention is better than cure, and all plants of doubtful hardiness should be placed where they can be speedily put under cover when necessary. A little frost will not damage genistas, azaleas, ericas, acacias, camellias and others of the hard-wooded section, but bouvardias, heliotropes and scented geraniums go almost as quickly as alternantheras or coleus.

The hard-wooded plants should go into a cold pit, where there is no fire heat and where there is little danger of the growths pushing ahead at the expense of the flowers. All of the plants named should be lifted carefully. If they are firmly potted, sprayed and kept as cool and airy as possible they will be in the best of condition when wanted for forcing. Of course, ericas and acacias will not tolerate forcing. Azaleas rather seem to like it.

Shamrocks.

October and the first half of November is the best possible time to make a liberal sowing of shamrock seeds. Use shallow flats for the seedlings and give them a light shelf, with an average night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees until germination occurs, when a few degrees cooler will suit them better. Use a light compost, containing some leaf-mold and lots of sand, for the seeds. We note each year several trifoliums all labeled the "true shamrock," the larger portion being a form of Trifolium repens, the common white clover.

Greenhouse Repairs.

There is seldom a time when the average florist gets all needful repairs made to boilers, piping and greenhouse roofs before the first killing frost arrives. There is a disinclination to do this work during midsummer and a too general agreement to postpone such duties until the heated period has passed. Whatever repairs are still incomplete should be pushed to a finish with all possible celerity. Some crops, such as violets, mums and carnations, may not suffer for a short time if they have no fire heat, but there are cold, damp periods when mums and carnations require a little, and if roses are grown and no heat is yet available mildew and other troubles are almost unavoidable.

If the winter supply of fuel is on hand, growers may congratulate themselves, as the car shortage at present existing is serious and all orders are subject to long and vexatious delays. Particularly is this true of anthracite coal. If fuel supplies are on hand, the houses glazed and the heating plant in good condition, we can breathe freely and face with serenity the usual prognostications of "the most severe winter on record."

Violets.

Double violets should have been all planted indoors some weeks ago and by this time will have become well established. Keep them as cool as possible. Ventilators can usually be kept wide open all the time until the middle of October and no fire heat should be necessary before that time. Violets do not like artificial heat, and were it possible to have sufficient warmth without using it they would do all the better and be less susceptible to insect attacks. Scratch over the surface soil occasionally. Remove all weeds, runners and spotted or decaying foliage. If your plants are growing in raised benches, do not allow rubbish to accumulate below them. Neatness, cleanliness, careful watering and ventilating, and the keeping of a sweet, buoyant atmosphere are what violets like. Given this, there will be little likelihood of attacks of leaf-spot or aphis. If plants were attacked by red spider before housing and any are still lurking on the leaves, keep them sprayed regularly. Use a soap or nicotine spray if the attack is serious, and use a fine, misty spray nozzle in applying it.

Single violets can be planted during October. It is a great mistake to house them any earlier. What they require before lifting is one or two moderate freezings to check their leaf growth. They will then start away to flower freely. If housed too early, leaves are always produced at the expense of flowers. If runners have been removed from time to time, there will be a great saving of labor at planting time. Of course, these runners may be left on and they will produce flowers, but with shorter stems and of poorer quality than will be had from the crowns.

Single violets do best with a winter minimum of 40 to 42 degrees. It is not possible to keep the night temperature down to these figures yet a while, but all possible air should be afforded day and night.

CRIMSON RAMBLER ROSES.

Please let me know if I could transplant Crimson Rambler roses the second week in October and if I could cut some of the big canes away with perfect safety. G. F.

Yes, you can dig up and transplant Crimson Rambler roses in October. It would be better to wait until the end of the month, but the plants would survive if moved now. Moisten and firm the roots well when moved. You can cut away as many canes as you wish without in any way injuring the plants. C. W.

PROPAGATING ROSES.

I am starting several thousand rose grafts, and cuttings from outside wood of ramblers, hybrid teas and hardy perpetuals for outside growing. I am placing them just over five return pipes on each side of a carnation house that I can run at 55 degrees, except during east winds, which are severe. Then the temperature will drop to 50 degrees. I expect to have them rooted before winter comes on. We are using hot water, with two 4-inch flows and ten 1½-inch returns. Would it be better to cover the benches with glass or leave them open, and would you advise enclosing the heat under the benches with burlap or boards? F. E. W.

It would be an advantage and would insure a better and more uniform bottom heat if boards or burlap were used to confine the heat. Cuttings should root all right, if carefully tended, without being enclosed in a glass case. Your cuttings would have rooted more readily if you had taken them from the middle to the end of July. They would then have done well under ordinary hotbed sashes, with a little bottom heat. The wood is now tolerably hard and well ripened, and roots less easily. C. W.

DOROTHY PERKINS FOR EASTER.

I have a number of Dorothy Perkins roses that have been kept in pots all summer and are rooted through into the soil underneath. I wish to have them in bloom at Easter. What treatment should I give them, and should they be put in larger pots when lifted, or allowed to remain as they are now? K. C. B.

Keep the canes well tied up on your roses, in order that they may become hard and well ripened. Remove the plants from where they are plunged and stand them in a sunny spot. Reduce the water supply to assist in ripening the wood. You can lay them on their sides after the middle of the month and an occasional hosing overhead will keep them sufficiently plump. Easter comes at an unusually early date next year; therefore your plants should be started by Christmas in a temperature of 50 degrees, advancing this to 60 degrees at night once they are well started. I would not repot the plants at this time, but pick away some of the surface soil and give a liberal topdressing of fibrous loam and bone or dry cow manure. C. W.

CANTERBURY BELLS.

I am growing some Canterbury bells this year and would like to know how to handle them. About what time should they be potted and what size of pots should I use? How soon should they be taken into the greenhouse, and about what time will they commence to bloom? J. E. S.

The Canterbury bells can be lifted and potted at once. Use a liberal compost, such as you would use for mums or roses, and after potting place in a coldframe. Expose to the weather so that the plants can have some frost to check their growth. House the first batch at Christmas, in a temperature of 50 degrees. These will flower early in April. You will find them especially valuable in May and particularly for Memorial day, either for selling in pots or for cutting. For the latter date start the plants about the end of February. The size of the pots will depend on the size of the plants. Larger ones need 10-inch pots, but usually 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch suffice.

C. W.

OUTDOOR PLUMOSUS.

Will you please tell us where we can get full information about the florists' asparagus that is grown in the open in the south? We want to put in an acre or so of this asparagus, here in southern Alabama, and should like to know where we could get the best seed, how much seed is needed per acre and something about the cultivation and time of sowing of this crop.

C. S. L.

The asparagus grown by florists for cutting is chiefly A. plumosus nanus, seeds of which may be had from several of the dealers who advertise in The Review. The average cost is about $3.50 per thousand seeds.

It would probably prove much more satisfactory to get young plants for the purpose, rather than to sow the seeds in the open, from the fact that the weeds may easily choke the young seedlings before the latter make much headway. Plant in spring, in rows that are far enough apart to allow easy cultivation. The ground should be well prepared and thoroughly manured before planting. Seedlings of asparagus are offered by numerous dealers at $7.50 to $10 per thousand, and plants from 2-inch pots at $20 to $25 per thousand. W. H. T.

VICK'S ASTER FLOAT.

A few weeks ago Rochester celebrated its centennial and held an industrial parade. The James Vick's Sons corporation was in it, with the float shown in the accompanying illustration. In speaking of it C. H. Vick said: "The float attracted a great deal of attention and met with applause all along the line. It was made up entirely of aster blooms, taking over 20,000 of them. A huge bouquet, arranged in a large basket containing over 10,000 asters, occupied the rear of the float. The bouquet was nine feet in height from the bottom of the basket to the top of the handle, and about eight feet in width. Smaller bouquets were arranged around the float, with a group of young ladies and children seated in the center, each one carrying a large bouquet of asters. The float was drawn by six black horses, each led by a page wearing a streamer with the name Vick on it in purple. The horses wore white blankets bordered with purple asters, with the name Vick in the center, also made of purple asters."

METZMAIER'S AUTO.

At Columbus, O., a centennial recently was celebrated, and as a feature of the event there was the usual industrial parade. Among the merchants who decorated their delivery vehicles and participated in the procession was Metzmaier, the florist. His auto is shown in the accompanying illustration. As a special feature, note the window box on the running board.

Olean, N. Y.—A 10-pound son has arrived at the home of J. G. Lyton, who is foreman for D. R. Herron.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR SHOW

ANOTHER SUCCESS.

Central Illinois Florists' Big Week.

The flower show in connection with the state fair, at Springfield, has become quite an event among the florists of central Illinois, but it does not yet attract the attention it should from the large growers of the north end of the state. The premiums are liberal, amounting to $3,500 for the florists' exhibits, largely because of the work of Robert O'Dwyer, who has charge of the department of floriculture. When he took hold of the show it was customary to offer $1,200 for florists' exhibits, but this has been increased until now the premiums are as liberal as are offered at any of the big autumn shows. The Dome building, in which the show is staged, was originally a part of the Floriculture building at the Chicago World's Fair and is 186 feet in diameter. In previous years the building was divided into two sections, one of which was used for horticulture, but through Mr. O'Dwyer's efforts the entire building now is used for flowers. Rooms also are provided where the exhibitors can make up work with privacy. A large refrigerator has been installed for the care of stock shipped by exhibitors.

The plant display this year is good, representing the commercial stock of the enterprising members of the trade in Springfield and vicinity. The roses and carnations were rather better than usual, though the number of exhibits showed no special increase, perhaps due to crops not being on. The design work was extremely good, possibly the largest showing of this character made at any exhibition in this country. The large set pieces were much improved by the use of southern foliage in combination with flowers. The more general use of orchids added much to the character of the designs. There were three handsome exhibits of cut orchids. One of the most successful exhibitors in the design department was the firm of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, who were represented by Ed Gullett, who was on his way to Ohio, where he will be married October 12.

Acting as assistant superintendent of floriculture, A. Miller, of Chicago, was of much assistance to the exhibitors in staging their stock.

Roses.

The fair lasts so long that the flower show is spread over more days than is customary where flowers are the principal feature of the exhibition. Roses were to be staged on three days, so as to maintain a fresh display throughout the exhibition. The awards on the roses staged October 8 were as follows:

Fifty American Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Twenty-five American Beauties — Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Brown, second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifty Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Brown, second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifty Mrs. Jardine—A. C. Canfield, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., second.

Fifty Bride—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Fifty Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., third.

Fifty White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Brown, second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifty new variety roses, last season's introduction—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Fifty Kaiserin—A. C. Brown, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Fifty My Maryland—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Best six varieties, twenty-five blooms each, American Beauties excepted—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Wednesday, October 9, roses were again staged, ten classes calling for twenty-five flowers of each variety, and ten classes calling for twenty flowers of each variety. The awards were as follows:

Twenty-five American Beauty — Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Robert O'Dwyer.

(Superintendent of Floriculture, Illinois State Fair.)

Twenty-five Mrs. Jardine—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second.

Twenty-five Bride—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Twenty-five Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five My Maryland—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five any other variety—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty American Beauty—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty Mrs. Jardine—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second.

Twenty Bride—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Twenty Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Twenty White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty My Maryland—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twenty any other variety—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Carnations.

The display of carnations was excellent, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and the Chicago Carnation Co., of Chicago, competing with the local growers. The carnations were staged October 8, the premiums being well divided, as follows:

Fifty white—Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, Ill., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., third.

Fifty flesh pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, third.

Fifty light pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, Springfield, second.

Fifty dark pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifty rose pink—A. C. Brown, first; A. C. Canfield, second.

Fifty scarlet—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifty crimson—A. C. Canfield, first.

Fifty White Enchantress—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Best four vases, fifty blooms each, four varieties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; Gullett & Sons, third.

Best 100 blooms, any color, any variety, seedlings admissible—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Miscellaneous Cut Flowers.

The display of miscellaneous cut flowers was more varied than usual, ranging all the way from hardy perennials to orchids. Staged October 8, the awards were:

Collection single dahlias—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., first.

Collection double dahlias—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Collection hardy perennials—A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., first.

Collection asters—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Six best orchids in bloom—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first.

Best collection of chrysanthemums—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Lily of the valley—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Fifty chrysanthemums, any variety—A. T. Hey, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Best display of cut orchids—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. T. Hey, second; Poehlmann Bros. Co., third.

Retailers' Work.

The display of designs and other evidences of the skill of the retailers always is one of the special features of the state fair. The competition is keen, the florists at the capital and in the nearby towns being keen to excel each other in friendly rivalry. The designs were staged October 8, awards being as follows:

Standing cross—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first; Cottage Greenhouse, Litchfield, Ill., second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, Ill., third; A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., fourth.

Wreath on easel—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill., third; Cottage Greenhouse, fourth.

Set piece—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Cottage Greenhouse, third; A. T. Hey, fourth.

Dinner table arrangement—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; A. T. Hey, second.

Basket of chrysanthemums—Gullett & Sons, first; Cottage Greenhouse, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; A. T. Hey, fourth.

Basket of cut flowers—Wirth & Gaupp, Springfield, Ill., first; Gullett & Sons, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; A. T. Hey, fourth.

Bouquet of roses—Wirth & Gaupp, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. T. Hey, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., third.

Bouquet of various flowers—Wirth & Gaupp, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

Spray of roses—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; A. T. Hey, fourth.

Spray of carnations—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Gullett & Sons, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; Wirth & Gaupp, fourth.

Bride's bouquet—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. T. Hey, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

Corsage bouquet—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. T. Hey, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

Miscellaneous Plants.

The miscellaneous pot plants were staged October 7. The awards were as follows:

Collection of stove and greenhouse plants—A. C. Canfield, Springfield, Ill., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, Ill., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., third; Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill., fourth.

Twelve palms, single—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. C. Canfield, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

Six palms, single, three varieties—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

Two palms, made up—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

One palm, single—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.

One Cycas revoluta—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Wirth & Gaupp, Springfield, Ill., third.

Four araucarias—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., third.

Twelve crotons, in variety—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Best foliage plant—A. C. Canfield, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third.

Twelve begonias, flowering, in variety—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Wirth & Gaupp, second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Ten cyclamens—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Two orange trees, in fruit—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

Twelve ferns, distinct—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

Six ferns, distinct—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

Four adiantums, distinct—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

Four Nephrolepis Bostoniensis—A. C. Canfield, first; Wirth & Gaupp, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third.

Four Nephrolepis Piersoni, or other sports of Boston—Gullett & Sons, first; Wirth & Gaupp, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third.

Four Nephrolepis Whitmani—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

Four Nephrolepis Scottii—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

One Nephrolepis Bostoniensis—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Gullett & Sons, second; Wirth & Gaupp, third.

One Nephrolepis Piersoni, or other sport of Boston—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third.

One Nephrolepis Whitmani—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. C. Canfield, third.

One Nephrolepis Scottii—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

One Cibotium Schiedei—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Four dracaenas, four varieties—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Four Pandanus Veitchii—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Twelve Baby Ramblers, in bloom—A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Twelve Soupert roses, in bloom—A. C. Brown, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

Six Asparagus plumosus—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. C. Canfield, third.

Fifteen fancy-leaved caladiums—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Hanging basket fern—A. C. Brown, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Gullett & Sons, third.

Hanging basket Sprengeri—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Basket foliage plants, for effect—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

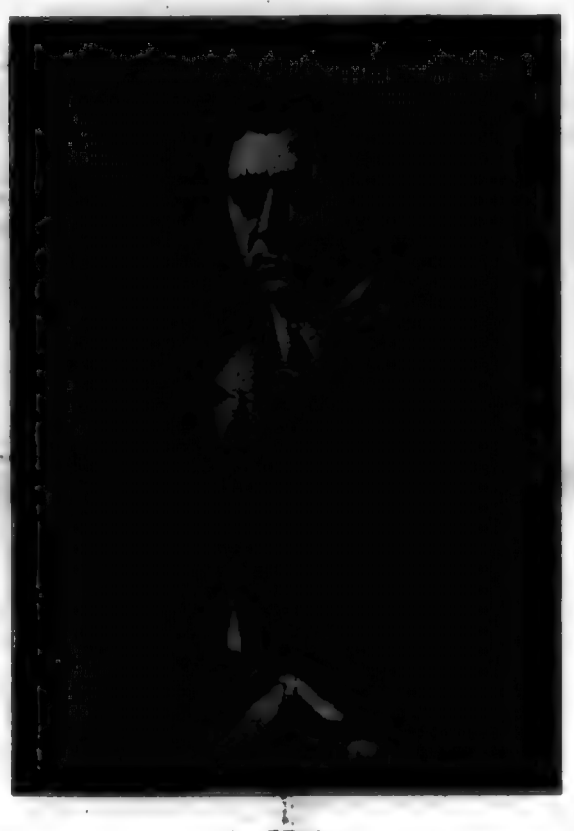
Two window boxes—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Wirth & Gaupp, second.

Fern dish—A. C. Brown, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey, third.

Collection of bulbs for fall planting, named—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Easter lilies—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.

Meriden, Conn.—Joseph Greenbacker was awarded first prize for a design exhibited at the Berlin fair.



Hutchinson, Kan.—L. R. Bever is erecting the first of a series of greenhouses, each to be 18 x 120, on his home place, near the Milwaukee addition. E. Poland, a florist of extensive experience, has been engaged as grower and is superintending the construction of the houses. Rooms for display purposes, with a basement for storage, will also be built.

THE HARDY GARDENS

LATE PERENNIALS.

They Are Useful to Florists.

The hardy herbaceous perennials flowering during September and the early part of October are useful to florists. Many of them come at a time when annuals, including asters, have suffered severely from rain and wind storms, and before chrysanthemums or carnations are obtainable in sufficient quantities. Inclement weather, which will practically destroy most of the annuals useful for cutting, affects the more robust perennials but little, and for this reason no one with any considerable call at retail for cut flowers can well afford to be without them. For any who have so far omitted planting a sufficient stock of hardy perennials, the month of October is the best of the whole year for nearly all those which will be named. All are inexpensive and nearly all increase rapidly in size. Entirely apart from their value as cut flowers is the fact that so many people now are planting hardy perennials, and any florist carrying a selection of good varieties is sure to have many calls for plants.

Heleniums.

The heleniums, or sneezeworts, are nearly all late flowering perennials. One of the exceptions is H. Hoopesii, which grows twenty-four inches high, is orange yellow in color and flowers late in June. The best known and most desirable member of the family is H. autumnale superbum, with large heads of deep golden yellow flowers; it is at its best during September and early October. This is a rampant growing variety and needs keeping within bounds. It should also be replanted every second year to produce large heads. When in large masses it pays to cut out half or more of the growths, as this materially benefits the remainder. This variety is fine for cutting. It grows five to seven feet in height. There is a form called H. autumnale rubrum, with flowers shaded crimson. H. grandiflorum striatum, yellow with reddish stripes, is a distinct variety, not so tall growing as autumnale.

The varieties Riverton Gem and Riverton Beauty, both originating at Henry A. Dreer's, of Philadelphia, are distinct and desirable. The first named grows three feet high; its flowers are deep gold, suffused with terra cotta, becoming deeper as they grow older. Riverton Beauty is of a soft yellow color, with a dark center; it flowers with great freedom and grows four to five feet high.

Pyrethrum Uliginosum.

The late flowering giant daisy, Pyrethrum uliginosum, is not half sufficiently known and appreciated by florists. During September, when at its best, it is a telling object in the perennial garden, and few hardy plants equal it in value for cutting. The plants attain a height of four to six feet, according to the soil they are growing in. If transplanted every second year, the flower stems will be much stronger and will come more branched than when allowed to crowd.

Anemone Japonica.

It is surprising how few trade growers even know what the beautiful Japanese anemones are. They are rarely seen in store windows and, in spite of their hardiness, ease of culture and free flowering qualities, they remain to a large extent an unknown quantity in florists' establishments. Anemones should always be planted in the spring; then they are sure to grow. They are easily propagated by root divisions, placed in sand in a warm propagating bench. After these grow and strike out new roots, they can be potted singly, gradually hardened and planted out early in April. A liberal winter mulch of leaves or straw should be given after the first sharp frost.

These anemones are splendid in design work and a large vase of them, nicely arranged, is telling. Their flowering time is just ahead of the mums, when good outside flowers, or in fact flowers of any kind, are none too plentiful. They like rich ground, and in such soil they will grow four feet or more in height and give cut flowers for several weeks.

Montreal, Que.—Maurice Wolff has opened a new retail store at 462 St. Catherine street, West.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business showed decided improvement last week and there is every appearance that the season will be better than for several years previous. The reports from all sides show that there will be an abundance of stock of all kinds and of good quality, so that prices will be about normal. Thus early in the social season it is evident that there will be an unusual number of large functions and a number of large decorations have already been arranged for.

Various Notes.

S. J. Reuter opened his new retail flower store at 36 Main street, Westerly, October 5.

T. O'Connor had a large wedding decoration at Edgewood and one at Warren last week.

H. W. Vose, of Cumberland Hill, Woonsocket, is confined to his home by illness.

John Macrae has been cutting some fine pink chrysanthemums.

Oscar Schultz and Andrew S. Meikle, of Newport, have returned from their automobile trip through New England to Quebec.

Among the taxpayers in the city of Cranston who are assessed on $10,000 or more are Frank L. Budlong, $26,765; Harry A. Budlong, $24,880; James A. Budlong, II, $56,750; J. A. Budlong & Son Co., $121,155; Melissa P. Budlong, $13,085; Budlong Rose Co., $113,165; William Hay and wife, $24,250.

Thomas Curley and family attended the big fair at Brockton last week.

Frederick B. Luther has just registered a new thirty-two horse-power touring car with the state board.

W. H. Fry, of Woonsocket, has recently completed two new houses, 6x66 and 42x92, which he will devote to carnations, lilies, bulbous and other stock.

Charles Johnston, who has been confined to his home for several weeks by rheumatic complications, is able to be outdoors a few hours daily.

William E. Chappell was a Boston visitor last week, combining business and pleasure.

Charles W. Morey, of Woonsocket, has just purchased a touring car.

Richard Higgins had the decorations for the fall opening of the B. H. Gladding Dry Goods Co., using more than 150 large palms and filling twenty-four window boxes with evergreens.

J. A. Budlong and wife started last week on a three weeks' automobile trip to New York and up the Hudson.

Ernest Hunold is figuring on the erection of a greenhouse, 28x100, at Auburn.

At the last regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, Andrew Ramsey and Patrick Devine were elected to membership and three applications were received.

Miss Hattie Hunt, daughter of George Hunt and sister of Charles Hunt, was married a few days ago to Ernest V. Fiske.

Ernest Howard, of Auburn, is planning to build a new greenhouse, 28x100.

John B. Urquhart, gardener for Senator Beeckman at Newport, with his daughter, had a narrow escape a few nights ago. He was driving along when a delivery wagon collided with their rig. Both were thrown out and badly shaken.

S. R. Astle, of Lakewood, has been making one of the finest window displays ever seen in this city, in the corner window of Matthew Macnair's store.

Henry A. C. Taylor estate is to erect eight greenhouses and a potting shed at Newport. William McKay is the gardener.

The body of G. Harry Baker, gardener on the estate of J. R. Barton Walling, at Newport, was found in a cistern on the estate, September 30, after he had been missing for several days. W. H. M.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business last week was exceptionally brisk. A good general demand and considerable funeral work kept the retailers busy. The stock shortage experienced here several weeks ago has practically subsided, and now fine stock is coming into this market. Roses and carnations are good. Mums are now in their prime and of good quality. Violets are coming good considering that it is the first of their season. Outside stock is off the market, the recent frosts having put an end to all varieties.

St. Paul's Flower Show.

The flower show is now but a month away. All are getting extremely anxious and the various committees are progressing as well as can be expected.

O. J. Olson, of the committee of publicity, gave out a part of the musical program. The St. Paul Symphony Orchestra will open with the show, Sunday, November 10. One of the features will be 200 Scandinavian singers in chorus. These singers have a fine reputation and should prove a drawing card.

The public is showing great enthusiasm over articles regarding the show appearing constantly in the daily papers.

Various Notes.

Theo. Wirth, of Minneapolis, vice-president of the S. A. F., at a recent meeting held in this city suggested a novel idea regarding the S. A. F. convention to be held in Minneapolis next year. His idea is to procure ground adjacent to the Armory, in which the show is to be held, and have the exhibitors of outside and ornamental stock do their bedding on this ground, having all stock in good growing condition during the convention. The idea met with approval from all present and no doubt will prove a good one, as it will give the outside exhibitors an equal chance with the local florists.

Charles Fish, manager of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., was a caller last week. This concern has been sending some fine carnations to this market.

N. C. Hansen, of Dale street, has a house of Killarneys in the best of condition.

The Riverside Floral Co. has a new auto in commission. It is a great help, as the greenhouses are quite a distance from the market.

Chas. Bennett will open a new flower store on West Sixth street about October 15. Mr. Bennett is one of the old florists of this city, having retired from business seventeen years ago, when be sold out to E. P. Holm, of Holm & Olson.

Holm & Olson had a wedding decoration last week at Sauk Center, Minn., about 170 miles from this city. Palms and smilax were shipped and a quantity of mums were used.

W. T. Symonds, of Decorah, Ia., was a visitor on his way to Montana. C. G. Nodine, of Lake City, Minn., also was here for a few days. C. R. F.

DENVER.

The Market.

Since the middle of September business has been on the increase and all those who have had stock to sell have had no difficulty in finding buyers. The growing season was particularly short this year and the cold weather that came early in September seemed to check the growth of everything, keeping it at a standstill. Carnations were especially affected and it was necessary to deal them out in small lots. All standing orders were cut and it was absolutely impossible to fill all the shipping orders that were received. Roses were in good supply, but the demand was heavy and many were sold to take the place of carnations. Some of the Lady Hillingdon roses now coming in are excellent, the stems and flowers having improved wonderfully. Richmonds are a little slow in moving. Killarneys have been scarce, but the supply of White Killarney has been good. Beauties are better. The flowers are of better quality and the stems longer. There are plenty for all demands. The chrysanthemum season is behind schedule and only a few are being cut. There is promise that mums will be in the latter part of the week, but promises do not always hold good in uncertain weather. When the mums start, however, there is sure to be a plenty. Violets have made their debut, but they are small and soft and of poor color. Valley is scarce and it is only possible to get it on certain days in the week. Smilax is pretty well cut and there is likely to be a scarcity soon. There is plenty of Adiantum Croweanum, of which the quality is excellent. Fern leaves, both the Oregon and eastern varieties, are going fast.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Colorado Florists' Club was postponed October 7. It will be held at T. M. A. hall October 14. The officers for the coming year will be nominated at this meeting.

After getting along for over a year, H. J. Berry closed his store October 2. Mr. Berry's future plans are not known, but Mr. Schultz has accepted a position with the New York Floral Co.

William Speth met with an unfortunate accident last week. He missed his footing and fell down the stairs leading from the balcony to the store. His ankle was badly sprained and he will not be able to step on it for six weeks. This does not keep Mr. Speth from working, however, as he can be found at his store any day.

Emil Glauber, E. S. Kennedy, T. W. Hannah and C. L. Gross visited some of the "north side" greenhouses last week. The trip was made in Mr. Glauber's automobile, and the party stopped at the Elitch-Long greenhouses, C. F. Maler's, Ben Boldt's and C. Lengenfelder's.

The New York Floral Co. has changed the front of the store. The door has been moved to the side and the one large window gives opportunity for better display.

WASHINGTON.

Club Meeting.

Many important discussions marked the October meeting of the Florists' Club. A letter from the publicity committee of the New York Florists' Club asked that the local club appoint a similar committee. W. F. Gude said this is a step in the right direction and will probably do more to bring our business to the front than anything that any one person, or any one club, can do. Others spoke along the same lines and President Grillhortzer appointed Z. D. Blackistone, George H. Cooke and William F. Gude to act as the local committee.

The announcement that a bowling team had been formed to represent this city in the contests held in conjunction with the convention of the S. A. F. met with great favor, as the members are great bowling enthusiasts. The team has been entered in the District League. The team meets each Monday evening at the Rathskeller alleys, Eighth and E streets, N. W. The committee on bowling consists of Messrs. Hammer, Shaffer, Ernest, Dalglish, Lewis and Berry.

Alfred Heitmuller, whose name was proposed at the last meeting, was duly elected to membership.

The committee on by-laws recommended that certain amendments be made and among these were proposed changes in the dates for the submission of nominations, of elections, and of the installation of elected officers. These will come up for ratification at the next business meeting.

A memorial from the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore, presented at this meeting, again brought memories to mind of the "Grand Old Man of Horticulture," William R. Smith. The memorial is a handsome engrossed certificate.

Toward the close of the evening the talk turned to the origin and culture of the Killarney, American Beauty, Perle and other roses and some valuable information on these subjects was disseminated. So much time was given to this, and so interesting had it become, that the club nearly forgot to partake of the buffet luncheon that had been prepared.

The large assembly hall of the Business High School, which is capable of accommodating fully 1,500 people, was secured for the lecture to be given by Robert Pyle, on rose growing in Europe, October 8.

The Market.

Last week was a great contrast over the week before, in that we have had seven days of sunshine following an equal number of rainy days. The sunshine and moderate temperature have had a good effect on flowers and they arrived in better quantity, quality and color. The market has been a good one and there has been enough stock to meet every demand. The only flower of which there has been a shortage is the American Beauty. Radiance roses have been in exceptionally fine shape and have found a ready market at from $4 to $12 per hundred. Richmonds, Mrs. Taft, Killarneys and Brides are also of fine quality, and quite a number of the stores are showing the Lady Hillingdon rose.

There seems to be a shortage of short-stemmed carnations, and it is impossible to fill the demands. Carnations are bringing anywhere from $1.50 to $2 per hundred for good stock. Orchids are plentiful and fine and, while the market is fairly good, it is hard to keep the price at $6 per dozen. Violets are coming in more plentifully, though mostly of the Rhinebeck variety. The latter, as yet, are poor and many of them shatter before they reach their destinations. There is a great glut of cosmos and dahlias and, while some few of these bring a price, the majority can be had in armfuls or wagon-loads at the purchaser's figure and are hardly worth quoting. The indoor chrysanthemums are looking well and find ready sale at from $10 to $20 per hundred.

Various Notes.

There have been quite a number of large weddings and wedding receptions during the last week, chief among which was the wedding of Ensign Robert Mattingly, U. S. N., and Miss Sadie King. The house was decorated with southern smilax, asparagus, chrysanthemums and pink and white roses. At Christ Episcopal church, where the wedding took place, there was an unusually elaborate and artistic decoration. The work was done by Gude Bros., and was unusually beautiful. Gude Bros. Co. also had the decorating of the home of Odell Smith, where a novel ceremony took place. The occasion was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Smith and the wedding of their daughter.

George Shaffer, too, has been busy with wedding work and has a number of good orders booked for advance dates. With him the Curry wedding was the most important. Mr. Shaffer also furnished quite a number of floral designs for the Arms funeral and has been doing the table decorations for the New Fredonia hotel.

John Watson has succeeded to the position of foreman of the Kramer greenhouses in Anacostia, made vacant by the resignation of Kenney Davis, who has accepted a similar position in Richmond, Va.

With a pitiful tale that her mother was dead and she wanted a few flowers to place on her coffin, a colored woman last week victimized Fred H. Kramer for $10 on a bogus check.

E. Leslie Reynolds, superintendent of the Botanical Gardens, has been admitted to membership in the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, in the affairs of which the former superintendent, William R. Smith, was active.

C. L. L.

O. A. C. Oehmler, for years with Gude Bros. Co., as decorator, has opened a retail store for his own account, at 1329 G street, N. W.

Houston, Tex.—Henry H. Kuhlmann, who started in the trade here January 1, 1909, now has four places of business. He has a greenhouse and office at 2907 Jackson street, greenhouse and office at 2526 Washington avenue, a downtown store at 919 Capitol avenue and a greenhouse and nursery on East Thirteenth street, Houston Heights. He is doing a good business at each place.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Judging from the way the local florists were buying last week from the wholesalers, business must have been excellent. There was not any too much stock at any of the markets and the prices advanced considerably. Carnations became scarce and were mostly short-stemmed; the price was $2 per hundred. A few fairly good California violets are coming in, but not too many as yet.

Roses are plentiful, especially the Killarneys. Beauties, too, have come in quite heavily of late, but sell well where Killarneys do not. Marylands and Richmonds are not in as good demand. Cochets, both pink and white, are fine, owing to the cool nights, which gave them good color. Chrysanthemums are scarce, as yet, and the demand is large. This week should see more of them, and in better grades.

The market had a good supply of valley of good quality. Easter lilies have advanced in price to $12.50 per hundred. Orchids are $6 to $7.50 per dozen, with a splendid demand. Cosmos, dahlias, tuberose stalks, daisies and other outdoor stock are about over for this season. Fancy greens of all kinds are plentiful, at the usual prices.

Various Notes.

Frank McCabe, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, spent last week here, carrying a full line of samples of florists' supplies. He says business has exceeded his expectations.

L. P. Edlefsen, a florist of Los Angeles, Cal., was a visitor last week. He is an uncle of W. C. Smith, and thirty years ago he was a resident of this city and later of St. Paul. He will visit Chicago and Milwaukee, where he has many friends, before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Windler have returned home from a three weeks' trip to Chicago. Mr. Windler says he is now ready for a hard season's work. His brother, J. J., in charge of the business during his absence, had a splendid run of trade.

The American Paper Products Co., the firm that makes the Appco Shipsafe florists' boxes, at 272 Bremen avenue, suffered a heavy loss by fire last week. The damage amounted to about $10,000. A large number of orders ready for shipment were destroyed.

George Angermueller says his orchid consignments for the Veseys' Fort Wayne greenhouses were fine and the demand good. He is now making a specialty of ribbons for the local trade.

The Missouri Botanical Garden will hold its annual chrysanthemum show in the garden, under a large tent, sometime next month. Last year the show was a failure, owing to the cold weather and the destruction of the tent by a wind storm on the day before the opening.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. will put into service this week a new automobile truck for the daily delivery. Mr. Smith says, "We must be progressive these days and give the trade quick delivery." A large shipment of new supplies was received last week.

The local office of the Dennison Mfg. Co., at 905 Locust street, has taken a great many orders from local florists for holiday tags in floral designs.

Emil G. Popp, one of the inspectors under City Forester Koenig, says the department is busy and doing good work for the city trees. A large force is out daily in all parts of the city, under the supervision of Assistant City Forester Fred W. Pape.

Alex. Waldbart & Sons, on Horton place, say they have been quite busy with good work since the season opened.

At M. M. Ayres' the show house is in splendid shape and contains some fine specimen croton plants and fancy cut mums of Smith's Advance and Monrovia.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. says business since the opening has been highly satisfactory, both in cut flowers and supplies. Their rose consignments during the last week were large and included fancy, long Beauties.

The Standard Scale & Fixture Co., the local representative of the McCray Refrigerator Co., says this has been one of the firm's best years in florists' boxes, notwithstanding the greater competition.

Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, reports that his firm has bought the stock and fixtures of Edward Westmann, who recently closed his store on South Grand avenue, and that Mr. Westmann is now in their employ.

W. C. Smith, Oscar Kuehn, Will Ossick and Paddy Patton, with their wives, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pilcher at Kirkwood on Sunday afternoon, October 6.

Henry Berning says he had a splendid run last week on cut mums, roses and carnations. The E. G. Hill Co. stock, which is handled here, meets with a big demand.

The Bourdet Floral Co. is in great shape for the mum season, in both cut blooms and plants. The firm supplies a great many of the local retailers in this line.

Now that the cooler weather has set in, an effort is being made to reorganize the Florists' Bowling Club, with two teams, one of wholesalers and one of retailers, for weekly games.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business opened with a rush and continued so through all last week, keeping retailers, wholesalers and the growers on the jump. While we have had no killing frost up to this day, October 7, most of the outside stock, with the exception of late gladioli and dahlias, is a thing of the past. The supply of carnations is still behind the demand, with roses about equal to the call. Thus all good stock moves well and at satisfactory prices. Beauties and mums are getting better and more of them arrive from day to day.

A Visit to Koerner's.

Having heard so much of late about the fine stock of our local dahlia and gladiolus specialist, H. W. Koerner, and being favored with summerlike weather, the writer paid the place a visit on Sunday afternoon, October 6. While the dahlias showed signs of a light frost, it had by no means destroyed the beauty of the stock, whether cut or still on the plants. The place consists mainly of a large gladiolus and dahlia field, while only a small portion is devoted to perennials, mainly hardy phlox.

Besides the many commercial varieties, Mr. Koerner has about 150 seedling dahlias, ranging from one to several of each variety. The one which caught the writer's fancy above all the rest is a single variety which resembles a poinsettia and dates back to 1908; some of its flowers, by actual measurement, were found to be seven inches across. When put on the market this variety, as yet unnamed, will be a winner. Another seedling, a cross between a peony and a cactus variety and of a wine-colored shade, is especially promising. In form it resembles the peony type, while the petals are similar to those of the cactus class.

The farther one went, the more interesting was the display. A sport of Lucy Fawcett, which has been nursed along for the last five years, is of a dark wine color, is held erect on long, stiff stems and must be classed in the show variety instead of the fancy. Another sport, also of Lucy Fawcett and having the same good qualities as the one just described, is of a solid yellow color.

The one variety which Mr. Koerner will handle most extensively is Snow Storm, which he disseminated in 1911. It is the earliest bloomer on the place and, in spite of the chilly nights, the foliage was still in fine shape. Many of his named varieties will be discarded another year, to make room for some of the better, though as yet unnamed, seedlings.

Gladioli by the million, from small to large and from seedling to commercial bulbs, can be seen here. For the first time in Mr. Koerner's twelve years on his present place, some of his gladioli were affected by rust, which he attributed to the climatic conditions which prevailed during the summer, but he does not look for the same trouble another season.

It would make a long report to give details of some of the best of his gladiolus seedlings, of which there are about 150 varieties. Let it suffice to say that wherever Mr. Koerner exhibits stock it is well thought of. The winter of 1911-12 got in its work here. Besides ruining a fine batch of hardy phlox, it claimed two acres of dahlias and half an acre of gladiolus bulbs. In spite of all this, there was enough stock for this year and Mr. Koerner says it is the best year he has ever experienced, for he already has plenty of orders for fall and spring deliveries. He still regrets that, owing to the cool weather, some of his prize stock which was intended for the S. A. F. convention in Chicago this year was not in bloom.

Various Notes.

The Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. has acquired a neat auto truck and says it works like a charm.

Chas. Meckelburg, who for the last five years conducted a florist's establishment at Fifty-third street and North avenue, died October 4, at the age of 70 years. For some time he had suffered with dropsy, which resulted in his demise. The widow will make her home nearer the heart of the city.

Although some of the bowlers of the Florists' League were on hand October 1, there were not enough present to elect officers for the coming season. No scores were kept.

October 7 the Heitman-Oestreicher Co. shipped the first white sweet peas to Holton & Hunkel Co.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports the following visitors: B. Franke, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Fred Roth, Hartford, Wis.; Mr. Storkel, Tomah, Wis.

The Gust. Rusch Co., having lost a horse a short time ago, now utilizes a fifteen horse-power Mercury auto truck to keep everybody satisfied.

Currie Bros. Co. was kept busy last week with out-of-town funeral work.

One of the department stores called for 500 aster plants in pots and bloom for its silver jubilee September 30. The A. F. Kellner Co., after some hustling, was able to fill the order.

Adam Zender, of Chicago, came up October 5 to take in the Grand Prix auto races.

Other visitors: John Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis.; Mrs. Harry Ash, Edgerton, Wis.

OBITUARY.

John Crawford.

John Crawford, of Philadelphia, died Thursday, October 3, after a long illness. Funeral services were held at his home in West Philadelphia Monday afternoon, October 7. Interment was at Mount Peace cemetery.

Mr. Crawford was for a quarter of a century a well known figure, first in retail and then in wholesale circles. Failing health compelled him to withdraw from active business a year and a half ago. Mr. Crawford had many friends throughout the trade who have kindly recollections of their years of association with him and who mourn his death in the prime of manhood. He is survived by a wife and son.

C. C. Arnold.

C. C. Arnold died at his home in North Judson, Ind., September 30. He had suffered all summer with heart trouble, which was the cause of his death. He was 62 years of age and had been engaged in the flower business in North Judson for the last sixteen years. During the last few years he had devoted most of his attention to gladioli. He leaves a widow, one son, Paul C. Arnold, and a daughter.

GLADIOLI FOR EASTER.

When should I start gladiolus bulbs of the fall varieties, such as Peach Blossom, Blushing Bride and Colvillei, white, so that they would bloom by Easter, in a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees?

F. E. W.

None of the varieties named can be depended upon to come into flower for Easter, 1913, which comes as early as March 23. You cannot advance them by forcing, as this would simply ruin the plants. A temperature of 50 degrees at night is as high as it is advisable to grow them in, if stout stems and flowers with good substance are wanted. You can get such sorts as you have named in flower after the first week in April, but it will not pay you to attempt to flower them for an early Easter.

HIBISCUS.

Would you advise transplanting hibiscus in October?

G. F.

Hibiscus can be moved with safety any time during the present month.

Saginaw, Mich.—J. B. Goetz Sons are preparing to put up new glass that will add about 15,000 square feet to their capacity.

Blair, Neb.—W. J. Rodgers, formerly with C. H. Green at Fremont, Neb., is now in business here on his own account, as successor to John M. Reid.

Muskogee, Okla.—Henry Bresser has ordered a No. 14 Kroeschell boiler and generator, with the Kroeschell threaded tube piping system, for his large vegetable range.

New Philadelphia, O.—The Denison Floral Co., of which Jesse Denison is secretary and manager, has a salesroom and office in town, but the greenhouses have been built outside of town, near Uhrichsville.

Hamilton, Ont.—The marriage is announced of John Connon, president of the Connon Floral Co., and Miss Laurie J. Campbell. The ceremony took place October 2 at the home of the bride's parents at Thurso, Que.

Dallas, Tex.—The Lone Star Floral Co., 1607 Elm street, is a new-comer in the retail field here. The handsome store was designed and now is managed by Charles Chollar, formerly with the Texas Seed & Floral Co.

Camden, N. Y.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ethel M. Snow and Edward C. Marshall, September 25. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Snow and the Snow residence was handsomely decorated for the occasion.

Peoria, Ill.—Friends of J. C. Murray will regret to learn that he is ill at his residence at 2400 Perry avenue. Mr. Murray was taken ill a week or more ago with an attack of acute indigestion. Complications set in and his condition for a time was most serious, but it is now thought he has a fair chance of recovery.

Canton, O.—The last meeting of the Stark County Horticultural Society was held at the home of J. B. Zettler, the florist and nurseryman, on Clarendon avenue. Nearly 100 people were present and were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Zettler at dinner. The meeting was called to order by President B. M. Stier and an instructive discussion followed.

Greenville, O.—A recent fire at the establishment of James Frost, near the fair grounds on Sweitzer street, destroyed one section of the greenhouses and also a barn and shed, with the crops and other contents, including a valuable automobile and a large supply of coal. The loss, which amounted to several thousands of dollars, was only partly covered by insurance.

Tuscola, Ill.—The marriage is announced of George C. Schmidt and Mrs. Christina Gross at Decatur, Ill., September 25.

Aberdeen, Miss.—The Aberdeen Floral Co. is preparing to build another greenhouse, 30x150, to be used for carnations, and expects, also, to add two more houses, each 30x150, after January 1. Though in business only a short time, the firm is already building up a fine trade.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—R. Yonker is making a large addition, of Garland construction, to his range of modern vegetable houses. He has placed an order with the Kroeschell Bros. Co. for a duplicate system of its threaded tube piping system to heat the increased space.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—The John Ralph estate is installing a new sectional steam boiler of the largest size and making many improvements in the service building. Trade was excellent through the summer and September 17 a large dinner decoration was made for the United States Hotel management, using rose-colored asters and smilax. Katherine L. Ralph is in charge as executrix.

Kearney, Neb.—The Davidson Floral Co., of Holdrege, and H. S. Thompson, grower for the Davidson Co. for the last four years, have purchased the Kearney Floral Co., of this place, and took possession October 1. The concern was formerly owned by G. H. Downing. Mr. Thompson will move to Kearney at once, to take charge of the business, which will be continued under the same name as before.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—Paul Baesa, who last spring bought a piece of land 150x250 feet, located close to the business center, has completed his first greenhouses, covering 40x100 feet, with concrete walls and steam heat. The boiler shed, 25x30 feet, is located at a little distance. He still has to erect a potting shed and residence. His business prospects are considered good.

Amityville, N. Y.—Joseph Dinda shot himself in the mouth, September 19, in the barn on the premises of his brother, Frank Dinda, in whose greenhouses and nursery he had worked for three years. The deceased was 31 years of age and not married. Those who saw the body were not able to decide whether it was an accident or a case of self-destruction, there being no known reason for the latter.

La Crosse, Wis.—Although the La Crosse Floral Co. was organized so recently as 1908, it already has one of the largest and best equipped ranges of greenhouses in this part of the state. The firm started with 25,000 square feet of ground under glass; that area has since been doubled and another addition will probably be needed in the near future. The location of the range is said to be ideal, with reference to soil and other particulars.

Niles, Mich.—John Gipner, youngest son of John Gipner, the florist and gardener, recently met with an accident by which the sight of the left eye is totally destroyed. The boy was engaged in tearing down a fence on the farm of his grandmother, Mrs. Smith, north of town. He was using an axe as a wedge to remove some wire and was striking the axe with a hammer, when a piece of steel from the hammer flew into the eye.

Abilene, Kan.—The Abilene Greenhouses, formerly conducted by O. L. Van Ostrand, were purchased last April by W. M. A. and A. Werff, to be known in the trade as Werff Bros. One of the brothers had previously been employed at these greenhouses for two years. Under the management of the new proprietors, all the stock, including carnations, chrysanthemums and a fine lot of young rose plants, is in a promising condition.

Houston, Tex.—A pamphlet recently published here was called "Pen and Sunlight Sketches of Greater Houston." It carried no display advertising, which would be worth buying provided the publication had circulation, but contained 132 pages of the stereotyped kind of write-ups that nobody reads except the one written about. Three florists, two seedsmen and a nurseryman fell for the salve of the write-up artist.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE are two real scarcities—nicotine and manure.

ELECTION is less than a month away. Was there ever a "presidential year" that cut so little figure in a business way?

THE Greek florists in America have been called to arms in the war their country is waging against Turkey. Many will leave within the next few weeks.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

PRETTY nearly everybody who stored bronze galax of the 1911 crop is more or less badly stuck. Stock can be bought so cheaply in case lots that it will pay retailers to push the sale of galax wreaths.

CALL them accommodation accounts when your customers speak of having things charged. Make it clear that they are to settle once a month. See that they do it, and you are on safe ground with your credit system.

IT is getting to the point where the florist who ships plants of whatever character would better have his place inspected by his state authorities, even if they say the law does not require it—and use the tags. Many transportation delays will be avoided.

LESTER L. PARTRIDGE says there has been no general increase in the consumption of window glass in the last ten years; the production then as now stood at about 7,000,000 boxes per year. But the consumption of greenhouse sizes of window glass is, he says, fully three times what it was ten years ago.

YOU may give splendid value—much the best value obtainable—but only a certain part of the trade will come your way because of that value. If you don't persistently demand the attention of the buyers a lot of them will drift over to the fellow who doesn't give half so much for the money but who keeps after the trade.

A FLORIST, who is himself prompt to pay and at the head of an increasing business, says many in the trade make one or both of two mistakes: They either try to give too much for the money, or they give too much credit, or both. He asserts that the florists and the public are willing to pay for good stock and good service and that the florist who tries to see how much he can give without charging for it, and how long he can wait for his money, is only making for himself a reputation for being hard up and slow pay.

BEWARE!

The Subscription Swindler.

Once more The Review warns the trade against traveling subscription agents. The Review agents all are well-known men, permanently located in the territory they represent. Don't pay money to strangers.

A petty swindler is traveling through the country collecting subscriptions where he can, sometimes signing the name M. B. Cook, sometimes Thomas, Clark, Bruer, etc. He has thus far always used the same initials, M. B. With him it is anything to get the money, for he is a swindler. He has been through New England, New York and Pennsylvania. When last heard of he was in Cincinnati, but that was two weeks ago.

Don't pay money to strangers. Mail your subscriptions direct to The Review office and be safe.

Tell your friends.

IT'S ALL THERE.

There is one peculiarity about advertising that a good many people overlook: the more advertising there is in a publication the better it pays each individual advertiser. Here is the reason:

We are compelled to buy quite freely and find The Review a great convenience; we are almost always able to locate in it the things we need.—F. W. Arnold, Cambridge, O., October 1, 1912.

I have just finished two houses, 35x252, and bought most of my material from advertisers in The Review. Some of the material came from local people and to them I gave a copy of The Review with the suggestion that they could increase their business by becoming advertisers.—C. L. Niednagel, Evansville, Ind., October 2, 1912.

With such letters coming from subscribers, what could be more natural than receiving, from advertisers, such letters as the following?

The usual story when we advertise in The Review: sold out.—Scharff Bros., Van Wert, O., September 30, 1912.

We have sold out on bulbs, thanks to The Review—Boyle & Darnaud, San Diego, Cal., September 28, 1912.

The advertisement in The Review has brought us all the desired results.—R. C. Kerr Floral Co., Houston, Tex., September 30, 1912.

Our little ad of marguerite cuttings pulled so well that our orders are a little ahead of our propagation. To avoid a lot of correspondence with would-be customers we will discontinue until we catch up with orders, when you will hear from us again.—F. W. Fletcher & Co., Auburndale, Mass., October 2, 1912.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Slight change was noted in the market up to the end of last week and, while stock was undoubtedly coming in more freely than at any time during the last three weeks, the demand was more than equal to the supply and prices held strong. Both city and out-of-town orders were numerous and, in spite of the increase in receipts of both roses and carnations, the stock was cleared rapidly. The sudden decline of the first crop of early mums helped in this regard and, as the second early crops are not yet ready, it is expected that prices will hold fairly firm for a time, even in the event of larger cuts of roses and carnations. Those who have talked to growers, or who have visited the growing establishments around this section, report that within a short time the shortage will be relieved by large crops of both roses and carnations that are due to be cut within a fortnight or so. The demand at the opening of

YOU CAN GET ALL THE GOOD

BEAUTIES

YOU NEED IF YOU ORDER HERE

Our supply, without doubt, is the largest and steadiest in the United States. The quality is all that the most critical buyer could ask, and two of our best growers are just in crop. We have filled all orders from retailers during the recent scarcity, except for short (naturally at this season the cut runs mostly long and medium stem). If you have had trouble getting all the long and medium Beauties you need, and at a fair price, it will pay you to arrange with us for your future supply.

ROSES

The trade knows that there are no finer Roses than ours (the quality now is the best of the season to date), and this year we have fully double last year's supply—from new glass. Can take good care of a lot of new trade. Note we have a full line:

MRS. WARD SUNBURST BULGARIE
RADIANCE RICHMOND KILLARNEY
WHITE KILLARNEY MY MARYLAND

ORCHIDS

Our crop of Cattleya Labiata, the best of the autumn-blooming Orchids, is on, and you can set before your customers the finest quality, simply by sending us word to make a shipment. It will pay you to carry these as a regular item of stock. All the up-to-date stores will use them in quantity this season.

FANCY MUMS

Can supply White, Yellow and Pink. Well finished flowers of good size on long stems, well clothed with foliage—an excellent quality for so early in the season. We can keep YOU busy selling Mums from now till after Thanksgiving.

CARNATIONS

You will find our Carnations satisfactory. The flowers are good and the stems now of good length—some already are all that your critical trade could ask. A large supply and steadily increasing. All colors.

VIOLETS

Now receiving daily shipments of Violets that are excellent for the first of the season. Let your orders come. Don't you want a daily shipment?

Fancy Valley always on hand.

the present week was not so strong as at the close of the week before.

Beauties have not been so plentiful as heretofore and the price of these has advanced in the face of the shortage of mums. There have been plenty of long Beauties but a marked scarcity of shorts, with many Richmonds being substituted for medium Beauties. As far as quality is concerned, the Beauties are all that could be asked in both bud and stem and they move without any effort on the part of the wholesalers—in fact, the demand for the last few days has been so strong that many shipments are sold before they reach the market. There has been some eastern stock in the market.

White roses also maintain a good price and the supply is not equal to the demand. Killarney and White Killarney as well as Maryland are more abundant than last week, but, like all other flowers of good quality, they are easily disposed of. Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon and Radiance cannot be cut in large enough quantities to supply the call. The roses that arrived October 7 were mostly wide open, as a result of two hot days preceding, and shipping stock was more or less scarce.

White carnations enjoy a popular demand from local and out-of-town buyers and few are to be had at less than 2½ cents, while the best bring 3 cents. Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress stand second in popularity, but these as well as the good colored ones move without any cut in prices. Fair stems are now shown.

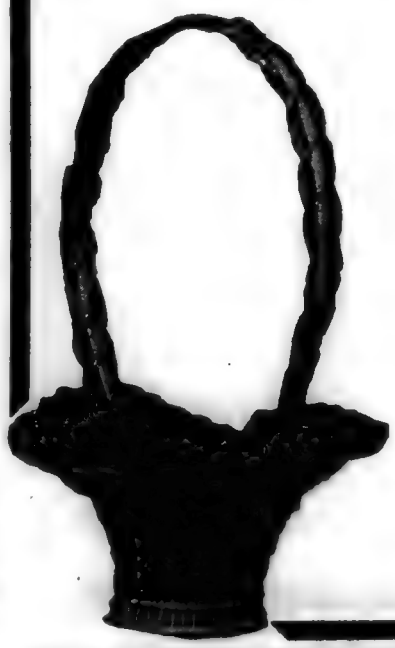
Cattleyas are in good supply. Eastern shipments are numerous. Special sales by local retailers have assisted somewhat in taking care of the surplus, but there are still enough left to fill all demands. Violets are not yet coming along strongly enough to make them a factor on the market and, although the few that have arrived have been disposed of at fair prices, no special demand is yet in evidence. Valley has felt little or no decline during the last week and prices still hold stiff, as the supply is not especially large. Lilies have shown better quality in the last ten days and are being used freely for funeral work.

Jurgens & Pieser's Peonies.

The following is from the Gazette, published at Houghton, Mich., September 30:

A large Chicago floral concern, the largest growers of peonies in the world, has plowed and will plant next week four acres of land owned by the Tamarack Mining Co., located near the Tamarack M. E. church. The land was rented some time ago from the local agent of the Tamarack Co., and 16,000 plants will arrive here in cars next week and will be planted at once. Eventually it is planned to plant 40,000 plants a year here. The Chicago company has peony plantations in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and other central states, but this is its first in northern Michigan. The manager of the concern will be here next week to supervise the placing of the plants. It is impossible at this time to divulge the name of the company.

This is the peony farm of Jurgens & Pieser, with which Review readers are familiar. Mr. Jurgens went to Houghton October 6 to superintend the planting. He expects to be home early next week.



Various Notes.

September 19 $250 was stolen from the room of an employee of J. Bombenger, Sixty-fourth street and Woodlawn avenue. September 23 George Bombenger, the florist's son, 15 years old, disappeared and no trace of him has since been found. He left a note stating that he could not stand suspicion, but no one had thought of him in connection with the theft, which appeared to be the work of a professional. George is tall for his age, standing five feet seven inches. He has brown hair and gray eyes, and his cheeks are deeply tanned. He wore a sack suit of light gray check. The family will welcome news of him.

The Wilber Mercantile Agency has undertaken the organization of the Chicago wholesale florists along the lines of the association operated for several years by the wholesalers in New York, where it is said to have worked with much success. Without doubt the greatest weakness in the market at present is the credit system.

W. E. Lynch, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., was at Evanston October 3 and visited John Scheiden's new place. Since the dissolution of the firm of Scheiden & Schoos, Mr. Scheiden has put up a range of seven new houses, each 27 x 180, Foley material, and planted 40,000 carnations, including Enchantress, White Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Perfection, Beacon, Victory and Boston Market. He has the Winandy heating system, which consists of an overhead flow with the returns carried on concrete posts and the crosspieces of the benches laid on the pipes.

John Schoepfle has just bought the finest villa on Powers Lake, in Wisconsin, a property of two acres, heavily wooded, that cost the seller, but not Mr. Schoepfle, $25,000. He will sell at a profit or use it as a summer home. Mr. Schoepfle recently declined an offer of about two and a half times the cost for his property on Belmont avenue on which his flower store and greenhouses are located and where he has a branch post-office as a tenant.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has started filling orders from the new plant department, which was recently established at Morton Grove with C. G. Anderson as manager. Over 60,000 square feet of glass has been turned over to Mr. Anderson and this is being added to as new imported stock arrives. The department was started last spring and a full line of plants will be handled, with the plant headquarters at Morton Grove.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., says Sunburst has taken the place of Ward as the rose the buyers ask for.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., says this is to be a ruscus Christmas. He says orders are coming in for extremely large lots, one order last week having been for 1,000 pounds and another for 500 pounds.

George Perdikas has completed the remodeling of his main store at 407 South Wabash avenue and the new all-metal Kawneer store front makes a decided change for the better so far as window display is concerned.

N. J. Wietor will let his mustache grow again. During the few days he has been without it his friends have not been able to recognize him without a second look.

Being in a fast growing section of Woodlawn, Michal Bros., 7033 Stony Island avenue, have found their 10,000 square feet of glass too small to take care of their wants and will erect two new, modern houses, 25x165, before Easter. A new store of artistic design will also be built fronting on Cottage Grove avenue.

to take the measure of the member of the Board of Education.

Julius Zschau, a grower at 29 East One Hundred and Second street, says that the retail store at 11140 Michigan avenue has done so well in the last year that he is unable to do any shipping to the Chicago wholesalers. He has completed another new house, which will be used for carnations. His only complaint is the scarcity of help.

E. F. Winterson, Jr., will celebrate his twenty-first birthday anniversary September 11.

John Vander Wal, 10421 Michigan avenue, reports stock in the best of shape and says he has already started to cut a crop of Smith's Advance mums; about 8,000 will be ready within a short time. Enchantress has been dropped, but a big planting of other varieties is making good progress and should be in crop in two weeks or so.

E. F. Winterson reports that W. N. Rudd began cutting chrysanthemums at the end of last week.

Combining the florists' business with building flying machines appeals to Fred Quasthoff, Jr., and his brother, Carl, who have constructed a Quasthoff monoplane and will take it to West Pullman for a flight sometime this fall. They expect to build a Curtis biplane this winter. Both boys have been students of aeronautics for a long time and are sons of Fred Quasthoff, the retailer at 812 East Forty-sixth street.

William Kidwell, who has a large retail business at 929 East Forty-third street, states that trade has become more brisk on the south side and besides funeral work he reports a number of large weddings that helped make the month of September a banner one. October started off fine, he adds.

The two florists' organizations will be in session tonight, October 10. The Chicago Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting at the Union. The Cook County Florists' Association will have a ladies' night, with vaudeville and a dollar dinner at the Tavern.

According to J. W. Breakey, 3907 Cottage Grove avenue, the demand for baskets for funerals is growing and he predicts that designs will be a thing of the past in a few years.

Frank Schramm, of Arlington Heights, is able to be about again after an illness that kept him in bed for ten weeks; a recurrence of the old trouble with his leg. He is cutting carnations but no mums, his stock of the latter being late varieties, mostly Bonnaffon. He plants his mums in the field in spring, just as he does carnations, and benches in July or August.

F. W. Martin, 609 East Fortieth street, says Boston ferns are having quite a run at his place. He finds the ferns more profitable to grow in his limited space than cut flowers and manages to produce enough to supply several other south side retailers who have no glass.

A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., is at Springfield this week acting as assistant to the superintendent of floriculture.

M. Molenaar, 7112 Indiana avenue, has completed his new greenhouse and will start planting within a short time. He also conducts a truck garden business, but says that there appears to be so much more demand for flowers than formerly that he cannot resist the temptation to get back into the trade once more.

The United Fertilizer Co. has moved its factory and warehouse stock to Morton Grove.

John Degnan says the wholesale demand for bulbs indicates a shortage in a number of varieties of Dutch stock. The weather has been too fine for retail sales.

John Kruchten says he believes that carnations will be short of the demand until colder weather comes on. His growers report an excellent crop of second early mums for cutting within a short time.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, reports that the construction work on the new range at Greggs Station will be completed by October 12 and the plant will then be put into full operation. Carnations already have been planted in some of the houses.

Miss Martha Meyer, daughter of Jacob Meyer, of Morton Grove, left for California October 9 with friends from Evanston.

A. C. Spencer, of Kyle & Foerster, is a Cub fan and insists that luck is the only chance for the Sox to win the city series.

O. Johnson says the Batavia Greenhouse Co. will force 125,000 valley pips for the season.

President Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says that the run on roses last week was the heaviest they have known for some time and, although the cut was double that of two weeks ago, there was no surplus.

The walk in front of the building of L. Baumann & Co., on Chicago avenue, was occupied October 4 by large packing cases consigned to a dozen florists. Mr. Gueldermann reports business as decidedly rushing of late.

C. E. Franke, superintendent of parks at Oklahoma City, was a visitor last week.

W. J. Smyth has replaced the stock box in the workroom of his store on the south side with a much larger one.

Frank Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, has been in town for several days.

H. Van Gelder, of Percy Jones, was on the sick list last week with a high fever, but was down, looking over business matters again, October 8.

O. W. Frese says that Poehlmann Bros. Co. sent its usual display to help educate the big crowds that attend the state fair.

Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, states that dahlias have found a good market lately.

Sidney Buchbinder, of Buchbinder Bros., is busy with a new catalogue on florists' refrigerators, which will be ready for the trade within a short time.

J. Zech, of Zech & Mann, was visiting growers October 8.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather has been ideal the last two weeks. Frost was predicted by the weather man a week ago and the park men and florists were scurrying around in great shape to get ready for it, but it never materialized. It has been dry, but this is no hardship at this time of year. Outdoor roses are blooming again and it is expected that this will continue for two weeks at least. Business is picking up all along the line. Dahlias are at last beginning to appear and are of good quality. They retail at 75 cents per dozen. Chrysanthemums are still scarce and bring good prices. The cut of roses is good, Melody and Radiance making their appearance of late. Carnations are improving, both in numbers and quality. Violets are few and of poor quality. Asters are gone to stay, but, in the nature of a surprise, there were plenty of first-class gladioli this week. They were needed, as flowers are none too plentiful as yet.

Various Notes.

The weather for threshing the cow peas and harvesting the last of the soy beans is ideal. The seedsmen report that southern grown onion sets, such as Yellow Multiplier, are so high and scarce as to amount to almost a famine.

The first of the Dutch bulb drummers was in town this week, but it was too early to make the trade anxious to buy.

The fall planting is on now, and the trade in bulbs and roses is better than ever before. We hear rumors of rather extensive planting of ornamental trees along the streets in some parts of the town.

At the Hillcrest School Farm the appearance of a new pest is reported on outdoor roses, in the shape of a worm about two inches long and three-eighths of an inch in diameter. It is colored much the same as the celery worm, but is woolly. It devours the foliage, a single specimen often eating all the leaves on a small plant.

The Nashville Seed Co. has again ceased to exist. The proprietor, Mr. Odell, finds it necessary to do outdoor work for his health.

McKay, Reese & Co. report that the seed business continues the heaviest they have ever experienced in the fall. They say that cheaper prices on grass seeds is partly responsible.

Geny Bros. report good out-of-town business that has helped clean everything up. Their Aaron Ward roses continue plentiful. F. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The week ending Wednesday, October 9, witnessed an increased volume of business. The supply of flowers grew faster than the demand, causing easier prices, except on fine stock. The business in dahlias was probably the largest of the season; the blooms are at their best. The warm weather, which mars their keeping qualities, was a drawback. Chrysanthemums are becoming plentiful. All the early varieties are in full crop. Golden Glow is over with some growers, but Monrovia, the new Yellow Polly Rose and the beautiful Chrysolora give abundant yellow of good quality. White is represented by October Frost, Mrs. Kalb, Early Snow and Polly Rose, and pink by Glory of Pacific, Pink Polly Rose, Unaka and the first Pacific Supreme. It takes fine stock to bring over $2 a dozen.

Roses are plentiful. White are in demand. Choice Mrs. Taft and Radiance sell well in limited numbers, as do short-stemmed Mrs. Ward. Rather better value is given in Killarney and in Maryland, while the sales are much larger than the novelties. White carnations sell more freely than colored. The buyers appear to consider the Wards at $3 a better investment than other varieties at $1 and $1.50. Cattleyas continue plentiful. Prices are more attractive for quantity orders, taken as they come. Valley is fair. Gardenias are in moderate demand. It is too warm for violets, although there are plenty of nice singles to be had. Asters are almost over. A few gladioli still are seen. There is some splendid cosmos. Mexican ivy has arrived. Additions to the orchid list include oncidiums, Vanda cœrulea and Dendrobium Formosum. Easter lilies are rather scarce.

The New Buyer.

Since Raymond Kesler resigned his position as buyer for Pennock Bros. there has been no little interest manifested in the choice of his successor. It was known that J. Liddon Pennock took a flying trip to Ocean City some time ago to look after a business matter. It so chanced that when he arrived there A. B. Cartledge, in the Marguerite, was nearby. Mr. Pennock went out to the Commodore's yacht. The two members of the firm held a five-minute conference, settling then and there the question of the new buyer. Last week one who is in the councils of Pennock Bros. was quoted in this column as saying that the position would be filled by J. Liddon Pennock himself. Today this is changed to Alfred B. Cartledge, son of the senior member of the firm, who comes to his new position with the confidence and good wishes of all.

Jacob Becker's New Store.

Interest this week centers in the new store at 5210 Market street, where neat gilt script proclaims that Jacob Becker, florist, is open for business. Mr. Becker's reputation as a grower is for producing the best, so that callers expected to find this idea maintained in his retail venture. They were not disappointed. Every article of furniture in the store suggests substantiality and usefulness. There is nothing flimsy, nothing unnecessary. Every detail of arrangement is carefully worked out. The handsome fern-filled window, with the touches of bright color; the ribbon case, the show ice-box, the bank-like cashier's office, all confirm this impression. The conservatory in the rear of the store is a growing house, an important point, too. This conservatory is arranged for effect. It is beautiful from the street as well as on close view. To it are connected Mr. Becker's five plant houses, where choice azaleas, poinsettias, ferns and later lilies will be produced as of yore for the wholesale market, where Mr. Becker's product is highly prized.

Various Notes.

A. Emerich, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, was in this city a few days.

John Wilson formally opened Kugler's Flower Store October 8, the date being changed from October 2, as originally announced.

Miss Rae W. Evans and Stuart Miller were married October 9. Happiness, health and wealth.

E. E. Bragg, Jr., arrived at the home of his father, Robert Bragg, October 1, where he received a warm welcome.

William J. Baker returned to his office October 7, just in time to see those fine Chrysoloras sent in by William Swayne, of Kennett Square.

John Cella is the new manager for the Diamond street store of J. J. Habermehl's Sons. He assumed charge October 7.

Recent visitors include Mrs. Leon Despland, of the Daytona Floral Co., Daytona, Fla., and Mrs. M. Christian, Baltimore, Md.

Percy Uttermehl is store manager for Jacob Becker.

Paul Berkowitz has returned from a business trip to New York.

Leo Niessen reports the arrival of Mexican ivy.

Edward Reid says business is above normal.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have increased their force of packers so that night work may be discontinued.

M. Rice & Co. have installed a new electrical plant in their annex, that operates all their improved machinery for light and power. The latter includes compressed air and soldering irons. This progressive house believes in keeping abreast of the times.

Edward Habermehl reports important wedding orders for October, debutante tea orders for November and balls for December for the Bellevue-Stratford. The short season will commence early.

William Langdon, famous as carnation grower for the late John E. Haines, of South Bethlehem, Pa., is now with Max H. Rothe, of Mt. Airy. Mr. Rothe has just completed a new Foley house.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. advantageously marketed a heavy crop of White Killarney last week. Their Killarneys this week are getting into winter form.

The dahlia show of the Henry F. Michell Co., held last week, proved a great success. There were dahlias from Andalusia, from Atco, from Williamstown Junction and from the private gardeners, 5,000 blooms in all. There was a great throng of visitors, who freely used the gift notebooks for recording names of desirable sorts for their home gardens. Phil.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business continued quite satisfactory during the greater part of last week. We had cool weather and this started up business with the retailers with a decided snap. This was followed by a spell of Indian summer heat, which caused a little cessation in buying. On the whole, however, trade is good and the daily clean-up all that could be expected.

Roses are easily the leaders and are more in evidence than any other flowers. Chrysanthemums are rapidly coming to the front and will dispute supremacy in a few days. At all the leading stores Mme. Charles Russell is proving a great seller and is the rose sensation of the season here. A good second is Christy Miller, which finds general favor. Each of these is now of fine quality. Prince de Bulgarie, Cardinal, Killarney and White Killarney and Killarney Queen are all good, while the various yellows, including Sunburst, are selling well.

Carnations are steadily improving and cut more of a figure each day. Some double as well as single violets are arriving. Lilies are up in price and sell well, as does lily of the valley. While we have had some frosts, they have not been sufficiently severe to finish off outside flowers and a good variety is still coming in. Among chrysanthemums Polly Rose and Pacific are now the leaders, but Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, G. S. Kalb, Halliday, October Frost and one or two others are arriving. Cattleyas are getting quite abundant and there are more gardenias. The trade in asparagus and adiantum is quite good.

Among pot plants, cyclamens and Lorraines are now good and in demand. Nephrolepis and other ferns are also moving well. Plant business in general is taking on new life.

Various Notes.

The cyclamens at Thomas Roland's, Nahant, are a grand sight. There are eight houses of them, over a quarter of an acre, every plant a specimen. At Revere this season Mr. Roland grew forty tons of tomatoes in his new house, 60 x 500. He now has this house planted with white and pink sweet peas for Thanksgiving and Christmas trade. Material is arriving this week for another Lord & Burnham house, 61 x 500. The contract calls for completion by November 15.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, October 5, the sum of $7,500 was voted for prizes at exhibitions to be held in 1913. An invitation to the American Sweet Pea Society to hold its next convention and show in Horticultural hall was ordered forwarded. Fifteen new members were elected. It was voted to offer one gold and three silver medals at the National Flower Show in New York in April, 1913.

There was a fine display of fruits and vegetables at the annual exhibition in Horticultural hall, October 4 to 6. E. B. Dane, Donald McKenzie, gardener, received a silver medal for a finely flowered Vanda Sanderiana carrying two spikes and twenty-three flowers. Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Wm. Thatcher, gardener, had a nice group of orchids. W. Whitman, M. Sullivan, gardener, had a fine pair of Caryota urens, and a display of annuals.

At the great Brockton fair, October 1 to 4, New England's greatest outdoor carnival, President and Mrs. Taft were this year among the visitors. Among

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Dayton has been favored with a delightful week of fall weather, with plenty of sunshine and just enough snap in the air to remind one that autumn is here. With such weather conditions, roses and carnations cropped abundantly, especially roses, which are coming in faster than it is possible to dispose of them. The demand for stock has kept up wonderfully throughout the week and everyone seems satisfied. While there is not a large variety of greenhouse stock on the market, there are plenty of roses and carnations. Lilies are in big demand but hard to get, on account of the growers holding them back to allow room for chrysanthemums. At the present time no one is overstocked on chrysanthemums and what few are on the market sell readily. Thus, good prices are obtained for all that come in. We have already had several light frosts, which have injured some of the more tender plants, but judging from the looks of the outdoor market last week the damage was not great.

Growers predict that this warm weather will bring in their rose crops too fast, and they fear that when the cooler weather sets in they will be short on roses.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs has been on the sick list for a week, but at the present writing her condition is somewhat improved.

Herman Haerlin, superintendent at the National Military Home greenhouses, has returned from his yachting nated for congressman on the Bull Moose ticket.

Mrs. W. G. Engle spent last week in Xenia, O.

Wm. McNary, who has been ill for the last two weeks, with bronchitis, is reported slowly improving.

Joseph Furst has also been on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew and Mr. and Mrs. James Ewing spent Sunday, October 6, in Centerville, O., as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leslie.

Herbert Bartholomew played football in Miamisburg, O., October 6, with the Wolverines.

The floral department of the Rike-Kumler Co. had a special run on made-up baskets last week.

Claude Leslie, accompanied by a party of friends, went to Trotwood October 6, walnut hunting. He came home with enough nuts to pay for the time spent.

Mrs. B. Haschke says trade is picking up along all lines. She has a large decoration for the Country Club this week.

M. Anderson returned from Cleveland last week. He reports business fine in his store at that place.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson did especially well on Boston ferns last week.

Warren G. Matthews, of the Dayton Floral Co., tells us that the work on his new boilers is completed. They are already in use and running well. The company is busy with decorations and weddings. They have an order to furnish seventy-five cases of southern smilax for the National Cash Register Co.

The Miami Floral Co. has all its Dutch and French bulbs planted for early spring use. They are cutting a heavy crop of roses at present.

All hands were busy at H. H. Ritter's place last week, making up funeral orders.

Finley Neibert has been on the sick list with tonsilitis.

Mrs. E. Young is confined to the house with heart trouble.

Andrew C. Unglaub, of Springfield, was in town October 6.

Forrest Mittman and A. Shalnat spent a few days last week with friends in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shaner, of Brookville, O., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Engle last week.

Another occasion that will consume quantities of flowers will be the opening of Dayton's new theater, the Colonial. The opening date is October 14 and florists are already receiving some large orders for this event.

The Dayton Florists' Club held its first meeting of the season at J. F. Young's store October 3.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Business for the last week has been slow, compared with the record of a year ago. The unusual amount of funeral work that most of the florists had at the end of last week seems to make this week's retail business particularly slow by contrast, though a good many orders are being taken for weddings, dances and other special functions.

Roses are arriving in good condition, especially the Tafts. Beauties are fetching anything from $2 to $10. Easter lilies are becoming plentiful. The large white and yellow mums, which are always favorites, sell quickly. Gladioli are plentiful. Tuberoses, while not of first-class quality, are useful for design work. Carnations are improving and are firmer, but both pink and white are scarce. Violets have arrived and are welcomed by all. The few slight frosts have not yet hurt the asters, though they, of course, are not so plentiful now. Prices on all flowers are about as usual.

Various Notes.

George Crosman, of Crosman Bros. Co., seedsmen, is on a ten days' trip, visiting Boston, Philadelphia and New York.

Edwin C. Armbrust, who was formerly with J. B. Keller's Sons, has commenced business as a florist in Northampton, Mass. His many friends in this city wish him success.

George T. Boucher is being kept fairly busy. He reports trade as good. He has had several weddings to provide for recently. He competed in the Syracuse fair and was successful in taking a prize for the one piece shown.

Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice & Co., was here last week with a splendid Abbie Yohn, of Hague street, and John Volmer, of Buena place, Rochester, were married at the Holy Redeemer church, October 1. Mr. Volmer is in the employ of J. B. Keller's Sons.

Horace J. Head has returned from his trip to England and is occupying his former position as designer in H. E. Wilson's store. While in England he exhibited an immense floral design, "Rock of Ages," at one of the fairs and secured a certificate of "Very highly commended." The piece was not for competition.

Felix Alberts, of Henry P. Neun's flower store, exhibited nine floral pieces at the New York state fair, Syracuse, and won eight firsts and one third. The work shown consisted of funeral pieces and wedding bouquets. The prizes amounted to about $107. "Rochester-made" means quality. Evidently our designers are "doing it" for Rochester.

Morris Cohen, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week. He was showing a large line of novelties. One of the main features is the new gold-lace chiffon, which is effective for decorative purposes.

Other visitors for the week included Robert Greenlaw, of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; Mr. Snyder, of the Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia; A. G. Ford, of A. Herrmann, New York, and Wm. B. Lake, of Philadelphia.

CINCINNATI.

Beware the Subscription Faker!

A swindler who has been operating through the east was last heard of at Cincinnati. He solicits subscriptions to The Review, or doubtless any other paper one appears likely to pay the price for. But he is not authorized to act for The Review, and never sends in the money. Don't pay money for The Review except to someone you know. C. H. Hoffmeister is The Review's only authorized representative in Cincinnati. It is a good rule never to pay money to strangers.

The Gateway to the South.

The demand for stock of all kinds continues active in the face of an easy market. The warm weather last week caused an influx of stock that reached its culmination October 7, when none of the wholesalers cleaned up. Cooler weather is in sight and should bring the supply down to a point where the demand will take care of it.

Every seasonable flower in the market is in good supply and can easily take care of all ordinary and extraordinary calls. The list includes the many varieties of roses, American Beauties, carnations, giganteum lilies, chrysanthemums, valley, orchids, dahlias and cosmos. A few violets have made their appearance. Sweet peas are arriving in small quantities.

Business in greens is good. There is a heavy call for smilax, plumosus and wild smilax.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell last week received a supply of new boxwood. The stock this year is excellent.

P. J. Olinger cleaned up handsomely this fall on carnation blooms from plants left over in the field.

last week put in a large stock of boxes of cut wire.

The new Hill-Heller store is doing considerable advertising in the daily papers. Last week the dollar box was pushed and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses at 50 cents per dozen. A reception by Myer Heller, to his friends and those interested, was a feature October 4.

Peter Weiland shipped the first violets into the market. They were Princess of Wales that, considering the season, were excellent.

Ed. Schumann and Nick Weber are piscatorial artists. They caught forty-three pounds of bass at Bantam, O., one day last week. We all feel certain the story is straight, for the reputation for veracity of these sportsmen is high.

Miss Florence Windram and Oliver Hetsch were united in wedlock last week. The couple are now on their honeymoon. When they return Mr. Hetsch will manage the Lake Shore Ferneries, at Leesburg, Fla.

The Bloomhurst Floral Co. has everything at its plant in first-class shape. A big house of poinsettias looks even better than the fine ones of last year.

other two passengers were dangerously injured. All are Cincinnati people. The accident occurred near Venice, O., September 29.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

There has been little change in conditions since last week. Trade is about the same and stock has not shown much increase. There are a few more chrysanthemums, but they are still scarce. The wholesale man is having an easy time, as he cleans everything out as soon as he gets it and has nothing to put away. Violets are coming, but the demand has not come to any extent. Prices in general, however, are good, and the grower who is fortunate enough to have anything to sell feels happy.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday evening, October 1, with a fair crowd present and a good show of dahlias. While the gardeners here take a good deal of interest in dahlias, this cannot be said to be a great dahlia city.

A letter from the New York Florists' Club regarding a publicity committee was read and favorably discussed, and a committee was appointed, with De Forest Ludwig as chairman.

Neil McCallum entertained the members with a talk on some of the more common flowers, made more interesting by his intimate acquaintance with them and the wonderful things he knows about them.

After the business was concluded, quite a nice lunch was served by the hotel, and when all had partaken, wondering meanwhile who the good angel was, Mr. Reineman announced the marriage, some time ago, of William Falconer, who took this means of informing the boys. Mr. Falconer was present in the early part of the evening, but was too bashful to stay and receive the hearty congratulations which were expressed for both Mr. and Mrs. Falconer.

Various Notes.

Ed Meaner, of Randolph & McClements, is a sufferer from Beauty thorns and his hand and arm are in such a condition that there is great danger of blood poisoning. He has the sympathy of his many friends in the death of his brother, whom they took to Denver, Colo., about a month ago, hoping to restore his health. His death has just been reported.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is showing a gradual increase along general lines. What is needed is a killing frost to do away with the outdoor stock and create a demand. Stock is becoming more plentiful. Roses are almost in surplus. Carnations are becoming plentiful and are improving in quality. Mums are coming in nicely, Smith's Advance being the prevailing white. Valley and orchids are unusually scarce. The demand is heavy. October weddings are beginning to loom up, with a heavy call for decorative material.

Various Notes.

M. Reukauf is in town.

S. Inuzuka, of the Nippon Floral Co., died from the effects of an operation for appendicitis.

James Wilkinson, who has opened a flower store at Oregon City, reports business satisfactory.

J. B. Feustman, with the Pine Tree Silk Mills, is calling on the local trade.

A. J. Rossi and D. MacRorie, of San Francisco, spent a few days in the city en route home from an eight weeks' trip through the east.

Shipments of bulbs from the orient are arriving in due season.

Byron & Jensen are contributing some nice double violets to the local market.

E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather has been warm for October and stock of all kinds is arriving in good quantities. Mums are the most noticeable flowers at present and although they are not yet as plentiful as they will be, there is a good crop now on. Carnations are more in evidence than they have been and the prices are lower than a year ago. Roses are not quite up to color at present, but this can be charged to the unusually warm weather for the last month, as its effect on the young planted stock has not been the best. Late blooming amaryllis and gladioli are good and dahlias were never better. Violets, although the weather does not suit them, are becoming more plentiful daily. They do not keep as well as could be expected and nothing short of a rain will put them right. Valley and orchids are in sufficient quantity to fill requirements and other seasonable flowers are about as usual.

Various Notes.

Preparations are being made by the nurserymen of California for their annual convention, which will be held at the Oakland Chamber of Commerce November 7 and 8. The program is being arranged and will be decorated with an illustration of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce building. Committees on the following topics have been appointed: Legislation, transportation, nomenclature, deciduous fruits, citrus and tropical fruits, gardens, plants, flowers, native vegetation, forestry and exhibitions. Each of the topics will be treated by an expert. The officers of the California Asociation of Nurserymen are as follows: President, W. V. Eberly; vice-presidents, Leonard Coates, F. H. Wilson, F. H. Howard, Almon Wheeler and Thos. Chisholm; secretary-treasurer, H. W. Kruckeberg; executive committee, M. J. Crow, E. Wightman and C. W. Howard. G.

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Any florist on the Pacific coast not satisfied to do a local retail business can build up a prosperous wholesale trade by using space in The Review to let the buyers know where stock is to be found. This way:

We have found advertising in The Review to be very satisfactory. We have had orders from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Pacific coast, showing that your valued paper has a very wide circulation. At any time we have any special advertising to do we certainly shall send it to The Review.—Hogan & Kooyman, Oakland, Cal., October 3, 1912.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

While trade can hardly be said to be first-class, there is a decided improvement over recent conditions. The fine weather has kept many flower buyers out of the city, but presently they will be flocking back and trade will soon resume normal conditions. Outside stock, except cosmos, is now about over and this, too, helps to improve business. Carnations are scarce, but most of the other varieties of stock are in

OLIVE TREES BY THE MILLION.

The Gibraltar Investment & Home Building Co., owner of what are said to be the largest olive nurseries in the world, has added another link to its chain of more than thirty nurseries in southern California by acquiring land at Hemet upon which is to be installed a propagating plant for nursery stock which will have but one rival, it is said, on the Pacific coast—that now under construction on the holdings of the company at San Bernardino. Isaiah Martin, president of the corporation, has for some months been adding to its nursery and other holdings in an effort to keep pace with the increasing demand for olive trees, and states that within a short time the company will have more than 6,000,000 olive cuttings under propagation.

At Hemet the company already has six large nurseries in which a large assortment of nursery stock in general is being propagated, and, in addition, will soon have 3,000,000 olive cuttings under cultivation. Hotbeds, etc., are now being prepared for their earthing. The new plant at Hemet, with the exception of the one at San Bernardino, of which it is to be a duplicate, will be the largest on the Pacific coast devoted to the raising of olive stock for orchard purposes. H. J. Wippert, assistant general manager of the nursery and land department of the Gibraltar Co., and superintendent of the Hemet branch, will have charge of the plant's erection under the direction of C. H. Wilhite, vice-president of the corporation.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are leaders in the market now, the stock being good as well as plentiful. Bonnaffon is the most popular in yellow, with Appleton a close second. Local grown flowers are much better than a week ago and fresher than those shipped in from the north. All have cleaned up well so far and the price has been well maintained. Indoor roses are plentiful and of excellent quality generally. Beauties are fine in color and stem. The Killarneys are good and My Maryland is much improved. The stems being cut from young plants run from eighteen to twenty-four inches in length. Carnations are overplentiful, as are centaureas and outdoor stock generally. Orchids are more plentiful, fine local grown flowers of Cattleya labiata being among the best offerings. Gladioli still are arriving in large numbers, but clean up fairly well. Smilax is more plentiful now, some elegant strings being shown, and there are plenty of all other greens, including a rush-like grass which is known locally as "French." Business continues good, wholesalers and retailers being well satisfied. Wedding decorations and funeral work still form the principal outlet.

Various Notes.

At the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held at Kruckeberg's hall October 1, the committee in charge of the Eastlake park conservatory inquiry presented its report. This was an exhaustive one, touching on all the points at issue, and it was unanimously the sense of the meeting that the committee be retained to continue its work. In the Municipal News, a paper owned by the people of Los Angeles, the park commission, or someone closely connected with it, made the most gross representations as to the conservatory and a fake wash drawing, purporting to be a photograph of the house, was published. The editor admitted to Dr. Houghton that "they had put one over on him" and October 2 he came out with a cut prepared from a photograph showing the true state of affairs. Unfortunately, the text of the article was again inspired from the park commission and absolutely no answer has been made to the criticisms by the society. According to this sheet, Commissioner O'Melveny naively remarks that "about the only feature which might induce criticism was the heavy metal structural work, but he did not feel this should be changed." If it were not so serious a matter to the citizens this would be laughable—the sad part about it is that Mr. O'Melveny, a genuine plant lover and liberal patron of horticulture, should, by his association with men who do not care a rush about either, be placed in such a position and have to take so indefensible an attitude.

Tony Tassano had to be away from business several days, being under the weather, but is back again at his post. Good pompon and single chrysanthemums, as well as the larger flowering kinds, are shown here and the consignments of French grass move off well.

Splendid mums are being handled by the Los Angeles Flower Market in large quantities. The quality of the locally grown cattleyas shown here is also extra good. Business is brisk and keeps the whole force on the jump.

At Wright's Flower Shop the whole of the interior of the store, walls, ceiling and pillars, has been covered with birch bark. The effect is most pleasing. New chandeliers and other fittings give the store quite a novel appearance and the stock, always good, is exceptionally fine just now. The roses and other flowers coming in from the firm's greenhouses at Gardena are especially good and reflect great credit on the grower, Mr. Brown.

Business keeps up well at the store of the Hayward Floral Co., and H. Reeve Darling is well satisfied with the showing this season.

At the Roserie Flower Shop, on Broadway, wedding and funeral work keeps all busy. C. J. Muller puts in his time between the store and the nursery on Washington street. Fine ferns are being sent in from there.

Frank Lichtenberg looks much improved in health and says he feels better. "A quiet week" was his report.

Local advertising seems to be catching. The Redondo Floral Co. has started in with a card in the Municipal News.

S. Murata has removed his wholesale department to 751 South Broadway.

Dieterich & Turner are shipping fine Boston ferns and palms.

H. R. Richards.

San Bernardino, Cal.—George J. Fowler, owner of Harlem Springs, is planning the erection of a range of greenhouses for the growing of vegetables, fruits and flowers. He is forming a syndicate for the carrying out of his plans, and the initial expenditure may reach $20,000. The natural hot water of Harlem Springs, which is said to have a temperature of 124 degrees as it comes from the ground, will be utilized in heating the houses.

WE COVER THE FIELD

It is not necessary for a retailer to send to one firm for his flowers, another for greens and another for supplies. We keep everything a retailer needs in stock at all times, and we will appreciate your inquiries. We handle the entire cut of 25 large growers of hothouse and outdoor cut flowers and keep in constant touch with the largest and most exclusive eastern supply houses. Our indoor greens are grown under our personal supervision, and we have control of the best localities for wild stock, such as Mexican Ivy, Huckleberry, Ferns and Moss. This is a combination hard to beat.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

VISITED CHICAGO: Joseph L. Schilder, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O.

THE Ohio Valley Seed Co., Evansville, Ind., is building a warehouse 48x125.

THE weather has been too fine and warm for rapid sales of bulbs for bedding.

THE members of the firm of Moers Bros., Houston, Tex., are Charles L. and John S. Moers.

A REPORT from Holland speaks of a large overstock of spinach and an almost absence of demand.

THE seedsmen in the southwest already are getting busy on the new season. Texas, for instance, is a state in which seed selling never ceases.

As time goes on the situation on sweet peas appears to get worse rather than better. This appears to be one of the cases in which the early reports were not exaggerated.

THE officers of Reichardt & Schulte Co., Houston, Tex., are: President, Louis Bismarck Schulte; vice-president, Mrs. Cora A. Reichardt; secretary, Edward H. Schulte; treasurer, H. F. Reichardt.

THE Covington-Harrison Seed Co. has been incorporated at Petersburg, Va., with a capital stock of $1,500 to $5,000. The officers of the company are: President, Peter W. Covington; vice-president, George W. Harrison; secretary and treasurer, Thomas Covington, Jr.

ONION SETS.

"The supply of onion sets for the season of 1913 is approximately 750,000 bushels."

It is the estimate of Joseph L. Schilder, of Schilder Bros., whose headquarters are at Chillicothe, O., but whose operations take in, to a greater or less extent, all the onion set districts.

"After a rather thorough investigation of the situation," continued Mr. Schilder, "I estimate the crop of 1912 about as follows:

District.	Bushels.
Chicago	450,000
Louisville	200,000
Chillicothe	50,000
Erie, Philadelphia, Nebraska	50,000
Total	750,000

"Of course the situation at Chicago sets the market for sets. Reds are short at Chicago; yellow is about the usual supply, possibly 10,000 bushels more than usual; but white are 30,000 to 40,000 bushels above last year's crop. The market for white is weak. Prices at present being paid growers for crops not under contract are about as follows: Red, 90 cents; yellow, 85 to 90 cents; white, $1 to $1.10. Some of the large dealers seem to be willing to lighten their loads by moving cars of whites at about the same prices the growers are receiving.

"The future of the market is a little more uncertain than usual, due to the condition of the large supply of whites. Weather conditions were unfavorable.

Late in the season there was much rain. The onions did not stop growing. Many are too large for sets. It was especially unfortunate for those growers who planted less than the prescribed quantity of seed to the acre, as many are doing nowadays, some as little as forty-five to fifty pounds. After the big onions are screened out there are some remarkably fine sets left; on the other hand, there are some lots that show much dry rot. The marketable quantity by planting time may be much reduced.

"The production of onion sets is on the increase at Chicago; at Louisville it is about stationary, but at Chillicothe it is on the decrease. This year's crop is not two-thirds the output at Chillicothe six or seven years ago. The land is worn out. Formerly we had sets on some twenty-five of our farms and Chillicothe had 80,000 bushels a year; now we grow sets on only about eight of our farms and each season grow a larger quantity under contract at Chicago, where there is plenty of good land and plenty of labor. Various estimates place the number of set growers at Louisville at from 500 to 700. Perhaps the half dozen largest produce from 2,000 to 3,000 bushels apiece, the others much smaller quantities, down to five or ten bushels each."

CORN AND VINE SEEDS.

That the sweet corn crop for seed is more backward than he ever before has seen it in his more than twenty years of business experience is the opinion of J. C. Robinson, of Waterloo, Neb. When asked to summarize the situation, October 4, Mr. Robinson put it as follows:

"After three weeks of wet, damp weather we are finally having some really good October days. Sweet corn made no headway during these three weeks and is more backward than we have ever known it to be at this season of the year. However, it has received no material damage from the frost and, with continued good weather, will probably dry down all right. The crop is a large one in this immediate vicinity, but the acreage is below normal in the central part of the state, where the earlier varieties are grown, and we have not over fifty per cent of a crop. Flint corn will make from fifty to seventy-five per cent of the average yield. Fortunately, a good acreage was planted, which will help out on this strain of corn. Dent varieties are in splendid shape, with one of the largest crops we have had in several years.

"The crop of cantaloupe seed, both at home and at Rocky Ford, Colo., is nearly harvested and cucumber seed well under way. The crop will be a fair average one, but not so large as last year, with a smaller acreage.

"Squash and pumpkin crops are only moderate and many fields have shown an inclination to rot, thus forcing harvest a little prematurely and cutting the yield down somewhat.

"We consider the year's crop a rath-

BROWN IS PESSIMISTIC.

The whole world is short on peas, according to the summing up of Alfred J. Brown, and the crops in the older pea-growing sections of the United States are little better than last year. This is the way the Grand Rapids grower put it in an interview October 4:

"Pea crops in Wisconsin, Michigan and Ontario are not turning out much better than a year ago, and if it were not for the peas grown under irrigation in the west we would be up against as serious a shortage, if not worse than last year. From all information we can gather, it seems that all peas will be needed. There was absolutely nothing carried over. Crops in Germany are better than they were a year ago, but the Germans have few, if any, to offer for export. Crops in France are only fair, while in England the crop is poor. There has already been considerable demand from Europe for American-grown peas and quite a few will be exported from this country.

"As regards beans, the incessantly wet weather, which lasted almost from planting time until harvest, has caused damage that is beyond repair, no matter how favorable the weather is for harvesting the crop; while, on the other hand, if we should have wet weather, the late maturing crops are apt to be lost entirely. There is perhaps fifty per cent of the crop harvested and under cover. The yield, on the average, we should judge will be about half a crop, perhaps a little better."

LOS ANGELES SEED NOTES.

The retail fall business, according to the leading seedsmen at Los Angeles, has never been equaled in the history of the trade and this notwithstanding the shortage in some lines. A high percentage of the seeds contracted for are being delivered, both local and northern, but European growers are away behind in their deliveries. Celery is again a disappointment and there is a great shortage, there being no old seed left over.

Charles Winsel is growing quite a little of the rarer seed at his new ranch at Montebello. He finds an excellent demand for English milltrack mushroom spawn.

Aggeler & Musser report a fine fall business. Mr. Musser has settled down to work again and is showing a most interesting set of photographs taken by him on his recent trip to the Hawaiian Islands. H. R. R.

Greenville, O.—October 3 the barn on the premises of James Frost burned to the ground, together with the contents. Mr. Frost's loss will be in the neighborhood of $5,000, partially covered by insurance. Among other things burned were an automobile, two wagons and farm and garden tools.

SOME FACTS

1 You can make more money per square foot of bench space by growing good lilies than on anything you can produce in the same amount of time.

2 The only limit to your profit is that based on your ability to market the cut flowers and plants on a business basis—and this is a big country.

3 Expensive greenhouses are unnecessary for their production—lilies will pay for a greenhouse quicker than the profits of any other article.

4 The demand is increasing with great rapidity because the flowers can be profitably used for so many purposes—and always appropriately.

5 Good lilies are an absolute necessity—just ordinary lilies won't do. They must be of good size, healthy plants, strong crisp flowers to stand shipment, and rough usage when necessary.

6 In order to produce good lilies to make possible large profits you must plant good bulbs and give them proper treatment.

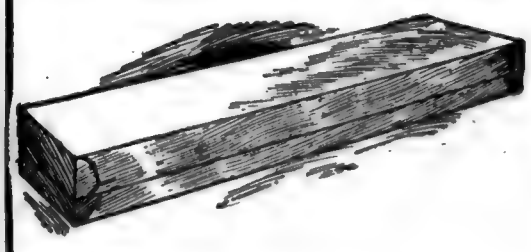
7 There is no brand known today that has given the average flowering results, year after year, that will equal the Horseshoe Brand Giganteum record.

8 This is because this brand is grown for quality instead of quantity. Experienced men—only the best of planting bulbs—good fertilizer—hand weeding to prevent injury to plants—constant care—disbudding at the right time and not lifted until they are fully matured.

9 It is cheaper to buy the best bulbs—a bad lily bulb planted in a greenhouse costs a florist ten times as much as the same bulb costs a Japanese grower to uproot and burn.

10 The cost of Horseshoe Brand Giganteum per bulb is consistent with the quality delivered, and owing to this quality the cost per flower is less than any brand known.

PRICES



Giganteum, 6x 8.....$16.00 per case of 400; $35.00 per 1000
Giganteum, 7x 9.....$16.00 per case of 300; $50.00 per 1000
Giganteum, 8x10.....$23.00 per case of 250; $90.00 per 1000

BLIGHT ON CANTALOUPES.

Please tell me what disease is affecting the enclosed cantaloupe leaf and mention a remedy. The vines died just as they were ripening. L. G.

This blight on melons and cucumbers is common. It usually appears after one or two cold nights with heavy dews, followed by hot days. The older leaves die first, but the trouble soon spreads. Spraying twice a week with Bordeaux mixture helps to check the blight, but will not altogether prevent it. Spraying should commence early in August. C. W.

CROP TO FOLLOW MUMS.

I have mums in my houses now. Each house has four benches. In two of these benches I grow geraniums, but from now until I shift my geraniums is a long time. What can I grow in these two benches now. I would like to grow lettuce or cauliflower. State when to sow the seeds. J. G.

Cauliflower would take rather too long to mature. Quick growing crops, like lettuce and radish, would be better. If the mums will be cleaned out by the middle of November, sow the lettuce now. If not until December 1, wait a couple of weeks. If you can sow and transplant the seedlings into a bench or flats you will gain quite a little time. Good lettuces for forcing are: White Seeded Forcing, Tennis Ball, Grand Rapids and Hittinger's Belmont. C. W.

Atlanta, Ga.—G. W. Leroux has secured a permit to build a greenhouse at 23 Park street.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

CHARLES E. GREENING, the Commodore, of Monroe, Mich., has gone to Miami, Fla., where he will build a winter home.

SNYDER BROS., proprietors of the Linn County Nursery, Center Point, Ia., are building a large addition to their storage cellar and packing house.

THE Rocky Mountain Nurseries and Orchard Development Co., Plains, Mont., has been launched, with A. P. Marsh, secretary of the Plains Valley Commercial Club, as manager.

THE Tennessee State Board of Entomology has issued a bulletin that not only gives the Tennessee laws with regard to nursery stock, but also contains a summary of the laws of other states.

THE Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is making a collection of German irises at Arlington Experimental Farm. It is reported that the plan is to include every variety grown in this country.

LAWS to regulate the shipment of plants are multiplying so fast we can no longer call this "the land of the free." It already is so bad no one can claim a knowledge of all the regulations. So long as shipments carry inspection certificates transportation companies are inclined to let it go at that.

BLIGHT ON CRAB APPLES.

At a recent meeting of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Association of Montana, owing to the fact that blight is affecting some orchards in irrigated districts, and wishing to prevent, as much as possible, its further spread, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the members of this association discourage the planting of Alexander and Transcendent crab apples in irrigated districts, owing to the liability of these varieties to blight.

NOW REAL TROUBLE BEGINS.

New England nursery stock will be the next to be investigated by the newly appointed board in the Department of Agriculture having charge of the plant, fruit and vegetable quarantine law. It has been brought to the attention of the board that trees grown in New England are infested with the gypsy moth and that it would prove injurious to nursery stock in other parts of the country if infested trees from New England were sold and planted outside the district where the moth now is.

Canna Mrs. A. F. Conard

"There can be no question that could the Florists see your Cannas they would be in every collection in the country. There is also no question that when they get it in the Florists' collection the amateurs will take them."

—Extract from a letter from John Welsh Young, prominent Rose Grower of the Philadelphia Florists' Club.

"Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, introduced in 1910 as a result of 15 years' careful work, seemed to the Exchange representative as he looked upon it in full bloom to be one of the greatest creations in Cannas ever sent out. Its very large, clear, salmon-pink flowers, profusely produced on numerous heads, stand erect well above its rich green foliage. Its blooming season is apparently long, and it is certainly one of the most exquisite of the Cannas whose blooms are in the lighter colors."

—From The Florists' Exchange of September 28.

Have you enough stock of the Mrs. Alfred F. Conard for next year? You will need it. Did you see that large bed of Mrs. Alfred F. Conard Canna with King Humbert in the center, in Lincoln Park, Chicago? It was strikingly effective. For Cannas this year apply to headquarters.

be quarantined because of the gypsy moth. No date has been set for this hearing, but it is expected that the department will issue a notice concerning it, shortly.

GLOOM AMONG PEACH GROWERS.

An authority on the New York and eastern fruit markets prints this lugubrious tale:

"Commission merchants and wholesale fruit dealers are anything but enthusiastic over the progress of the western New York peach crop. Also something like gloom seems to be attending operations in far western peaches. There have been for some time from forty to eighty cars of peaches per day on the market. This means a supply of more than one peach per day for every individual in Greater New York, and besides there have been record-breaking receipts of other fruits, such as pears, grapes, plums, melons and pineapples. Adding to these, liberal arrivals of apples and bananas, the general fruit supply has been greater than the market could easily absorb. Receivers of western New York peaches do not offer details as to the business done, but shake their heads and say 'prices have been low.' This has been partially on account of the unattractive condition in which a part of the fruit was offered, but more on account of the unprecedented quantity received and the competition with peaches from the western states. Taking the season from the start up to now, the average prices have never before been so low. Even the best peaches from Colorado have sold at 50 to 60 cents per box, with lower prices for other qualities. The minimum weight of a box of peaches from the western slope is twenty pounds. Packing and transportation charges are: Freight, 25 cents; icing, 6 cents; sale and agency expense, 8 cents to 10 cents; box and paper, 6 cents, and packing, 3 cents. Aside from the cost of production, the total cost of packing and bringing a box to New York is 49 to 50 cents minimum. One day this week a lot of 1,000 boxes of Washington state Elbertas sold at an average of 45 cents; 7,400 boxes of Utah peaches averaged 53 cents, and 8,000 boxes of Colorados averaged 54 cents. According to some dealers New York state peaches have made no better showing when offered, and besides this a considerable proportion of the total shipments has been refused because of unsalable condition.

"The general results of the season so far have either discouraged or disgusted a large number of growers. It has already been reported that the largest peach orchard in Georgia, carrying 225,000 trees, has just been cut down, and one New York fruit concern estimates from reports in hand that not less than 400,000 good bearing trees will be destroyed in that state this year. Some California growers are reported as having refused to pick and pack their product and it went to waste on the ground. Reports from Texas and Arkansas are that numerous growers will quit the orchard business as a commercial proposition, their reason being either 'no market for the fruit' or 'lack of transportation to market.'"

FARMINGTON, UTAH.

Organizing a State Society.

Utah is to have an up-to-date florists' association. So it was decided at a meeting held October 2 at the establishment of the Miller Floral Co., in this city, and attended by a number of florists, representing Salt Lake, Centerville, Farmington and Ogden. A temporary organization was effected and a committee was appointed to rouse the interest of wholesale and retail florists throughout the state. This committee will make a thorough canvass and then call another meeting, at which it is proposed to establish a permanent organization.

After the meeting, all in attendance were royally entertained by Mr. Miller, who conducted the visitors through the up-to-date range of the Miller Floral Co., where everything was found in excellent condition. All the standard roses are in luxuriant growth, as are also the carnations, sweet peas and pot plants. Mr. Miller and his associates were congratulated on the high quality of their stock and the clean, orderly condition of everything about the place. All the visitors enjoyed the trip.

Galveston, Tex.—L. Rucker, who formerly was with the Texas Nursery & Floral Co., at Alvin, is here for the purpose of starting in business on his own account.

MILADY

IS COMING OUT!

We shall disseminate in March the new red forcing rose, MILADY. Look for it at the fall shows! We believe this variety means commercial, profitable red roses. It has color, size, substance, fragrance and productiveness.

5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections, flowers produced in immense large heads; this variety is on the style of the La Lorraine, but is an earlier bloomer.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. E. Mouillere. This has been the favorite white variety in the New York market this year, very free flowering, of good size and form. Awarded silver medal at the National Flower Show at Boston last year. A great favorite with English growers, one London grower known to us handling over 30,000 of this variety alone.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Described by the introducer as a delicate flesh rose-color, of a pleasing shade. In our soil it has been the most beautiful deep blue we have seen, and which has been admired by everyone; a vigorous grower, very free and early; the individual flowers as well as the trusses being of immense size. One of the easiest to force early.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mme. Raymond. Large trusses of perfectly round flowers of a transparent white, passing to a tender rose. Entirely distinct and in competition with all the other white varieties was awarded a certificate at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a decided and fine acquisition.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "

Hydrangea Mlle. de Tremault.

Mlle. de Tremault. As the result of our own trials we are convinced that this variety, which is yet but little known, is the best very large flowered white yet introduced. As free flowering as any, of splendid erect habit and beautiful foliage, it will produce flower heads as large as the old popular Otaksa. We strongly recommend it.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white, flowers large and freely produced; a grand variety for a 5- or 6-inch pot plant. From our own observation we are inclined to consider this the best of all the whites and we recommend it for careful trial.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Very large panicles of milky white, irregularly dentated flowers. One of the best growers says that this should have been awarded the Silver Medal given to Mme. Emile Mouillere last year as the best white.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Last week closed with an excellent run of business and with plenty of stock at hand. Everybody seems to have plenty to do, especially in funeral and decorative work. Carnations are still scarce and the demand runs heavy. Home-grown stock is more plentiful and is a great improvement over several weeks ago. Local growers have started to cut their mums, which are looking well.

There is plenty of smilax, Sprengeri and plumosus to meet the demand for greens.

This will be a great week for the florists in Kansas City, as our fall festivities begin and a great many flowers will be used. This is a great attraction and draws thousands of people to the city from surrounding towns. We expect an unusual quantity of chrysanthemums to be used, as the horse and stock show is on for the entire week, mums being used almost exclusively for decorations there.

Various Notes.

Eric Frandsen, of Independence, has an unusually well stocked greenhouse this fall, with prospects for a fine winter's business.

The Larkin Floral Co. has an excellent location and is doing a prosperous business.

The Alpha Floral Co. has an unusually attractive window and is doing a good business, as usual.

The window decorations of Samuel Murray, W. L. Rock Flower Co. and A. Newell are exceptionally pretty this week.

Ed. Ellsworth's place, the Rosary, is in good shape. His poinsettias are fine.

Samuel Murray's greenhouses contain as fine a lot of plants as can be found in the country. His begonias would be hard to beat.

W. H. Humfeld has a nice bench of ferns in the greenhouse attached to the back of his store.

W. J. Barnes has his place in fine shape and ready for the fall business. The store, which was just built, is a great improvement and will help him handle a larger business. W. J. B.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has improved somewhat during the last week. First-class stock has been exceedingly scarce. There has been some call for early mums, which are obtainable only in limited quantities. Carnations have improved wonderfully in size and length of stems in the last two weeks. Beauties and roses of other sorts have improved and move well. Orchids and valley are obtainable, but are not in heavy demand. Dahlias are still obtainable. The market is well supplied with green goods.

Various Notes.

John Chisholm, formerly with Bertermann's, left October 5 for Washington, D. C., where he has accepted a position with Marche.

Alfred Brandt's lease has expired on his present store and he is to remove two doors north.

Earl Mann and Myer Heller have been spending considerable time in the city the last two weeks.

John Grande has been cutting some good early mums.

Alfred Baur stopped off in the city while en route to California, where he has accepted a position.

The regular monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association was held in the salesrooms of the Smith & Young Co. October 1, with a good attendance. President Gause was in the chair. Talks were given by a number of out-of-town members, among whom were W. W. Coles, Myer Heller, Theo. Dorner and Earl Mann. The invitation of the Richmond florists to hold the December meeting there was accepted. W. W. Coles came forth with an invitation to hold the December meeting in Kokomo, which also was accepted. Theo. Dorner thought February would be a good time to have the meeting at Lafayette. There were also minor invitations from Cumberland and Southport. The meeting was no doubt a success, as it did not adjourn until about 11 p. m.

Ed. Temperly has had no end of trouble with a greenhouse which he has been trying to erect this summer. The material, which was to have been delivered July 15, arrived September 15, after having been lost on the road for about two weeks.

Hartje & Elder have the foundation in for a 60-foot brick smokestack.

Sidney Smith and Baur & Steinkamp are keeping open house. The boulevard, which fronts their places, is open to traffic after being closed for about a year. H. L. W.

Brigham, Utah.—V. V. Phillips is building a greenhouse and feels that there is a ready market for all he can grow.

The Market.

October has ushered in an immense volume of business for the florist, consisting mainly of decorations for parties and pre-nuptial affairs, weddings, flowers for the sick and an amount of funeral work. The night of September 27 brought the first frost, killing all outdoor stock and creating a greater demand for staple flowers.

The chrysanthemum is the favorite for all functions and some excellent blooms of Glory of Pacific, October Frost and Monrovia create an autumnal atmosphere in the shops. Autumn foliage is used extensively in decorative work. There have been several large decorations for prominent weddings within the last two weeks. Roses are steadily increasing in quantity and improving in quality and meet with a fine demand. Carnations are becoming plentiful. The wholesale shipping trade is active. The warm days of late have increased stock of all kinds, which is in accordance with the brisk business conditions.

Various Notes.

A. J. Lanternier & Sons are shipping quantities of carnations to the wholesale market.

Herbert Zur Muehlen, who was manager of the Bradley Flower Shop, will leave October 15 for his new work with the L. E. Auger Co., in which firm he has become a partner. The business will be continued in the same location, on East Washington boulevard.

Miss Marjory Bradley is now located at Moline, Ill., where she is gaining practical experience in her profession of landscape gardening, with a corporation composed of landscape artists. Miss Bradley expects to be engaged in her present work until the holidays.

Mrs. L. E. Auger reports business for the month of September as surpassing that of the same month in any year in the past. The business has consisted mostly of funeral work and flowers for the sick.

The Flick Floral Co. is cutting some splendid chrysanthemum blooms, which they have been utilizing in large decorations. They have also been shipping quantities of roses and carnations, the quality of which is excellent.

Miss Doswell reports business brisk in both counter trade and funeral work.

R. R. F.

Jesse Hamlet, who recently purchased the Heilbroner homestead at 236 and 238 West Main street and remodeled it into business rooms on the ground floor and flats on the second story, has leased the west business room to Miss Rhoda Doswell, who established a floral hall therein.

Denver, Colo.—Mrs. L. A. Dunsmore says that, on the whole, trade is rather quiet but stock also is rather backward and everything promises well for the winter season.

Florists Look! Take Notice!!

OUR MOTTO: WE BELIEVE.

We believe in American business methods; we believe and have faith in our customers; we believe that truth is an asset and that our word is as good as our bond; we believe that the best is none too good for our customers.

THIS ENDS OUR LIABILITY IN SELLING ONLY THE BEST.

Who? Godfrey Aschmann, the Araucaria King of Philadelphia. He and his Araucarias are more popular than pennies are with school children. No arguments needed to sell his goods; 25 years' experience in importing and shipping the Araucaria (his specialty) makes him the Araucaria King of all America. Now is the time to stock up your houses.

WHEN YOU BUY, IT PAYS TO BUY GOOD STUFF

Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, September 14, 1912.

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

See what one of our customers says, who bought $44.45 worth, Sept. 3, 1912:

Dear Sir: BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1912.

Your shipment of Palms, Plants and Ferns arrived in fine shape. I certainly am well pleased with all stock you sent me, and I will send you another order shortly.

S. W. BAKER, Billy the Florist, 93 Front St., Binghamton, N. Y.

Only 75 Benora, Peter Fisher's new variety, for $3.75. 250 of each variety at 1000 rate.
R. J. Irwin, 3097 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The following entirely unsolicited testimonial came to me with an order under date of Sept. 5, 1912:—"I want to say for the good of the trade and for your benefit, also, that your plants last year were the best I ever handled. I bought 2200 plants and did not lose one in the whole lot. You may use these few words above as you see fit, if of any benefit to you."—Wm. E. Mosher, New Bedford, Mass.

This man was pleased with his stock. My stock this year is as good and most of it better than last year. I personally dig all orders and guarantee satisfaction. About 30,000 plants left. Order early.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. These plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early, for which reason I quote the following low prices: Boston for 6-in., 20c. Whitmani compacta for 5 and 6-in., 25c. Cash or reference. See my classified carnation adv. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. One of many reports: "I had 3000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February and from then on were a sight: immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. E. Peckham, Norwich, Conn. The Market.

Chrysanthemums now dominate the cut flower market and the shipments grow in quantity every day. From those at 50 cents a hundred up to the special blooms at 50 cents each, the ascent is gradual. Grand stock can be had at from $2 to $3 per dozen, the finest of the old and popular kinds. Unaka, Monrovia and Polly Rose seem to be the present favorites. From now on for a month at least the mum will be queen. While the flood continues the rest of the market is barely steady at current quotations. Dahlias are about over, but have so far escaped the early frosts. Some fine flowers are still seen daily.

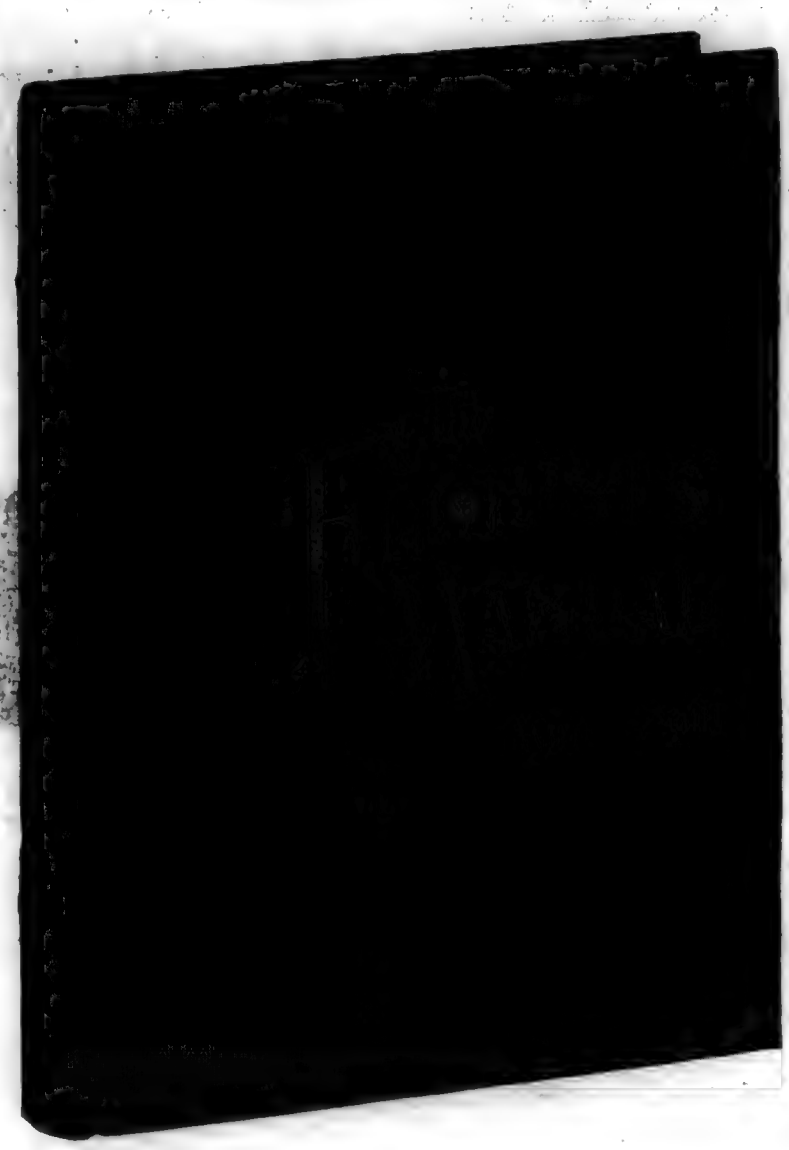
It is too early to quote violets. None should be sent to this market until November. The leading growers realize this, and are throwing the early and inferior crop away. Valley has been strong, selected stock at times touching $4 per hundred. The lily supply is light and prices hold well.

Carnations improve in length of stem and perfection of bloom and color every day. By the close of the week there will be an overflow. The same conditions apply to roses, which have developed rapidly during the last week and are arriving in constantly increasing volume. Sunburst, Killarney Queen and Lady Hillingdon are popular. In fact, all the new varieties are evidently becoming appreciated by the discriminating public. American Beauties are growing rapidly in size of bud and stem, and the price is steady at ruling quotations. There is no scarcity of orchids, and oncidiums, vandas, odontoglossums and phalænopsis, with all the cattleya varieties, are here in tremendous volume.

Various Notes.

The New York Florists' Club meets Monday, October 14, and if the present weather continues there will be a grand display of flowers for dahlia night. Chairman Hendrickson is making special effort to have the exhibit a representative one. Flowers may be sent in care of Traendly & Schenck, 131 West Twenty-eighth street, and they will be properly staged. Members of the club will bowl in the afternoon at the alleys in the Coogan building.

November 1 to 5 the fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central Park, west. Prizes to the total of nearly $700 are offered for the chrysanthemum display alone and the same liberality is shown in the other classes, including roses, carnations, foliage and decorative plants, and orchids.



The Elliott Auction Co., on Vesey street, disposed of the entire stock of the Bonnie Brae Nurseries at New Rochelle last week. Prices obtained were satisfactory, as there was a large attendance of local nurserymen. October 9 the Elliott company sold the stock of the Eisele nursery at West End, N. J.

A visit at Bedford Hills found the plant of the Bedford Hills Flower Co. in splendid condition, many improvements having been made since Moore, Hentz & Nash assumed ownership. John Pritchard, formerly with Budlong, is manager. There are 85,000 square feet of glass in the houses, one house 54x718, one 54x650 and one 20x650. A total of 45,000 roses are planted, including 26,000 American Beauties, these filling the largest house. The other varieties are Double White Killarney, Lady Hillingdon, Cardinal, Mrs. Taft and Killarney. The cut of Beauties already averages from 3,000 to 5,000 daily. A 125-foot chimney is now being built. There are two 125 horsepower boilers and another of equal power will be installed. The artesian well is down 285 feet, and still going.

At Chappaqua W. H. Siebrecht has built a greenhouse 45x175, to be devoted to acacias. Between the growing plants, in many sizes, he has a grand lot of mums in all the popular varieties, thus killing two birds with one stone. It is a stony hill on which his mansion stands, overlooking many miles of hills and dales, but his three years of improvements have made his property one of the show places of the state. Mr. Siebrecht still manages the old plant at Astoria and finds time every Thursday to enjoy his favorite pastime with the Astoria bowling club, which opened the fall season October 3.

The Yonkers Nursery Co., under the management of Robert Rennison, has now sixty acres under thorough cultivation, with large greenhouses filled with specimen kentias and other palms.

Greenhouse Heating.

A MICHIGAN RANGE.

I have two new houses, each 22½x150 feet, five and one-half feet high at the sides and eleven feet high to the ridge. There are ground beds. Can I heat these two houses to a temperature of 50 degrees when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero, using two 3-inch flows on the purlins and six 2-inch returns on the gutter posts, three on each side? Where is the best place to put the valves, on the flows or on the returns? I will run the flows and returns downhill.

I also have a lean-to house, 16x72. Can I heat it to 55 degrees by using one 4-inch flow and five 2-inch returns? My idea was to put the flow on the high side wall, two returns on the purlin and three returns under the outside bench. J. G.

While it would be possible to heat the houses by using two 3-inch flows and six 2-inch returns, it will be more economical of fuel and require less attention if eight returns are used, and an extra pipe should be used if there is exposed glass in the side wall, as appears to be the case from the plan.

In the lean-to house, 16x72 feet, use one 3-inch flow and five 2-inch returns, or six returns if the rear wall is exposed.

One valve would answer and this should be at the most convenient point.

A NEW JERSEY QUERY.

Enclosed find a rough sketch of a greenhouse 24x120 feet. Have you any sketches of the manner in which a house like this should be piped for hot water heat, or can you make one? Have you data on this subject? If so, would be pleased to hear from you. We would like to have some ideas. A. & P.

The sketch shows a house 24x120 feet, with about two feet of glass in each wall, and with a raised bench on each side. The temperature desired is not stated, but for 60 degrees it will answer if three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns are used. Place one flow on each wall plate and the other under the ridge. Three of the returns should be on each wall, under the flow pipe, and the others should be distributed under the benches.

A 4-inch main flow pipe will be required. This should rise from the boiler to a point about one foot below the level of the ridge. Connect the expansion tank at this point and take off the three 2½-inch flow pipes, which should run through the house at a slight fall. The main return should be of the same capacity as the main feed pipe.

THREE CONNECTED HOUSES.

I am enclosing a diagram of my greenhouse, which is 125 feet long and has a total width of forty-two feet. The house runs east and west. There is glass in the gables. The south wall is concrete and is three feet high. The north side of the house is in the form of a lean-to, with a boarded outside wall. The west end will be protected by the boiler shed. How many runs of 3-inch pipe will be required to heat this house to 60 degrees in zero weather? How large a boiler will be needed? I want a boiler large enough so that I can add more glass. I am located in western Illinois. S. R.

To heat a greenhouse 42x125 feet to 60 degrees in zero weather, seventeen or eighteen 3-inch pipes should be used. The plan shows the house to be divided lengthwise into three parts. In the widest portion, which appears to be about twenty-one feet in width, three 3-inch flows and six returns of the same size could be used. For the middle part, which has a width of sixteen feet, two flows and four returns can be used to advantage. In the 5-foot lean-to one flow and one return will suffice.

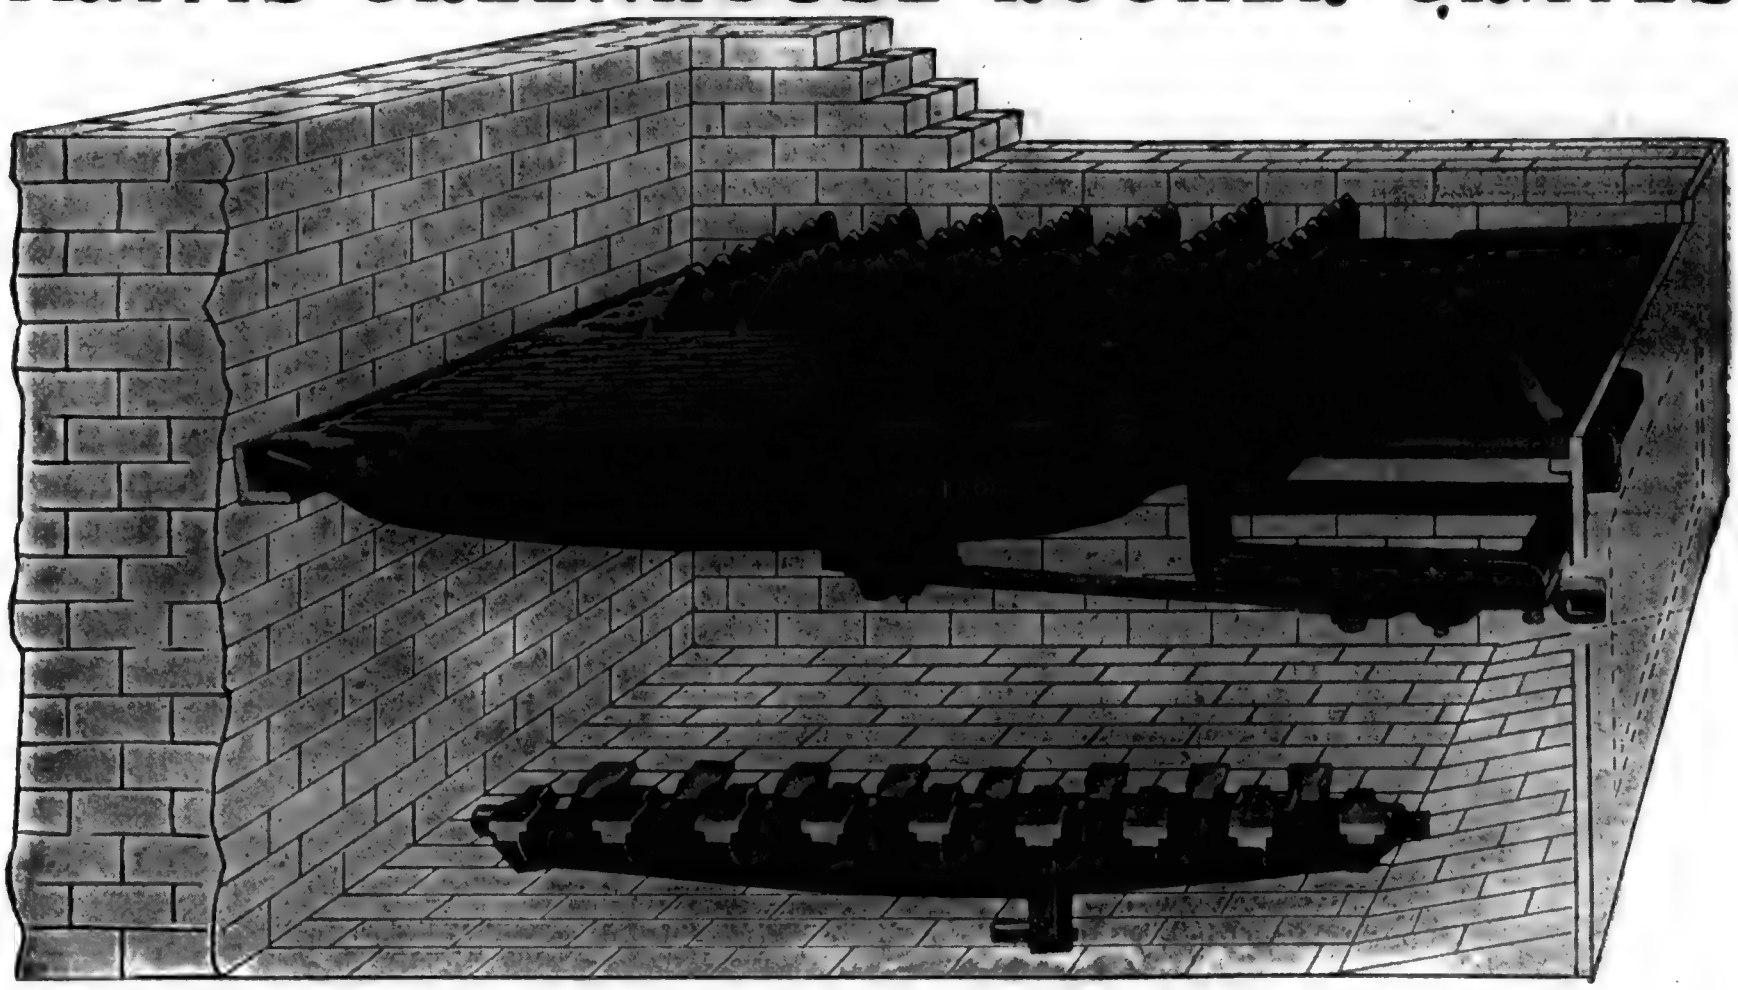
A better method of heating would be to use three, two and one 2½-inch pipes in the respective houses, as flows, and ten, seven and two 2-inch returns, respectively. The present plant will require a boiler with a rating of 2,500 square feet, and due allowance should be made for any prospective increase in the size of the plant.



RETURNS HAVE WRONG SLOPE.

I am considering the renting of an idle house, which I would want to heat. The house runs north and south. It is 28x150 feet and twelve feet high to the ridge. The west wall is three feet high, with glass ventilators. The east wall is of brick and is three feet high. The gables are glass, above a 3-foot tile wall. I want a temperature of 50 degrees. The outside temperature in this part of Pennsylvania seldom drops lower than 12 or 14 degrees below zero.

In the house at present there are two 2-inch lines near the ridge. On each side, along the walls, there are four 1¼-inch lines. These all fall about one foot toward the north end of the house. Now, I want to place a ten horse-power, flue boiler at the south end of the house, about twenty feet from the end of the house, and it would be fully six to eight feet lower than the floor level of the greenhouse at the south end. The greenhouse floor also has a fall of about one foot toward the north end.

What must I do to get results from the boiler? How much more piping will be required in the house? Would it be practical to connect with the boiler by means of a 3-inch pipe and bring this, as a riser, up to the level of the two 2-inch pipes near the ridge, and would these two 2-inch pipes suffice to feed all returns from the north end? There are two purlins and I could run one more line on each of these. If necessary, I could make these feed lines also, by connecting at the south end with the 3-inch line referred to. It would be impossible to return against the natural fall of one foot in this house, would it not? Do you think the boiler is large enough?

F. A.

The two 2-inch flow pipes and eight 1¼-inch returns would be ample to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in a house 28x150, but some change must be made in order to drain the drip water from the pipes. The best way would be to change the slope of the returns so that they would have a fall toward the boiler. A less satisfactory way would be to leave the returns as at present and run a drip pipe along each wall, which could be used to connect the lowest part of each return with the boiler. This pipe should, of course, have a slight fall.

The foregoing suggestions are made with the understanding that the house is heated by steam. The boiler can be made to heat the house, but a larger one would require less careful attention.

THREE FLOWS PREFERABLE.

I should like to get a little information in regard to piping a greenhouse 27x62 feet and eleven feet to the ridge. The side walls are three feet six inches high, double boarded, with tar paper between. There is glass in the south end. I have a Richmond hot water boiler, with openings for a 3½-inch flow and two 2½-inch returns. Would a 3½-inch flow under the ridge, connected with four 2-inch returns on each side wall, give a temperature of about 55 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero, or would it be better to have two 2-inch flows under the ridge? How shall I connect the expansion tank—with a 1-inch or a 2-inch pipe? The highest point will be over the boiler. I am located in Rhode Island.

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, and I can keep it at 60° in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three Sectional Cast Iron boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

J. G. FRISZ, Vincennes, Ind.

Kroeschell versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ, Menominee, Mich.

Cast Iron Boilers Waste Fuel

I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of heating with this boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its full capacity.

thing larger than a 3-inch flow pipe, and by placing thirteen 2-inch returns upon the walls it will be an easy matter to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees in a greenhouse 27x62 feet.

On several accounts it would be better to use three 2½-inch flow pipes, of which two could be on the plates or under the purlins, and the other under the ridge. In addition, eleven 2-inch returns will be required. Three can be located on each wall and five under the benches.

A 1-inch pipe leading from the highest part of the system to the expansion tank will do away with the necessity for using air valves. A 3-inch or 3½-inch main flow can be used to supply the 2½-inch flows and the eleven 2-inch returns can be connected with the heater by means of the two 2½-inch main returns.

NOT AN ECONOMICAL PLAN.

I am enclosing a sketch of a house which I have leased for the winter, and which I wish to plant with general bedding stock. The house contains only about half as much piping, in proportion to the amount of space, as my own houses contain, but it can not be denied that the owner has been successful in growing lettuce there for two winters, though the outside temperature in this part of Pennsylvania dropped to 32 degrees below zero last winter. The house is a good one as regards construction. The boiler has nearly double the needed capacity.

E. B. F.

The sketch shows a house 20x80 feet, with wooden walls three and one-half feet high. It is heated by means of four 2-inch flow pipes under the ridge and two 2-inch returns under each of the side benches. This would be sufficient to heat the house to 50 degrees, but, with the present boiler, which is said to be of double the required capacity, it would be more economical of fuel if an additional return were put in on each side of the house, making six returns and four flow pipes.

Really the plan of placing four 2-inch flows in the peak is not an economical one. A better way would be to run a 2½-inch flow pipe on each plate and eight 2-inch returns underneath.

DETROIT.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Kolbe and family spent Sunday, October 6, at the home of W. B. Brown, at Birmingham. Mr. Brown has become quite a chicken fancier since moving into the country and his stock is in fine condition.

At the recent meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club Thomas Beattie and Joseph C. Lauzon were elected to membership. A letter of thanks was sent the Toledo Florists' Club for the manner in which the members of the Detroit club were entertained on their recent trip to the city on the Maumee.

B. J. Maynard, of the Geo. M. Garland Co., was in the city to assist George E. Browne in shifting his movable carnation house.

Gus Taepke, Walter Taepke and Robert Rahaley made a flying trip to Cleveland October 2. After spending the day in Cleveland, visiting the retail stores and cut flower houses, they visited Storrs & Harrison's place at Painesville.

The new store of J. F. Sullivan, to be known as the Woodward Flower Shop, was opened October 9, with Norman Sullivan in charge. A formal opening will be held later in the season, when mums and other flowers will be more plentiful.

The management of the Detroit Cut Flower Supply House was changed last week, when C. H. Maynard assumed the management. Mr. Maynard needs no introduction to the trade, with which he has been allied in some way for the last thirty years. His travels about the country have made him personally acquainted with many growers and, with a good source of supply, he will surely succeed.

Breitmeyer's stand in the new Broadway Market will be known as the Century Cut Flower Co. C. D. Fell, formerly of Cleveland, will be in charge. Hufford & Maebius will also have a flower stand in the market.

The Miller Floral Co., 2439 Jefferson avenue, is the newest firm in Detroit. The opening was October 9. The proprietors are E. R. Miller and T. P. Miller, the latter having been in the employ of the Scribner Floral Co. H. S.

New Castle, Pa.—Destructive boys have broken 109 panes of glass in the Daugherty & Shannon greenhouses, according to reports received at the mayor's office. The greenhouses have not been used for some little time.

IF YOU ARE PARTICULAR AND WANT A FANCY LOOKING "RED DEVIL" GLASS CUTTER GET OUR NEW NO. 6 EXPERT

A 6-Wheel Magazine Glass Cutter with a hard wood handle. The handle looks good and is good, but it cuts no glass—the hard boned steel wheel is the glass cutter—note the 5 extra wheels in the air-tight chamber in the handle. This cutter was designed for the expert glazier. They use them extensively. It's a swell glass cutter for you to have around the hothouse when you want to cut glass. Ask your hardware man, he has or will get it for you, but be sure it's "Red Devil" Brand. If you can't get it locally send us 15 2-cent stamps and your hardware man's name and one sample only will be sent you, postpaid.

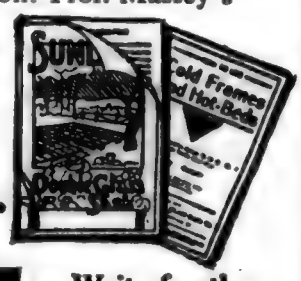
The regular meeting of the Southampton Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' hall October 3, President U. G. Ager in the chair. It was voted to offer $25 in gold for award at the National Flower Show to be held in New York next April, the class to be decided on by the management. It was voted to have the society incorporated, the necessary steps to be taken at the next meeting. The essay committee was instructed to ask Mr. Fullerton, of Wading River, to give a lecture before the society at some convenient date.

The regular meetings of the society for the winter are the first and third Thursdays of each month. W. M.

SUNLIGHT Double Glass Sash for Hot-beds and Cold-frames

Double-Glass Double Profits



The old single layer hot-bed sash are far better than none; but they must be covered with mats, boards or shutters every evening and uncovered every morning. They are wasteful.

The new SUNLIGHT DOUBLE GLASS SASH, with two layers of glass enclosing an air space, are COMPLETE IN THEMSELVES. They eliminate all extra covers; they wipe out half the labor cost; they admit all the light by day to store warmth in the bed and then save the warmth at night.

They make plants earlier and stronger. They double final profits.

Every practical gardener or florist will see the value of this.

And it is good business for you to get our free catalog for full information. Write your address plainly and send it today; the hot-bed season is not far off. Prof. Massey's booklet on Hot-beds and Cold Frames sent for 4c in stamps.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

HELENA, MONT.

An important meeting of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Association of Montana was held recently at the office of the State Nursery Co. There was a large gathering of the members from different parts of the state and various subjects of interest to the organization were discussed. The following officers were unanimously reëlected: President, T. E. Mills; vice-president, D. J. Tighe; secretary and treasurer, E. A. Calmettes. Committees were appointed to promote the welfare of the organization during the ensuing year.

General dissatisfaction was expressed at the inadequate accommodation provided by the State Fair Commission for housing horticultural exhibits and resolutions were adopted urging the commission to erect a suitable building for the department.

After the meeting the members were entertained at luncheon by T. E. Mills, of the State Nursery Co.

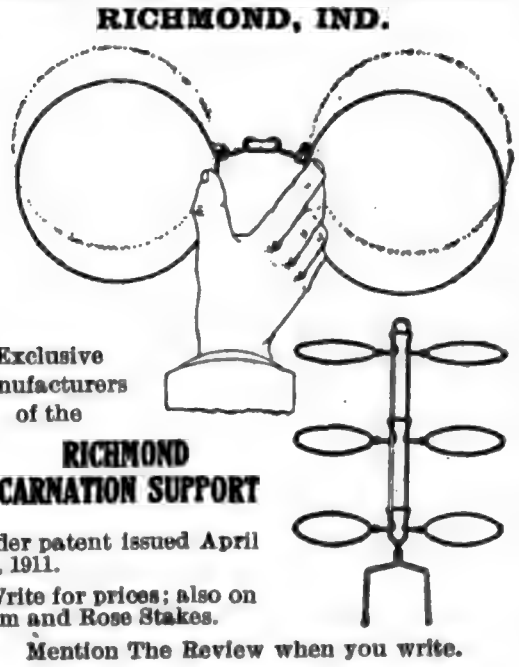
YONKERS, N. Y.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting at Hollywood Inn October 4, President Howard Nichols presiding. The executive committee reported progress on the fall show. It will be held in the armory, October 30 to November 1, and will surpass any flower show previously held in Yonkers. Two beautiful sterling silver cups, each valued at $50, will be awarded, one for specimen bush chrysanthemum and the other for the best twenty-four blooms in eight varieties. The armory is a fine, big building, so the exhibitors will have an opportunity to display their exhibits to the best advantage. It is hoped the competition will be strong in all the classes, as the committee has been busy all season, and has the work well advanced. It now remains for the exhibitors to come forward and put up a good fight for the cups, medals and other valuable prizes.

RETUBBING BAY TREES.

Will you kindly tell me when is the proper time to trim bay trees and when they should be changed into a larger tub? What kind of soil should I use?



W. E. H.

The best time to prune bays, Laurus nobilis, is when the growths are well matured. It is too late now, this season, to do any pruning. Retubbing should be done in early spring. Shake the ball out as carefully as possible. Pick it over with a sharp-pointed stick, in order to remove as much as possible of the old, worn-out soil. In Belgium a peaty soil, dark in color, is used. This looks moist even when quite dry and many plants suffer on this account. A peat soil is not necessary to produce good bay trees. Select a good fibrous loam; add to this some old, well decayed cow manure, not over one-sixth of the whole, and some sharp sand, and as the plants are ·t to be retubbed frequently, add ne bone meal; a 4-inch potful to each bushel of loam is sufficient. When well established, you can feed the plants frequently with liquid manure during the growing season.

Take My Advice— Send For This New Handy Hand Book

IT WAS the first, and is still the best greenhouse book published that lists, describes, and illustrates the hundred and one things you and I continually want.

I have one of them hanging up in our workroom so "the boys" can have it there all the time to refer to. There is another one in the top drawer of my desk—and woe be unto anyone who takes it out and forgets to return it!

So you just take my advice and send for it, the very next mail. Don't bother to write a letter—send a postal saying, "I want a Handy Hand Book." It will come all right.

P. S.—This new Handy Hand Book has over a hundred pages. If the one you now have is the 64 pager, it isn't complete. Write and get one that is.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

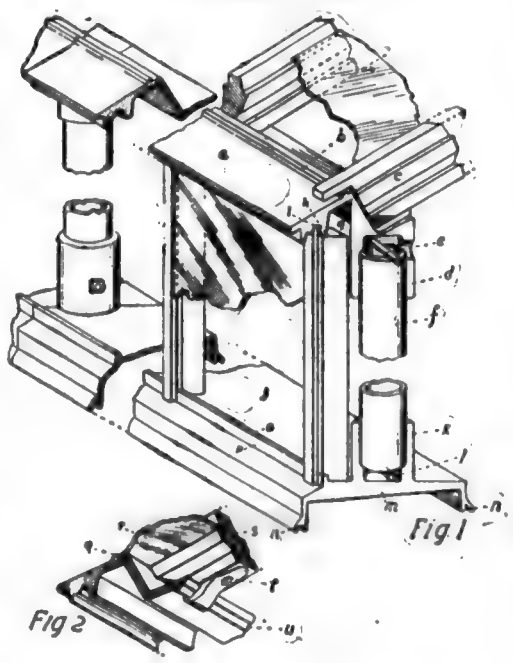
THE SOIL CARRIER IN USE.

SAVES TIME, LABOR AND MONEY

We call your attention to our Gravity Carriers for conveying soil into and out of greenhouses. You are aware of the great amount of labor necessary for changing the loam in your benches. It requires but a few feet of our Gravity Carriers to reduce this expense.

Carriers are made in eight and four foot sections, which can be instantly joined; the rollers are of the best seamless steel tubing, ball bearing, and are 14 inches in length by 2¼ inches in diameter. Cut shows how they operate.

A run of carrier is set up with one end projecting through a window and a cart containing the loam is placed at this end. The loam is shoveled into the boxes, which are pushed or conveyed by gravity into the house and dumped into the benches. Empty boxes are pushed back to cart over same run of carrier. When the beds within a convenient radius are filled, the carrier is set up at another window and the work continues until all benches are filled. For removing soil the process is, of course, similar.



We shall be pleased to furnish further details relative to construction and durability of the carriers; also, upon receipt of information relative to size of your greenhouses, furnish an estimate of the cost of a system for your requirements.

PATENT IRON SIDE WALL CONSTRUCTION

With a little extra cost above wood anyone can have an iron-wall greenhouse by bolting the different pieces together and securing roof-bars for any size glass with the clips.

The above is only one of the many latest and up-to-date materials we have. Get our prices on Greenhouse Louisiana Cypress material, heating, ventilating, bench materials, hotbed sash, etc.

BUILDING?

If so, have you given your ventilating system consideration worthy of its significance? It is necessary to have perfect vent sash operators in order to secure the required results.

All we ask is a careful investigation of our machine and we know that you will confirm our statement that we have the best on the market.

This is the U-Bar—the Bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the famous greenhouses they are.

It's every way practical, because, first and foremost, it is a U-Bar house. That tells its own story of a carefully planned plan—a perfect arrangement of the heating—ample ventilation and the innumerable little things that go with a thoroughly thought out and liberally constructed house. A splendid piece of workmanship it is from start to finish. No skimping done. U-Bar houses are not built that way.

They are sold because of what they are and not because of how cheap they are. If you want a top-notch house that unquestionably excels all other curved eave houses—then the U-Bar is the one. Write us.

THE BUSINESS IN OUR SUPPLY DEPARTMENT IS BOOMING because we have made quick delivery and all orders filled complete as possible to do so.

For Hallowe'en Parties you will want such articles as Novelty Ribbon, Lacettes, Corsage Pins, Boxes, etc. We have them all. Send for samples and prices.

For All Saints' Day everyone wishes to use something different for grave decoration than what has been used in the past; this year we have effective banks of prepared foliage in colors to harmonize, each in separate boxes, $1.50 to $3.00 each. Entirely new, try a few. We know they are sellers.

Capblumens have come to stay as the best substitute for cape flowers, much larger and wired ready for use.

MAGNOLIAS

IN GREEN, BROWN AND RED

All we ask is a trial order to convince you that our leaves are pliable and good even color. Now that these leaves are almost as cheap as Galax, you should not be without a stock on hand at all times.

Wreaths made of our Leaves will keep indefinitely

10,000 CHRYSANTHEMUM BLOOMS

We only ship the best blooms and always at the right price. Rather than quantity, we at all times stand for quality, and on this basis have built up a trade that is exclusive. As our supply is limited, we urge no delay in getting your orders in. Let us hear from you at once and rest assured that you will receive prompt attention. Below we list the varieties we have to offer.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE.

We have the largest and finest stock of this grand Christmas plant in America.

4-inch pots.....$35 per 100; $325 per 1000
5-inch pots .....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas .....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL."

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

2¼-inch pots.....$2.50 per dozen; $15 per 100; $125 per 1000

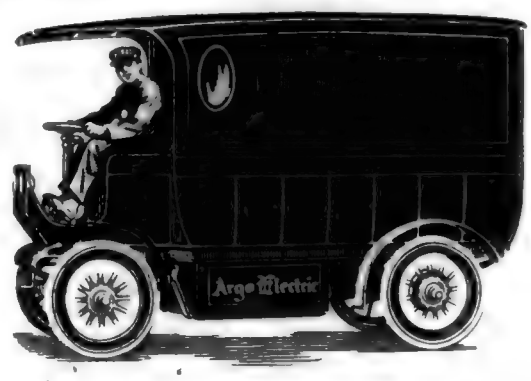
If You Could Reduce Your Delivery Cost One-Third—

THINK what that would mean, Mr. Florist—to eliminate ⅓ of the present expense of making deliveries! You know how costly an item your delivery service is—how it eats into your gross income. Why not use Electric Delivery Service and reduce your operating expenses and improve your efficiency at the same time?

One Electric Delivery Wagon does the work of three horse-drawn wagons—at an average daily saving of 33⅓%. And you can depend on Electrics to stand up under the heavy strain of the extreme hot and cold weather. That is something you cannot say of your horse delivery.

Electric Delivery Wagons Are Far Superior for YOUR Purposes

Electric Delivery Wagons are ideal for your sort of service, quick deliveries with many stops. No trouble starting—no delay. Any of your present drivers can quickly learn to operate an Electric—no need to break in new men to learn your routes.



Lower cost of maintenance, highly satisfactory performance, long life, few repairs, decreased fire risk—these are some of the features of Electric Delivery. Balance the many advantages of Electric Delivery Service against the drawbacks of your present system. Then decide whether Electric Delivery is not more suitable for you.

This Association will gladly send you interesting literature about Electric Vehicles. Write today.

Public interest and private advantage both favor the Electric

THE ART OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

By FRED C. W. BROWN

A MORE COMPLICATED DESIGN.

But the Same Rules of Construction.

In the two preceding articles in this series, I have tried to show how necessary it is to use reason and to be reasonable in everything attempted. I have tried to show that simplicity is the keynote of success. Not only is simplicity the surest road to success in your floral arrangements, but you will increase your value and profits by religiously keeping before you the ever great, essential virtue of simplicity.

Do not misunderstand me in the foregoing. I would not for one moment have you think that I advocate the elimination of intricate, or complicated, or double-interest designs. I would not for one moment suggest that the capable florist, catering to the higher class of trade, should simplify his work to such a degree as was shown in my previous articles, unless he is arranging a piece for those who are not educated in the principles of art.

I am a strong believer in the "charm of veiled mystery," particularly where the material is intricate and the subject suitable. But, no matter how intricate the material or how great or small the subject, ever and always let the fact be apparent that there was some object in view, that a meaning was intended to be conveyed in everything you arranged. The answer to your subject does not have to be glaring, but let it be apparent that there is an answer, even though it takes a cultivated mind to solve its meaning.

Consider Your Customer.

Choose your subject according to your customer. A school teacher would not place a problem in high mathematics before a third or fourth grade child. Therefore, do not be mysterious or "high" in your artistic soarings when you are catering to the "plain people." Most of us are plain people, and even those who are not are likely to desire, when selecting flowers, to have soothing simplicity and natural grace in preference to something that embodies a reason for doubt.

The wreath here illustrated is what might be considered a simple example of the more complicated arrangements of flowers; that is, where more than two materials have been used in the construction. This wreath is quite evidently a wreath of carnations, with a cluster of orchids, sweet peas and lily of the valley. The fact is clear and manifest. It is not necessary to attach a card or sign explaining the fact, nor is it necessary to have someone stand by to explain the nature of the material. The carnations are apparent, the orchids are apparent, as also are the sweet peas and lily of the valley.

How the Result Was Attained.

If we desire to go more into detail we shall find foliage of different kinds, but the main fact is apparent. Suppose we ask ourselves how this desirable result was attained. The answer might be that it would be difficult to make it otherwise; that this is the natural way to arrange the flowers on this particular piece; that anyone would do just the same thing. If that were the answer given, I would quite positively say, "You are wrong," for there are no two people who would arrange these flowers alike. In fact, the maker of this piece would not attempt it the second time, but would try to change the arrangement, always with an eye to improvement.

Mr. Brown will be pleased to answer, as this series of articles progresses, any criticisms or questions that may occur to his readers. The first article of the series was printed in the issue of October 10. The next installment will appear in an early issue.

A Simple Example of a More Complicated Arrangement.

The Chief Point of Interest.

The variations in arrangement are limited only by the maker's ability, but no matter how many different methods we might try or how we might twist or turn the blooms, we would always use the principles of art embodied in this design as it stands in the picture.

What are these principles, as applied here? How should I recognize them? First, we have the conventional wreath, in the form of which we have massed our flowers. We have fairly well retained its symmetrical lines. Then we have our opposition cluster of sweet peas, with a natural clinging tendency. We also have our still greater opposition of lily of the valley. This we have placed in direct opposition to both our form and our clinging arrangement of peas, and we find, by following all the lines of our wreath up to this point, that the greatest amount of interest is most naturally centered at the point of greatest opposition and this point of opposition is where the different materials unite. So we have placed our richest material, our orchids, here. We have created a greater interest in our wreath with the principle of opposition and have qualified our interest point by our richest material. It is in this material, at this point, that the charm of our design lies.

The Individuality of the Piece.

Up to the placing of our orchids the process of arrangement is almost mechanical. True, it is all done with a final object in view, but the only claim we can make for any distinction, beyond any other wreath made with the same material, is in our power of placing our high light, our interest point of orchids. The individuality of the piece, the stamp of the maker, appears in the manner of qualifying the interest.

You will notice that the great principle of simplicity has been embodied in all the construction. There is no taxing of the mind to discover the composition of the design; each variety of flower has been grouped so that it stands clear for its identity. The proportion is pleasing and the most unpracticed eye can see at a glance just what has been attempted.

Art jumps at you from every part and yet the set rules are so veiled by the natural use of the material that art is not even suspected, but only the grace and attractiveness of the flowers hold our attention.

Certainty in Results.

It might be possible to arrange such a piece as this without any knowledge of art, but if such should be the case, it could only be considered a fortunate accident. Why not make it a reasonable certainty by a study of the principles of art? Faithful observance of the principles makes results sure. It means money in your pocket and a greater satisfaction to your trade. It is not difficult, but it does require thought and reason. It requires a free application of the grains of common sense, and then, on top of that, you should display your own originality, throw your own power of execution into the final placing of your high light, and the result is bound to be pleasing.

These principles are just as essential in the making of a cluster, a bouquet or a basket arrangement, only the application is a little different.

As to the man who says, "I please my trade and let art look out for itself," one of two statements is positively true: Either he unconsciously embodies art in the construction, or he is the man who wonders how it is that "the other fellow gets such good prices," or why his trade wanders to the bigger stores when his customers have the purchasing of something a little finer than their average corsage bouquet, basket or design.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

A COMING OUT TEA.

An old country house in a pretty suburb of Philadelphia was the scene of great activity that warm October afternoon. Guests who came on foot and in motors and carriages were entering through the open doorway and wide entry into the parlor beyond. There the daughter of the house was being presented to the friends of her family. She was simply gowned in white and carried an exquisite shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The parlor mantels and walls and fireplace were banked with dainty floral creations, the gifts of friends, arranged by an artistic hand. Here was a huge basket of dahlias, the variety Geisha, their bold form and brilliant coloring brought out to fullest advantage. There was a bunch of Glory of Pacific chrysanthemums, loosely tied with broad, pale sash. Then another fine basket, this one filled with roses, a symphony in shades of pink, its delicacy enhanced by the proper shade of ribbon. Then there was a batch of double violets, quite a novelty, with a gardenia or two added to give fragrance. There were many old-fashioned bouquets, cunningly fashioned, each distinct from the others, some with rosebuds of pink, or cream, or orange, tightly tied together with a fringe of lilies of the valley, or oncidiums, all with those dainty lace bouquet holders. There was a gorgeous bunch of delphiniums with their rich blue coloring, another of Sunburst striking its many hued petals, a pair of miniature rose trees in tubs, one pink and one red, their symmetrical proportions suggesting bay trees in full bloom. So I might go rambling on were it not that enough has been said to give an idea of the doings in the floral world.

A HANDY BLANK.

"I enclose a form of order blank that I find minimizes the chance of error in taking telephone orders," writes Fred W. Arnold, of Cambridge, O. He adds: "Perhaps other florists will be interested in it." The blank is reproduced herewith, reduced in size. The original was about 4x5 inches, giving space enough for convenient writing while at the telephone. Probably a great many will consider that the most important feature of the blank is the injunction to REPEAT! Your printer will turn out these blanks for you so cheaply that they are worth a trial if you are having trouble through mix-ups in orders taken over the phone.

DON'T EXCUSE A FAULT.

Don't excuse a fault to save the trouble of correcting it.

That is dangerous to the business.

Yet many men do it.

They never acknowledge they are wrong until after they see the customer getting angry and see the likelihood of the store losing much business.

The best way is to "acknowledge the corn" and make good immediately by rectifying the wrong.

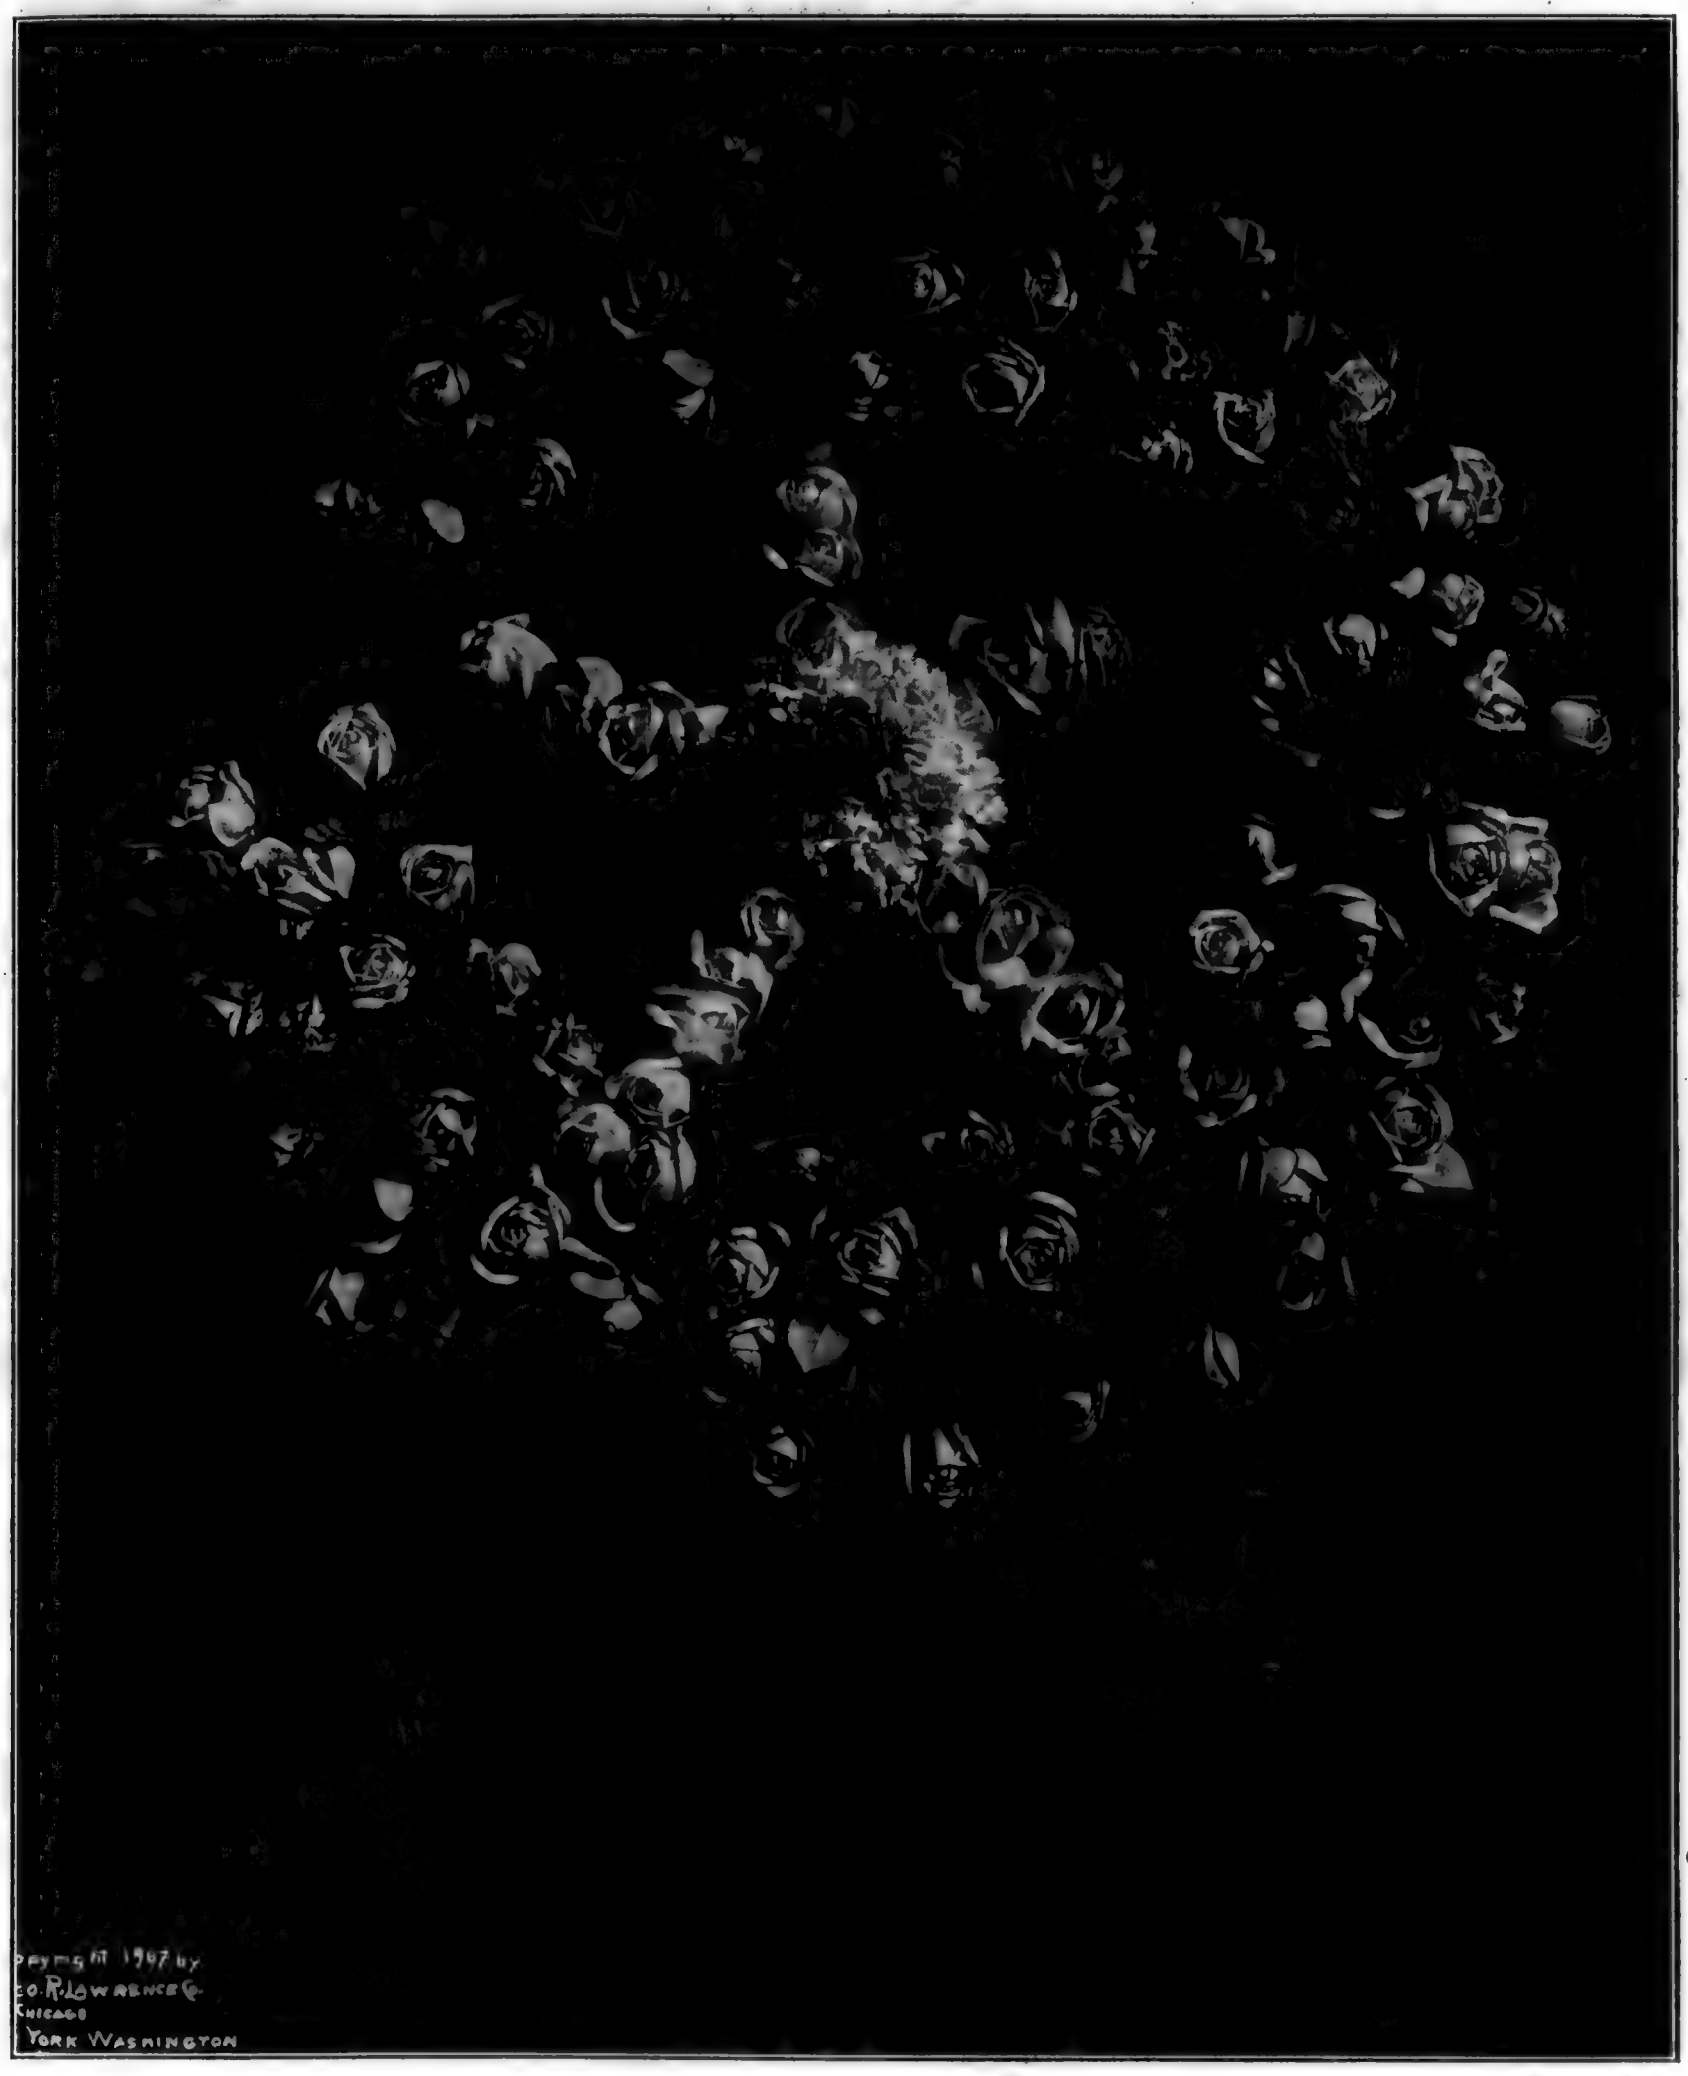
To shirk the task of correcting your faults will eventually undermine the business.

THE BROKEN WHEEL.

The broken wheel formerly was one of the most popular of funeral designs and in some localities it still is made as frequently as any other piece, with the exception of the wreath and the pillow. The broken wheel, like the broken column, has so plain a meaning that its significance escapes no one.

The accompanying illustration shows a typical broken wheel. It is a design which cannot be satisfactorily executed except of good size; if the piece is too small the space between the spokes becomes solid and the character of the piece is lost. It must be shown on an easel.

MUMS IN DECORATION.



The Danger of Monotony.

The great popularity of the chrysanthemum as a decorative subject is proof of its value, for no plant without great intrinsic merit could have survived so long in the face of so many other good things. But in the race for big, showy flowers and effects we are prone to overlook the beauties of less gorgeous but equally pleasing varieties. The revival of interest in the single and pompon kinds is a step in the direction of a more artistic and varied use of this popular flower, but only a step has been taken as yet and there is room for many more.

Retailers, it is true, are dependent upon their growers for variety, and so many of these have got into the rut of growing just what they know will sell, taking no chances on anything new or different, that it is disheartening to a decorator who would like to use something novel or fresh but can not obtain it. But most growers will take steps to produce the novelties, provided their customers will promise to take the stock when grown and so insure them against loss, while the retailer who grows a part of the stock he sells has the remedy in his own hands.

The Small, Single Varieties.

Small, late struck plants of single varieties are elegant for filling flat baskets to be used as centerpieces or for other purposes, and those with a quilled or anemone center and long, wavy petals are especially attractive. There is no lack of color variety; we have pure whites, all shades of rose and pink, light and golden yellows and many tints of red in self colors. These are usually most satisfactory, as the varieties with two and three colors in the blooms have too bizarre an appearance. Some of the whites shading to rose have not this defect, but are just as attractive as the pure whites or self colors.

As cut flowers, too, these small, single sorts are exquisite. Why they are not more used for corsages in their season is difficult to explain. They are surely more pleasing than the immense flowers sometimes worn and, in addition, have not so strong a perfume, this being disliked by many.

In mantel decorations the heavy foliage of the large-flowering varieties hides too much of the glass, but sprays of these smaller types, accompanied by smilax or fine asparagus, are quite suitable.

The Large-Flowering Kinds.

While praising the single, small-flowered varieties we should never lose sight of the value in bolder types of decoration of the large-flowering kinds. The trend of the times is in favor of the true American types, having large flowers of telling color and good foliage, coming up to within a few inches of the bloom. The European and Australian varieties generally, while producing magnificent flowers, bear these flowers at the top of a long, slender stem, or neck, as it is termed, and are not nearly so good as the home product.

The Pompons.

While they are largely grown for the purpose, pompon varieties are not a success as cut flowers. The true pompon is too hard in outline, too much like the old incurved or Chinese chrysanthemum of past days to be pretty as a cut bloom. But as a pot plant the pompon is a decided improvement on anything else in the family. When the variety is properly selected the habit is good, and in almost every case the color of the flowers is showy and distinct and the plants are extremely free blooming. Get your grower to prepare the plants in different sizes, large plants for special purposes, and small, late rooted stock that will come in useful for filling baskets, pans and like receptacles. Customers "fall" for them on sight, especially where they have not been grown or shown before, and they show a better profit than most things, both to retailer and grower.

THE PRESIDENT'S BOUQUET.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph of a bouquet of Pacific Supreme chrysanthemums, tied with pink Sprinkle-proof chiffon to match, that was presented by the eight different ladies' societies of the town to President and Mrs. William H. Taft, on the event of the visit paid to Brattleboro, Vt., October 7. The bouquet stood three feet high and was eight feet in circumference. The chrysanthemums were grown and the bouquet made by Carl S. Hopkins, of Brattleboro.

NORTHERN INDIANA FLORISTS.

The Northern Indiana Florists' Association met at Kendallville October 16, broke the bounds of its name and annexed a part of Chicago and also spread eastward into Ohio, when it added to its membership the following new names: Christ Winterich, Defiance, O.; Theodore Haserodt, Mt. Gilead, O.; A. W. Herre, of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; C. O. Wilcox, of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; S. H. Ten Eyck, Auburn, Ind.; Otto O. Shrock, Ligonier, Ind., and Arthur E. Sumner, Garrett, Ind.

The usual routine of business was transacted at the First M. E. church, where, in the church kitchen, the ladies of the church prepared and spread a sumptuous repast, which all present enjoyed. Afterward a number of automobiles took the party to the following points of interest: First, the Kendallville Celery Gardens, which were models of neatness and system, and many saw celery handled as they never saw it before; second, the famous Flint & Walling Pump & Windmill factories, which were hives of industry; then the celebrated McCray Refrigerator Co., where were acres and acres of refrigerators in all stages of construction.

At the meeting room were the following exhibits:

Frank & Son, of Portland, Ind., a fine vase each of the following roses: Kaiserin, Killarney, White Killarney, W. R. Smith and Maryland.

W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., Kaiserin roses on 4-foot stems and flowers to match; also W. R. Smith and Killarney.

Johnson Floral Co., Kendallville, Ind., a fine vase each of Rose-pink Enchantress and Enchantress carnations.

L. A. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., excellent vases of Bonfire, Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations.

W. W. Dederick, Warsaw, Ind., fine vases each of Dorothy Gordon, White Perfection, Enchantress and White Wonder carnations.

Ten Eyck & Son, Auburn, Ind., an assortment of chrysanthemums.

The South Bend Floral Co., South Bend, Ind., vase of chrysanthemums.

Christ Winterich, Defiance, O., specimen plants of cyclamen in 6-inch and 8-inch pots.

Johnson Floral Co., Kendallville, fine specimens of Begonia Glory of Cincinnati, ferns and cyclamens.

Simon Humfeld, Muncie, Ind., had sample plants and supplies.

The Mt. Gilead Pottery Co., Mt. Gilead, O., had a sample line of flower pots and pans.

A. A. Arnold, Chicago, showed a large line of cut flower boxes.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, showed fine ruscus and other florists' supplies.

W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, staged florists' supplies and bulbs.

On invitation it was voted to hold the next meeting in Columbia City, Ind., January 15, 1913.

Business being concluded, a vote of thanks was tendered the Johnson Floral Co., for the entertainment furnished.

FALL PLANTING.

[A paper by Thomas Beattie, read before the Detroit Florists' Club, October 21, 1912.]

Fall planting of shrubs and hardy perennials might be divided into two classes, early and late, with the preference strongly in favor of the former. While the majority of the stock planted late in the season may pull through the winter and start into growth in spring, it is a decided advantage to have the roots established before severe weather sets in. More especially is this the case with herbaceous stock, many varieties of which are sure to winter poorly if left until the end of the season. September and early October are the ideal months for almost all of this class.

The grounds surrounding Scripps' Library, corner Trumbull and Grand River avenues, are an example of early planting, where most of the stock, both shrubs and perennials, was put in place during August and September, with great success. The perennials grew luxuriantly and flowered profusely during the first season, and the shrubs made much more than an average growth. This was noticeable in the case of the lilacs, which usually stand still during the first year following transplanting. Where such early planting as this is practiced, it is necessary to strip all of the stock and thoroughly water it.

The grounds of the Hudson Motor Car Co., in front of the factory and office buildings, might be cited as an example of late planting, where the work was completed in November of last year, and the loss during the winter, which was an unusually severe one, was less than a dozen pieces out of some 1,700. No protection was given in this case, but only the hardiest of deciduous shrubs were used, and the beds were unusually well prepared, the soil being of a sandy nature.

Right here a word might be said in regard to the preparation of the ground, which is really the foundation of all planting. One of the commonest mistakes of the average planter is the placing of shrubs in the complicated mixture of clay, bricks, laths, shingles, etc., which the excavator and builder have so considerately left him for this purpose. A little foresight in this matter, where filling is necessary, would prompt the home builder to scrape his good soil into piles that could later be graded on top of whatever underfilling is required, and thus escape the aggravation that many experience, through the knowledge that some four or five feet beneath the surface of clay is a depth of good soil that would suit all planting purposes could it only claim its rightful position on top. Where such conditions as these exist, it will pay, in every instance, to remove the clay and refill with good sandy soil and manure, to a depth of eighteen inches. While most shrubs will grow in hard clay when once established, the working of the ground around them is an incentive to profanity, and the loss of time spent in trying to pulverize the soil annually will more than offset the amount spent in proper preparation.

In relation to spring planting, the fall has many advantages, except in the case of a few of the less hardy subjects, such as the althæas, for instance, which are not entirely hardy in Detroit.

Fall planted stock will always show a much better growth during the first year than that put in during the spring season, due to its being in position to start away with the first warm days in April, without suffering any check. The gardener, too, has always more time to give attention to details at this season, when his energies are not directed in many different channels, as is the case early in the year. In the spring the ground is not in condition to work when planting ought to be begun, but by the time the stock has been dug in the nursery, reposed in a box car from one to two weeks, become heated and made a growth of several inches, much valuable growing time has been lost and a severe shock administered to the plants.

Where it is absolutely necessary to delay planting until spring, the stock should be procured in fall and heeled in over winter, ready to be placed in its permanent position just as soon as the condition of the ground will permit.

THE ROSE OF NEW ENGLAND.

At New Haven recently there was an especially large parade of decorated floats, some of which showed especially well the skill of the florists. From Geduldig's Greenhouses, of Norwich, comes the photograph, here reproduced, of the float that won first prize for Norwich in a contest in which most of the nearby towns took part.

The float was of pergola design. The white enameled arbor was trimmed with red cloth roses and southern smilax, with a variety of palms arranged along the sides. A screen of smilax hung over the wheels, entirely hiding them from view, and on one side in white letters were the words, "The Rose of New England," and on the other "1659-1912." The floor of the float consisted of green sod. White doves hung suspended from the roof, carrying roses and "Norwich" banners in their bills. The pole of the vehicle was covered in white and the six handsome gray horses wore large white pompons. Six of the prettiest girls of Norwich were selected to ride in the float. They were daintily gowned in white and threw American Beauty roses as the float proceeded along the march, causing a wild scramble.

THE WHITE CLOVER.

What variety of shamrock bears the white blossoms? C. S. F.

Trifolium repens, the white clover, is probably the variety referred to. In Ireland this is usually considered the true shamrock. C. W.

There Must be Some Conspiracy Afoot Here.

CARNATIONS

STEM-ROT AGAIN.

Several of our carnation plants are dying and we would like to know if you can explain the cause. They were benched about September 20 and were large plants, having buds on them. Being close to the house, we took them up with large clumps of soil on them and put them in the bench. We wet them down well after planting and have watered moderately since then. They die at the ground and the tops lop over. The roots, some of them, remain alive and sprout out. We have lost about 150 or more. We can not find any insect or anything on them or in the soil. The plants were benched in good, well rotted sod, thoroughly pulverized. They are strong, vigorous-looking plants and are full of buds, but a few days later are dead.

S. & S.

You are losing your carnation plants by way of the common wet stem-rot. There are many causes of stem-rot, and without more detail it would be impossible to determine the cause of your trouble. You may have set your plants too deeply into the new soil. They should not be much deeper than they were in the field. The fungus may have been in an active state in the soil when you brought it into the house. Still again, the necessary watering and spraying during the first few days after benching the plants may have started the fungus into activity.

Lime undoubtedly is the best agent for checking this disease. Take some air-slaked lime and dust the plants heavily with it, and see that it reaches the stems of the plants as well as the soil immediately around them. In fact, you can dash it into the plants and between the rows without doing the least harm.

Do not withhold the water too much, but water carefully for a time. Give abundant ventilation at every opportunity. Do everything possible to promote a sturdy growth. Do not apply any heavy mulch, at least until you have the stem-rot under control.

When you take out a dead plant, either take out the soil immediately around it, or drop a small handful of lime where the plant stood.

A. F. J. B.

WEAK STEMS AND SPIDER.

Kindly tell us what makes weak stems on carnations? Our plants otherwise are thrifty. What shall we do to kill red spiders on carnation plants?

W. E. K. C.

The causes of weak stems are many. Assuming that you have planted varieties which ordinarily produce strong stems, I will name a few of the most common causes of this trouble: Your soil may be deficient in lime. Light soils are frequently that way. Sprinkle about a 4-inch potful of either wood ashes or air-slaked lime on the soil, between each row across a 5-foot bench, and water it in. You may have put too much shade on the glass when you benched your plants, and kept it on too long. You may have stinted with your ventilation, or you may have kept your houses too warm both night and day. Open the vents wide every bright day and keep the night temperature around 50 degrees. If there is a particle of shade on the glass, rub it off.

To exterminate red spider, I usually depend on the hose and a good pressure, hitting the plants from every angle possible. In cases where the hose is inadequate, I use the following formula, and with good success, invariably: Get five pounds of white sugar and mix into it a half pound of arsenic while dry. Then stir into it enough warm water to make a syrup. Use one ounce of this syrup to each gallon of water for spraying on the plants. One or two doses properly applied should clean out any dose of spider. A. F. J. B.

CUTTINGS FROM OLD PLANTS.

Please let me know whether carnation cuttings made from 2-year-old stock are as good as cuttings made from young plants. C. S. L.

If the stock plants have been handled properly, cuttings taken from them are equal to those taken from young plants. Many of our largest producers of rooted cuttings use for this purpose plants which were cut back in the spring and kept topped during the summer. Sometimes they are replanted, but as often they are left where they are and kept growing vigorously by mulching and feeding. Such plants are in every way fit to produce cuttings of the highest quality. A. F. J. B.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

CHRYSANTHEMUM SPOT.

Can you tell me what is the matter with the enclosed chrysanthemum leaves? I have about 200 plants with all the foliage in this same condition. Having laid the blame somewhat to watering, I tried to run some of the plants on the dry side and kept the rest moderately wet, but the result seems to be the same, and the trouble seems to increase under both conditions. We are installing a new boiler and therefore have no heat in the houses; this, too, might have something to do with causing the trouble. The vents are on the south side of the house and we notice the trouble more there than on the north side. The plants on the south side are, of course, directly under the vents and are getting the most sun. Early in the season the vents were left open over night, and sometimes it rained in on them; could this have caused it? What remedy would you suggest? G. P.

The leaves enclosed were covered with the old familiar chrysanthemum spot, as it is termed, and it is caused largely by the plants being in too crowded a condition in the house and having the foliage wet in the evening, so that they remain in that condition all night instead of being dry.

Unless the disease is running up the leaves to the flowers so much that it is a handicap in the sale of the blooms, I do not think it will do a great deal of harm at this time. There is a natural ripening of the foliage, consequent to hardening of the wood, which takes the bottom leaves away in any case. If the house is kept perfectly dry, there should not be much trouble on account of this spot. If you use a sprayer it will carry the spores from leaf to leaf and plant to plant, so keep the leaves absolutely dry, giving the benches just enough water to prevent the plants from wilting. C. H. Totty.

WINTERING STOCK PLANTS.

I would like to know if chrysanthemum stock plants can be kept over winter in coldframes, as I do not have room enough for them in my greenhouses. Would it be well to cover the plants with dry leaves and when cold weather sets in to put sash over the frame? Will one sash be enough? I am located in Maryland. B. W.

Chrysanthemum stock plants can be kept over winter in coldframes with perfect safety; in fact, they would be much better in a coldframe than if they were in a greenhouse, unless the latter were down to violet temperature. A deep frame will, of course, be much better than a shallow one; that is, a frame where the plants will be a foot or two below the glass. The plants can be covered with leaves and one sash on the frame is ample for such a section as Maryland. Should the weather turn extremely cold a straw mat could be put on top of the sash and the plants so treated should come out in perfect condition in the spring and give good results. Chas. H. Totty.

St. Paul, Minn.—The park board has passed a resolution requesting an appropriation for the erection of new greenhouses at Como park.

Thief River Falls, Minn.—Mrs. Joseph Lang, formerly in business at 115 Kendall avenue, north, has removed to 217 First street, east. She has been seriously ill for nearly six months and has not yet fully recovered.

DUTCH BULBS

DUTCH BULBS OUTDOORS.

Their Increasing Popularity.

While it is perhaps doubtful whether there has been any great increase in the numbers of Dutch bulbs imported for forcing purposes during the last few years, there is no question at all that the increase of these for outdoor planting has been great and there is every probability that this growth will continue, for the love of hardy flowers, while much stronger than it was, is still practically in its infancy, and none of the hardy brigade are so popular as those which come to cheer us after the long and often dreary winter.

It is safe to say that no florist who does a retail trade can dispense with what are commonly termed Dutch bulbs, either for forcing purposes, outdoor planting, or both. The more bulbs a country florist plants tastefully about his own home, the better will the call be from his customers. It is noteworthy that the florists who keep a nice front lawn and have one or more beds or borders suitably planted with a well assorted selection of bulbs, hardy perennials or tender bedding plants, are always better patronized than the more careless and shiftless growers, who continue to present for their customers' admiration a miscellaneous assortment of packing cases, old piping, scrap iron and the various other incidentals of a sale place which should always be relegated to the rear and given as inconspicuous a location as possible.

Hardy Bulbs for Cutting.

It pays to grow an assortment of hardy bulbs for cutting, entirely apart from such as may be used for bedding. These follow the indoor crop and can hardly be dispensed with. A large assortment of these is neither necessary nor desirable. Here is a boiled down list of some which are sure to sell: In narcissi, Emperor, Victoria, Golden Spur, N. poeticus ornatus, N. poeticus, Leedsii, Mrs. Langtry, Sir Watkin and Barrii conspicuus; in early tulips, such sorts as White Pottebakker, Chrysolora, Pink Beauty, Rose Grisdelin, Murillo, Couronne d'Or, Joost van Vondel, white, and Keizerskroon; in late tulips, Picotee, Bouton d'Or, Gesneriana major, Gesneriana lutea, Golden Crown and any of the Darwins. In more northerly sections, where these late tulips naturally bloom near Memorial day, few flowers pay better. I have in mind one grower who had a batch of 6,000 of these last May. He kept them mulched quite late with seaweed and they flowered just right. He had no trouble in selling all of them at 6 cents each at retail.

Hyacinths for cutting are hardly worth growing outdoors, but Spanish iris should never be overlooked. They are invaluable, as they have such long stems and graceful foliage. Blanche Superbe, Louise, Chrysolora and Thunderbolt are good, and, to immediately follow them, try a planting of Iris Anglica, or English iris, another fine subject for cutting. Some people imagine that irises are tender. They are just as hardy as tulips and narcissi and, if left undisturbed, will bloom for years, even when cut down quite hard.

Bulbs for Bedding.

When it comes to bulbs for bedding, tulips are the bulbs par excellence, and every year sees more and more of them planted. A well assorted mixture is often used and looks well, but beds of one solid color make the most pleasing and at the same time the most imposing show. Circular or oval beds may be quartered. Square beds, if not wanted of one shade, are better planted in lines several deep, or in blocks. Care should be taken to select varieties of uniform height which bloom together. By far the finest of all white bedding tulips is White Joost van Vondel. Flamingo and Rose Grisdelin, pink; Yellow Prince and Ophir d'Or, yellow; Belle Alliance, scarlet, and Striped Joost van Vondel, rose flaked white, are of uniform height and bloom together.

White Pottebakker is another beautiful white tulip, several inches taller than Joost van Vondel. To go with it, of equal height, plant such sorts as Yellow Pottebakker and Golden Queen, both splendid yellows; Queen of the Netherlands, pink; Thomas Moore, orange; Proserpine, carmine rose; Keizerskroon, scarlet bordered yellow. These are the tallest of the first-class early tulips.

Of medium height, taller than the Joost van Vondel class, are: Mon Tresor and Ophir d'Or, golden yellow; Pink Beauty, one of the grandest tulips in commerce; Prince of Austria, orange red; Vermilion Brilliant, scarlet, and Queen Victoria, white. The white, pink and yellow shades harmonize well together, but it is not good taste to mix the scarlet, deep orange, crimson and deep rose shades with them. Keep these by themselves. The softer colors are what people like the best. A circular bed, quartered and planted, say with White Joost van Vondel and Belle Alliance, will not be nearly so satisfying to the average flower lover as one in which White Joost van Vondel is associated with a delicate pink like Rose Grisdelin or Cottage Maid.

Late Tulips for Bedding.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the late tulips are ignored for bedding. People have been so much in the habit of planting the early sorts that they have overlooked the most magnificent of all tulips. These are taller growing and of much greater vigor than the earlies and make a much grander show when in flower. There are many moderate priced varieties and I would strongly urge their extended use as bedders. When once customers have seen them they are bound to want more the following year. Another good point about them is that if they are used in mixed borders, where the bulbs need not be disturbed, they will increase in numbers and flower better the second and third seasons.

The following list of inexpensive late tulips contains a wide range of colors and cannot fail to give satisfaction. Among the May-flowering cottage tulips, good yellows are: Gesneriana lutea, Golden Crown, T. retroflexa, Bouton d'Or and Leghorn Bonnet. Among whites La Candeur is good; in scarlets, Gesneriana spathulata and Inglescombe Scarlet; in pink, Inglescombe Pink. Added to these should be T. vitellina, delicate sulphur; Picotee, white penciled and edged cerise, and Isabella, rose flaked white.

A few varieties of Darwins can hardly be omitted from any collection of tulips. These are the most robust growing of all the tulip family and are superb both for cutting and for massing in beds. Splendid sorts are: Gretchen, soft pink; Clara Butt, salmon pink; Wedding Veil, silvery gray; Glow, vermilion scarlet; King Harold, blood red; Mme. Krelage, rose, and Loveliness, satiny rose.

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

As experience is the best teacher, so do we learn fastest by an exchange of experiences. Many valuable points are brought out by discussion.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

Hyacinths and Narcissi.

Hyacinths are less popular here than in Europe for bedding. As a rule they are planted in separate shades, but unnamed. The bedding sized, named varieties are in some ways preferable, as then only one decided shade will be seen. Mixed colors of hyacinths, bedded out, are simply an abomination and should never be used. Singles are far preferable to doubles for bedding. Baroness van Tuyll and Grandeur à Merveille, white; Gigantea and Gertrude, pink; Robert Steiger, crimson; Queen of the Blues, sky blue; King of the Blues, dark blue, and King of the Yellows, golden yellow, will be found excellent inexpensive varieties.

Among the narcissi the large trumpet sorts make the most imposing show. Emperor, Victoria, Henry Irving, Golden Spur and Empress are all good. As a general rule, however, narcissi are preferred in bands, in clumps, and on grass land naturalized, the last method of planting being the best for many varieties. Of the shorter trumpet section Leedsii, Mrs. Langtry, Sir Watkin, Barrii conspicuus, all the poeticus and Burbidgei varieties, N. incomparabilis Figaro, Cynosure and Stella are reliable.

Planting the Bulbs.

All Dutch bulbs like a well worked, friable soil, in which old, well decayed manure has been mixed. No water should ever stand on the beds in winter, or failure will result. The hyacinths should be set six inches deep and the bulbs the same distance apart. Tulips should be covered four inches; large bulbed narcissi, such as Emperor and Victoria, six inches, and smaller ones four inches. As to the planting time, from the middle of October to the middle of November is a good period, the later date for the south. Of course, the longer bulbs are kept out of the soil, the more will they fritter away their vitality. Therefore, the earlier they can be got into the soil, the better results will be had.

THE HARDY GARDENS

LATE PERENNIALS.

They Are Useful to Florists.

The anemones are splendid for florists to use in design work, and a large vase of them, nicely arranged, is telling. Their flowering time is just ahead of the mums, when good outside flowers, or in fact flowers of any kind, are none too plentiful. They like rich ground, and in such soil they will grow four feet or more in height and give cut flowers for several weeks.

The single white form, A. Japonica alba, is probably still the best of the whole family. As a double, Whirlwind is good, but not equal to the older sort. Queen Charlotte, with immense semi-double pink flowers, is the leader of the colored sorts. Japonica rubra is deeper in color and Prince Henry has deep pink flowers. Elegantissima is another rose-satin colored variety, semi-double, but hardly equal to Queen Charlotte.

Hardy Asters.

The Michaelmas daisies, or starworts, are among our most beautiful, dainty and in every way desirable hardy border plants. Because they are found so abundantly in a wild state, many are disposed to pooh-pooh them, but anyone who has seen a collection well cared for can hardly fail to be enthusiastic over them. A large proportion flower in September and October and their range of colors is wide. A Novæ-Angliæ and the variety roseus are strong growers, attaining a height of five to six feet. Wm. Bowman, amethyst-blue, is quite distinct. A. Novi-Belgii Robert Parker, light blue, is a gem; so is A. lævis, lavender-blue. Triumph is a fine late lavender, and White Queen an excellent white. There are scores of other varieties. All are beautiful, but too many sorts are not to be desired. Tartaricus grows six feet or more in height. Its large, bluish flowers are usually not at their best until October 10 to 30.

Boltonias.

Boltonias, or false chamomiles, are similar to asters in appearance and are often mistaken for them. They grow five to seven feet high, and for cutting are superb. B. latisquama, pink shaded lavender, is the finest of the whole family and gives immense spikes for cutting if not allowed to crowd. B. asteroides, or false chamomile, is effective in the garden in large masses and grand for cutting. The present is a suitable time to do any planting of these.

Aconitums.

The aconitums, or monkhoods, are robust growing, stately perennials, starting to flower in August, but persisting until late in October. They are well adapted for partly shaded locations and will sometimes attain a height of eight feet. In such positions, if the soil is good, all are splendid for cutting. A. Napellus, dark blue, A. Napellus album, white, and A. Napellus bicolor, blue and white, are three distinct varieties. A. Wilsoni, one of E. H. Wilson's introductions from northern China, carries large, violet-blue flowers from the middle to the end of September. It is robust and I have seen it seven to eight feet in height. A. Fischeri is the dwarfest of the family, carrying light blue flowers. It grows only eighteen to twenty-four inches high. The aconitums are splendid for cutting and last remarkably well in water.

Helianthus.

A few hardy sunflowers are at their best in September and October. H. orgyalis, with narrow, willow-like leaves and single yellow flowers, is a graceful variety, growing six to eight feet in height. When not crowded too much, the flowering stems will flower almost to the ground. H. Maximiliani is one of the latest of all perennials and is grand for cutting. The flowers are fine, golden in color and are not produced until October, when all others of the family have passed. H. giganteus will grow eight to ten feet high in strong soil. It, also, is a late bloomer and the flower is pale yellow. All these late sunflowers are graceful and are splendid for cutting.

A few other late perennials well worthy of culture are: Solidago altissima and S. Canadensis, Sedum spectabile, several of the tritomas, montbretias, Phlox paniculata of spring propagation, delphiniums where cut down and allowed to produce a second crop, Artemisia lactiflora, a desirable novelty, and the hardy pompon chrysanthemums in variety.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The following special prizes have been offered to the Chrysanthemum Society of America for the exhibition to be held in the American Institute, New York, November 6 to 8, 1912:

Class D—Elmer D. Smith Co. prize, for best twelve blooms of Chrysanthemum Manhattan, first, $15; second, $10; open to private gardeners only.

Class K—Harry E. Converse prize, a silver cup, for best six blooms of Chrysanthemum Harry E. Converse; also open to private gardeners only.

The complete schedule of prizes can be had by applying to W. A. Eagleson, secretary Board of Managers, American Institute, 19 West Forty-fourth street, New York, to whom all entries are to be made.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the Waban Rose Conservatories, 3A Somerset street, Boston, Mass., offer for registration the following rose. Any person objecting to the registration of this rose, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the undersigned at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

RAISER'S DESCRIPTION.

Mrs. Charles Russell, seedling raised in 1907 by Alexander Montgomery, Jr., at the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass. Parents, unnamed seedling and General MacArthur. Growth free and vigorous, foliage heavy and rather coarse, after the style of General MacArthur. Flower large and full as American Beauty. Color a clear rose pink.

Public notice is hereby given that the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Chester county, Pa., offers for registration the following new cannas. Any person objecting to the registration of these plants, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the undersigned at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

RAISER'S DESCRIPTION.

Blanche Wintzer, height three and one-half feet; one step nearer the perfect white canna; whiter and larger than Mont Blanc, which for ten years has been the best. Mr. Wintzer looks upon Blanche Wintzer as one of his greatest triumphs, so exquisitely white and pure are its glistening petals. A rather dwarf grower, on green foliage, fine for bordering beds, for individual specimens, and for indoor bloom. Florists' Exchange of September 28, 1912, says, "This is the finest white canna, undoubtedly, the world has ever seen."

Loveliness, height three feet; the color of this exquisite canna is most difficult to describe, but we think that "bright, ruby carmine" will convey to our customers the entrancing loveliness of this most charming variety. The blooms are formed on large heads, which are borne erect, and the individual flowers, with firm, well made petals, are of the new Gladioflora type introduced by us. The foliage is a delicate green, which harmonizes perfectly with the beautiful flowers. The plant is very vigorous and will produce numerous stalks in a season.

Jennie Walls Fahnline, height four and one-half feet. This glorious combination of pink and primrose arouses enthusiasm always on account of its dainty coloring and unique markings. The lips of the petals are flashing carmine pink, which shades toward a throat of soft primrose, delicately dappled pink. Each petal is faintly edged with gold; the effect is dainty, artistic and fascinating.

Panama, height three feet. The color of this charming canna is unusual, being an attractive rich orange red, with a well defined, wavy edge of bright golden yellow. The flowers are very large, the petals being almost round and as broad as they are long, and having great durability. The gigantic blooms command attention and admiration.

Lorraine (improved), height five feet. Delicate rose pink, distinctly bordered with cream. Lower petal is cream splashed with pink. A marked advance over our old Lorraine of a dozen years back.

Maid of Orleans, height four and one-half feet. Ground color is rich cream, over which is shaded and mottled in beautiful fashion an attractive pink. The flowers are very large, and the foliage is probably the richest of any of the green leaved kinds, being soft olive green, with the edges tastefully crimped and distinctly marked with bronze.

Sam Trelease (improved), height three feet. The general habit of this canna cannot be surpassed, as the blooms are formed on strong, straight stems which shoot up well above the perfectly formed soft green foliage. The flower is most exquisite in color, an intense poppy red, with a thread of brilliant yellow around the edge of each petal. Tips of petals are solid poppy red, which gradually shades to yellow, mottled and striped with red on the throat and tongue. An exquisitely beautiful variety.

Wonderful, the greatest novelty yet produced in cannas. The flower is of good size and is produced well above the soft green foliage on tall, straight stems, well furnished with blooms. The flowers are an exceptionally attractive shade of rich gamboge yellow, with a faint tinge of carmine on the throat and tongue. The great value of this "Wonderful" canna lies in the fact that the usual four petals of the ordinary canna have been just doubled to eight well formed petals, which overlap each other most gracefully.

HAEGER'S HILLSIDE HOUSES.

The illustration at the top of this page shows the greenhouse establishment of W. F. Haeger, located in the hills of east Tennessee, at North Chattanooga, a suburb of Chattanooga. This place comprises about 15,000 feet of modern glass, devoted to carnations, chrysanthemums, bulbous stock and bedding plants. This year about 16,000 chysanthemums will be cut, and 35,000 plants will be grown for bedding and dwelling use. No roses are grown, the supply of these being obtained from the Chicago market.

The store is located in the center of the business section of Chattanooga, at 700 Market street. The business has grown so rapidly that a considerable part of the flowers sold must be bought from the wholesale market.

Solid beds are used mostly for mums and bulbous stock. All the walls and beds are built of concrete and the houses are as nearly fireproof as possible. The small house on top of the boiler shed is used for propagating, and the floor under the benches is used for forcing valley and starting cold storage lilies. The floor being of concrete and over the boilers makes the forcing of valley easy and cheap. All the cold-frames are made of concrete from soft coal cinders from the boilers and are found durable as well as cheap.

One house is an interesting sight, with small ferns growing on shelf brackets, with larger ferns hanging from the shelves, and underneath, in solid beds, are Paper Whites and Romans. The bulbous stock does finely grown this way, the bed being planted a section at a time, so that too large a supply is not created. This plan saves much space and lifting of heavy flats.

Humber Bay, Ont.—E. A. Crowhurst, the hot water circulator man, is installing a No. 6 Kroeschell boiler.

Dows, Ia.—Shaffer & Sons have succeeded Shaffer & Larson, Mr. Larson having sold his interest to his partner. Another house, 20x92, has just been finished and trade has been good since frost.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Clear and cooler weather showed its influence on the general condition of the flower trade in this vicinity last week. This, with the advent of the queen of autumn, kept the dealers well on the hustle. A number of small social affairs assisted in the general aggregate, while several funerals worked up much of the white flowers. Reports indicate that there will be a plentiful supply of mums for the next month or six weeks, several of the growers having unusually fine crops.

Various Notes.

Johnston Bros., on Dorrance street, are handling some fine single and double pink bouvardias from Albert Holscher. The latter is also cutting some fine chrysanthemums.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, Mass., was a visitor in this city last Saturday. He reports all his stock looking well. He has just completed the benching of nearly 40,000 geranium cuttings for spring bedding.

William E. Chappell has been exceedingly busy with funeral work recently.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was in this city last week as the guest of Charles Smith.

Richard Reuter, of New Orleans, where he is called the vegetable king, has been the guest for a few days of Henry C. Anthony, of Portsmouth.

The M. B. Saunders Co., 25 Burnett street, had a large wedding decoration last week, including cut flowers, palms, smilax, bouquets and table decorations.

Joseph Kopelman is receiving congratulations on the arrival of an 8-pound boy at his home.

O. H. Williams has been nominated by the Republicans of Johnston for reëlection as a member of the town council.

S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., of Westerly, are making a fine showing of chrysanthemums at their new store, 38 Main street.

George Johnson, of the Elmwood Nursery, was awarded a verdict for $338 against Edward F. Healey, a former employee, in the Sixth District court, civil division, by Judge Rueckert a few days ago.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, had a number of large designs for the funeral of George Wilhelm, head brewer for the Narragansett Brewing Co.

H. L. De Blois, 80 Broadway, Newport, has just received several large importations of bulbs.

Friends in this city are receiving postal cards from John Lindloon, formerly manager at the Hope Greenhouses, Massachusetts avenue, who is now employed at Portland, Ore.

The W. E. Barrett Co., which for many years has occupied the building at 75 Canal street, will move into the adjoining building in a short time, as the present building is to be torn down.

Morris Miller, formerly with William B. Hazard and later in business for himself on Westminster street, is now in the employ of Fred Hoffman, at Pawtucket.

Thomas Curley gave a clambake to a party of friends on Sunday, October 13.

Charles W. Morey has been nominated by the Republicans of Slatersville as member of the town council.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, are members of a party which left Wednesday for Maine on a two weeks' hunting trip.

William Hay is cutting 2,500 to 3,500 roses from his houses at Oaklawn daily.

Mrs. William Butcher has just returned from a few weeks' visit at Cape Cod. Her manager, E. Bonevier, is cutting some choice chrysanthemums and fine orchids and has just taken care of an importation of 25,000 bulbs.

William Cohen, who has been with F. Hoffman at Pawtucket for two years, is now with J. Kopelman, in this city.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor in this city.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, is cutting some fine callas and gardenias. W. H. M.

F. Macrae & Sons are closing contracts for the supply of 30,000 Lilium giganteum to go into cold storage, for use in the summer of 1913. They had splendid results in the past and find the demand increases steadily. The firm is cutting some fine roses, carnations, mums and lilies, and in a few days expects to cut some choice single mums in sprays, as they have one of the finest collections of this type in this section. The firm also is making extensive repairs on its plant.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The weather has been good here all this month. We have had two or three frosts, which have put an end to all outdoor flowers. The growers are looking forward to a good season, as the demand is exceedingly good for this time of the year. Roses are of good quality and bring good prices. Long-stemmed American Beauties bring from $3 to $4 a dozen. Carnations are still short of stem and rather soft. Chrysanthemums never were better and the demand is good; Chrysolora sells as high as 30 cents, wholesale, and Unaka at 20 cents. Violets sell at 50 cents a hundred. Oncidiums bring fair prices; so, also, do cattleyas. Greens, especially adiantums, are selling on sight. Dahlias are over for the season.

Various Notes.

Louis Barton's roses are looking fine and his houses give promise of a good crop for Thanksgiving. The Killarneys and Mrs. Taft are the varieties mostly grown. He also has a house of asparagus.

A. E. Blinn, the well known aster grower, has gone out of business and has torn down one of his greenhouses.

The Middletown florists suffered heavily from the recent hail storm, the hail being as large as walnuts. J. B. Fountain lost nearly all his glass and his palms were badly cut up.

Building operations are still in full swing at the plant of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell. One large house, 80 x 800, has just been finished. It is planted mostly in Killarney Queen and Double White Killarney and, though planted late, is looking fine. J. C. Clark, recently of Pittsburgh, Pa., has charge of this house. Two more houses have also been started.

F. W. Richardson's place, at East Hartford, is in fine shape for the winter, after a thorough overhauling.

Frank Weber has gone to Hackensack, N. J., to start in business. Herp's luck to you, Frank.

W. R. Pierson has been on a hunting trip for two weeks in Maine and New Brunswick. A. N. Pierson has been on a business trip to New York and Boston.

William Tricker, of Arlington, N. J., and Mark Aitken, of Springfield, Mass., were recent visitors. C. S. W.

E. W. Newton, formerly in business on Wethersfield avenue, has purchased the greenhouses at 810 Park street and already has them well stocked, principally with carnations, chrysanthemums and ferns.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been having the most delightful fall weather that could possibly be imagined. We thought we had a killing frost about a week ago, but it failed to do its work, as the outside flowers are still coming. Dahlias and cosmos are so plentiful that they have no value and there are more gladioli than anyone wants. All of these have their effect on the prices of inside stock, which is getting more plentiful every day. Roses are fine and plentiful. Carnations are much better than usual at this season of the year. Chrysanthemums are here in quantities, principally such varieties as Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, Early Snow, Yellow Halliday, Virginia Poehlmann, Lady Harnett, Mary Mann, Appleton, Ivory and the pompon varieties.

There is plenty of everything; just mention what you want in a wholesale house and it is yours, and after the buyers are all gone there is plenty left. Beauties and lilies have been the greatest sufferers, as chrysanthemums have largely taken their place. Violets are here in quantity, but the weather is not just right for them.

There has been some business for the retailers, including a number of decorations, but not more than enough to keep the forces in healthy exercise and not nearly enough to use up the stock.

Various Notes.

C. Goodwin & Sons, of Bridgeville, have been sending the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. some fine chrysanthemums, which have found ready sale.

The fine weather on Sunday, October 20, brought out large crowds to see the chrysanthemums at Schenley park. While many of the mums are not quite ready, there were enough to satisfy all who saw them. One of the new mums sent out by C. H. Totty and called Mrs. Geo. Burke, after the wife of the superintendent of Schenley park, is the one being talked about today. It has been grown to perfection at the park, and the visitors and newspapers are commenting on it as being the best in the show to date. The show at the North Side park is also attracting its share of attention and by next Sunday several private places will throw their houses open to the public, all of which should stimulate business.

The John Bader Co. reports an improvement in business. The demand for palms and ferns is especially good.

Harvey Sheaff, manager for Mrs. E. A. Williams, has been doing Panama and he arrived home on Wednesday, October 16, just in time to help take care of a wedding and several other large orders they had on hand, and by Saturday night he almost forgot he had been away.

H. C. Bucheler, who was formerly with the South View Floral Co., but has since opened a store in Braddock, says he is more than satisfied with the business and thinks the prospects are for a good season. He has purchased an automobile for delivery.

J. B. Smith, of McKeesport, was a visitor and reported trade in that city as good for the season. Everyone is working and the manufacturers' payrolls are record-breakers, so the future looks bright.

Howard Carney, of J. B. Murdoch & Co., is a victim of rose thorns and one of his hands is in a bad condition. He submitted to an operation last week, but is not much better and fears blood poisoning. There seems to have been more than the usual amount of thorn trouble among the men handling roses this fall.

Woodrow Wilson was here last week to attend the Wilson dinner given at McCreery's. About 1,200 people sat down and you can bet the only Democrat in the business was there (his name is Marshall). He says it was great.

The A. W. Smith Co. has the decorations at the Grand Opera House this week. Of course, the principal flowers are chrysanthemums in huge bunches, but the rest of the decorations are quite unique.

Randolph & McClements are cutting some fine chrysanthemums at their Stanton avenue houses. They also have some of the finest ferns and crotons ever seen in this city. Business at their new store is highly encouraging, especially the increased amount of counter trade. Hoo-Hoo.

The McCallum Co. states that it has made arrangements with A. T. Lorch to handle his output of carnation blooms this season. Mr. Lorch put up an additional house last summer.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

C. H. Totty, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, announces the following special premiums in addition to the number already reported:

The Nassau County Horticultural Society will donate a silver cup, value $50, to be used as the committee thinks best, but for competition by private gardeners only.

The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society will donate a silver cup, value $50, and will leave the disposition of same to the committee.

The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society offers a prize of $50 in cash, to be offered as the committee sees fit.

Henshaw & Fenrich, New York, offer a silver cup, value $25, class to be announced by the committee.

John Waterer & Sons, Bagshot, England, offer $100 for a group of rhododendrons covering 100 feet.

The American Institute of the City of New York offers the following medals for award as the committee sees fit: The special medal of silver; the bronze medal of superiority; the bronze medal of excellence; the bronze medal of merit.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., offers a silver cup, value $25, to be awarded for twenty-five blooms of the best pink forcing rose not yet disseminated, either of domestic or foreign origin.

The Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, offers a prize of $20 to be used in the discretion of the committee.

John I. Pratt offers a prize of $25 in the class for gardenias.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society offers one gold medal and three silver medals for award in classes to be announced later.

The New Jersey Horticultural Society offers a silver cup, value $25, for competition in any class the committee desires.

The Lenox Horticultural Society offers a silver cup, value $25, for a vase of twenty-five cut roses, any one variety except American Beauty, the competition to be open to private gardeners only.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business was much better last week, although we are having Indian summer weather, rather too warm for this time of year. Carnations and chrysanthemums are scarce; not enough to fill orders. Prices, of course, are quite high as a consequence.

Various Notes.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman has been busy on two big wedding decorations. The Chesbrough-Rathbun wedding called for about the largest and most elaborate decoration ever done in Toledo. The work was in charge of Frank Metz, of the Freeman establishment. Great quantities of Beauties, chrysanthemums and smilax were used.

Miss I. Swartz is in Monroe for a short visit.

Robert Greenlaw, representing Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade here last week.

An important case is pending before the board of tax review in this county, regarding the taxation of growing stock. E. A. Kuhnke, a wholesale grower, has appeared before the board to protest against the action of the local assessor in returning Mr. Kuhnke's growing stock for taxation. The amount was at first placed at $500, but was afterward reduced to $100 by the board of review. But Mr. Kuhnke still protests, claiming that even this amount is an injustice, as the stock can not be legally taxed at all while in the process of maturing, and not afterwards until the stock is put on the market, as the many contingencies likely to occur up to the time of sale make the value so uncertain that it would be impossible to presume on any valuation. The Florists' Club of Toledo has taken up the matter and may employ counsel to test the case in the courts, as if the decision of the board of review is allowed to stand, it will perhaps stand as a precedent which will mean a handicap not only in this county but throughout the state. H. F. P.

Fargo, N. D.—The Shotwell flower factory on South Eighth street now consists of seven greenhouses, each 29x100 feet. The range has been put in first-class shape during the summer, reglazed and steam heat substituted for the hot water system. The Shotwell Floral Co., which has been established more than a quarter of a century, also operates a nursery adjoining the greenhouses.

BOSTON.

The Market.

With the exception of a fairly good cleaning up October 19, business has been only moderate last week. The most important flowers now are chrysanthemums, and the unusually warm and clear weather has sent these along with such a rush that, in addition to early and midseason sorts, Bonnaffon and other late varieties are already arriving. Prices are not at all good and average lower than a year ago. Blooms to reach $2 per dozen must be of extra quality, and only a limited number of fancies sell above this price. Roses are suffering, as usual, from the avalanche of mums, and, while the quality could scarcely be improved upon, prices are not at all up to the mark. The new varieties are in best demand. Next to these come Beauties and Mrs. Aaron Wards. A number of retailers persist in offering the latter as Mrs. Humphry Ward, evidently having the novelist in mind.

Violets are quite abundant and not so easy to move. Lilies are slow sellers, and so is lily of the valley. There is an abundant supply of cosmos. Considerable of this still comes from outdoors, but Lady Lenox grown under glass is far the best. From outdoors asters, gladioli, candytuft, dahlias, calendulas and other flowers still are arriving, only light frost having been felt as yet.

Cattleya labiata is in oversupply. Other orchids, such as oncidiums, Dendrobium Phalænopsis and cypripediums, are in good supply. Gardenias are arriving rather more freely. Asparagus has sold quite well of late, better than adiantum.

In pot plants, chrysanthemums now take the lead, with Lorraine begonias and cyclamens next in favor. There is a good call for palms, ferns, araucarias and other foliage plants.

Various Notes.

The committee on nominations of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society announces this list of candidates to be offered at the annual meeting November 16: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar; vice-president, R. M. Saltonstall; trustees, A. F. Estabrook, William Downs, N. T. Kidder, C. W. Parker, George R. White; nominating committee, H. L. Frost, H. S. Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, H. W. Rawson and William Sim.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, has his single violet frames all planted, some 30,000 plants in all. He had 5,000 flowers October 19 and now has a good daily pick. He has some thousands of Bonnaffon chrysanthemums, most of which he will hold for Thanksgiving trade.

J. F. Daley, of Cambridge, at his stand in the Boston Coöperative Market, has at present a fine assortment of ferns, also Christmas peppers and chrysanthemums.

The Flower Growers' Sales Co. will move with the Boston Flower Exchange to the new market at Winthrop Square, about January 1, 1913.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, showed vases of the new single Irish rose, Fire Flame, October 19, which attracted much favorable notice. They are using the windows of a vacant store at 53 Bromfield street to advertise their well-known brides' shower bouquets, for which the demand now is good. Henry Penn has returned from an auto trip to New York and Philadelphia.

William S. Grassie, of Waverley, is cutting Pacific Supreme mums heavily, and has a fine lot of Bonnaffon for a late crop.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is having great success with his pink snapdragon this season, and the demand for cuttings is as great as ever. He is sending Mrs. Sander and yellow marguerites to the Boston Coöperative Market.

H. L. Belcher, of Winthrop, is giving up the growing of flowers for the wholesale trade and will in future devote all his greenhouses to stock for the retail store at Winthrop, where trade shows a steady increase.

F. J. Dolansky has recently bought over 1,000 more Cattleya labiata. He is cutting some grand spikes of these now, carrying five to six flowers each. He already has some Trianæ in bloom, and gardenias are starting to flower nicely.

William H. Elliott is the largest and most successful grower of pot mums for the local market and already is marketing a fine assortment.

Robert Heggie, of Chestnut Hill, returned October 16 on S. S. Parisian after a four months' vacation spent in Scotland and England.

The Mishawum Flower Co., Woburn, and J. W. Simpson, Woburn, are heavy shippers of chrysanthemums to J. M. Cohen, at the Boston Coöperative Market.

George E. Buxton, of Nashua, N. H., has a new silver pink snapdragon which looks like a winner. The plant is of medium height and the color is simply charming.

The members of the Boston Coöperative Market will hold their annual meeting, preceded by a dinner, at the American House October 26.

A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, has received a big shipment of azaleas, and has a force of men busily engaged in potting them. Business with him now is quite brisk in decorative plants.

William R. Nicholson, of Framingham, has some of the finest mum blooms coming into the market at present. These easily realize top prices. His carnations are also of excellent quality.

October 10, the Welch brothers celebrated their thirty-fifth year in business in Boston, having started October 10, 1877. They are much the oldest of our wholesale houses. Since moving, October 1, 1906, to their present commodious quarters at 226 Devonshire street, business has continued to show a steady yearly growth.

Thomas Pegler has started in business on his own account at Brunswick, Me. He has hired a place temporarily and will later build. As he is a good grower and thoroughly understands the florists' business in all its details, he should do well. He paid a visit to Boston October 14, to see old friends and buy stock.

H. R. Comley, among other flowers this week, is showing Nerine Fothergilli major, Lilium speciosum, Bouvardia Humbodtii and Strelitzia Reginæ.

W. N. C.

Albert H. Woods, of Brookline, who shot and killed Thomas Goldrop when the latter was among the Woods violets September 18, has been held for the December term of the grand jury.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business has advanced much more this year than at this time last year. The trade and stock in general are showing quite an improvement. There is more greenhouse building being done than ever before. Stock in general is plentiful, except carnations, which are a little scarce and of poor quality. Chrysanthemums are coming in rapidly. Yellow is mostly to be seen. Valley is about equal to the demand, while, as yet, orchids are rather scarce. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and of good quality.

Club Meeting.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held in the hall at St. Paul and Franklin streets, Monday evening, October 14. The attendance was fine, with some out-of-town visitors present. Three new members were elected. Professor Thomas B. Symons, of College Park, Md., secretary of the Maryland State Horticultural Society, spoke at length as to the advisability of advertising the Maryland State Horticultural show on a much larger scale this year than last. The show will be held at the Fifth Regiment Armory November 18 to 23. Professor Symons also spoke of a pest that has caused more damage this year than ever, and that is the army worm, which has destroyed many lawns, and the web worm, that has been destroying fields of alfalfa here and there. He said that arsenate of lead is the best remedy for them.

There were displays of chrysanthemums and dahlias. The former were of the Chrysolora variety and a most excellent addition to the mum family. The foliage and flower were perfect, clean and in good condition. They were grown by Gus. A. Lotz, of Glenburnie, Md.

Various Notes.

Jas. Hamilton, of Mt. Washington, Md., has his new rose house, built this summer, all stocked and in full operation for the winter. It is of Lord & Burnham construction and has solid beds with concrete sides. He has 2,000 roses, mostly Killarneys, and the rest Sunburst and Lady Hillingdon.

Jesse B. King, of Mt. Airy, Md., and Philip N. Welsh, of Baltimore, have been cutting fine lots of Chrysolora mums.

The firm of Talbot & Campbell has been dissolved. The former member, George Talbot, is running the business himself, having bought out his partner's share.

The retail stores are making quite a fine showing at this time of the year, autumn foliage playing quite an important part in the color schemes.

L. A. H. Klein, of Towson, Md., has installed and is operating his new boiler of the Gem City make.

L. S. W.

Lowell, Mass.—James McManmon recently completed his work on the new lawn and hedge in front of the Armory.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The personal injury suit for $2,000 brought by Anna Ennis against Peter Nohos and Nicholas Manos has been dismissed. The plaintiff fell down a stairway at the flower stand of the defendants, but the jury decided that they were not responsible.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

The weather has been unusually warm for October and trade has been somewhat poor because of it. However, business now is picking up considerably. Chrysanthemums are good and are coming in too fast, because of the warm weather. Carnations are poor and short-stemmed and quickly become sleepy. Roses are getting better right along. Killarneys and White Killarneys are fair. Tafts are good. Mrs. Aaron Wards are excellent. Hillingdon is only fair and does not seem to keep well. American Beauties are quite good for this time of the year; the demand for them, however, is meager. Orchids are not selling well at present. Violets are beginning to come into the market and both the single and double are good, considering the early season. Valley is excellent and sells well.

There are few flowering plants to be had at present, with the exception of potted chrysanthemums. Partridge berries in glass bowls are selling well.

Various Notes.

The Flower Shop, on Worthington street, is doing a nice business, but it will undoubtedly be better after the election.

A daughter, Priscilla Alden, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Osterman October 8.

Meacham & Hassell, of State street, report that business is good. They have a number of orders for weddings and openings booked for this month. Carl Meacham has recently gone into partnership with Mr. Hassell.

Osterman & Steele are having a new front put into their store, which will add much to the attractiveness of the place. The work of remodeling the front does not interfere with their business, however, and they say that the fall trade has a good start.

T. F. Sheehan reports that business is picking up.

N. F. Higgins finds business fair. His mums at the greenhouse are good and his only complaint is that they are coming too fast.

Charles Issele, who has had a responsible position with A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., has entered the employ of Mark Aitken.

William Schlatter & Sons are doing a good business this fall. Their bulb trade has not started in heavily as yet because of too warm weather.

Mark Aitken finds business fairly good for this time of the year. Canary birds and goldfish are selling well now.

Hugh C. Chesney has gone to work in Hartford, Conn., his former home.

H. G. Eyres, of Albany, and his head grower made a flying trip to this city recently.

Recent visitors: James Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia; Robert Shoch, representing Rice & Co., Philadelphia, who had a fine display of baskets at the Kimball hotel.

E. C. A.

Blissfield, Mich.—B. E. Niles has just returned from a two months' stay at Camaguey, Cuba.

OBITUARY.

L. P. Walz.

Members of the flower trade in Seattle, Wash., and all over the Pacific northwest were shocked on Wednesday, October 16, to hear of the sudden death of L. P. Walz, which occurred in Seattle at an early hour that morning. He had been apparently in good health for some time and was working in his usual energetic manner until late in the preceding evening. At the recent florists' picnic he had taken a prominent part in the baseball game, Marathon, etc., and his sudden demise from heart failure came as a great shock to all who knew him. He was born in 1859 and removed to Seattle about nine years ago, from Chicago, where he had long been connected with the retail flower business. His first venture in Seattle was at the corner of First avenue and Madison street, but he soon gave up this store and accepted a position as manager for the H. Harrington Co., when that firm commenced business on Second avenue. Afterward he opened a store for himself on upper Second avenue, where he had since successfully conducted a retail business. A little more than a year ago he started a wholesale commission business on Post street, under the name of the Seattle Cut Flower Exchange, and continued to handle flowers at wholesale until his death, though the premises on Post street were abandoned. He was a first-class designer and also had a high reputation as a rose grower. At his home in West Seattle he had a fine collection of roses. The sympathy of the entire trade is extended to his widow in her sad and unexpected bereavement. T. W.

R. G. Pierce.

R. G. Pierce, well known as a florist at Oregon City, Ore., died at his home at Fallsview October 12 from a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Pierce had been ill for some time. He was born in New Jersey, July 5, 1849, being 63 years of age. Funeral services were held at the family home, October 13, interment being in Mountain View cemetery.

Charles W. Reimers.

Charles W. Reimers, aged 60 years, for thirty years a florist in Louisville, Ky., died October 15 at his home, at Hite and Field avenues, following an illness of three months of a complication of diseases. Mr. Reimers was a native of New York, but had resided in Louisville forty years. He is survived by his wife and by a brother, E. G. Reimers, also a florist. The funeral was held October 17 from the residence. Burial was in Cave Hill cemetery.

Henry M. Wilson.

Henry M. Wilson, of Middletown, Conn., died October 17. Mr. Wilson was in his eighty-first year and while he had been in failing health for about a year he did not become seriously ill until about two months ago. His death was due to a general breaking down of his system occasioned by his advanced years. At one time he was largely interested in the nursery business. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Henry Wilson, of Brooklyn; Herbert Wilson, of East Orange, N. J., and J. Edward Wilson, of Middletown, who was associated with his father in business. One daughter also survives, Mrs. Charles Adams, of Newport.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business opened well October 14 and continued so throughout the week. All stock of good quality brought good prices, while all other available blooms were used to fill the brisk demand. The supply of carnations and mums was not up to the demand, but with favorable growing weather there will undoubtedly be enough to go around from now on. From several sources we have the assurance of heavier cuts from now on. Good Beauties still are scarce, while the other varieties of roses are about equal to the demand, with a steady call for Killarney.

The Baerman Catastrophe.

Five members of the Baerman family, 2904 Cherry street, the father, Gustav, and four sons, were injured, two of them probably fatally, when a Walnut street car, going at a rapid rate, crashed into the wagon in which they were riding at Twenty-ninth street and Lisbon avenue, Sunday night, October 20. Of two other boys, and another Baerman boy, riding in the wagon, one was slightly hurt, and the other escaped injury by jumping. The seriously injured are:

Gustav Baerman, 43 years old, injured internally; may die.
Gotheard Baerman, 15 years old, a son; fractured left leg and probably internally injured; may die.
Helmuth Baerman, 17 years old, a son; concussion of the brain and indications of a fractured skull; may die.
Walter Baerman, 19 years old, a son; injured about the head and face.
Eric Baerman, 9 years old, a son; injured about the right hip.
Helmuth Dummer, 17 years old, a friend; left arm hurt.

Gustav Baerman is well known in the trade. He formerly was a member of the firm of Heitman & Baerman, now the Heitman-Oestreicher Co. Recently he bought property near Fifty-eighth and Burleigh streets and started a range of greenhouses for carnations. The father and sons were on their way home from this plant when the accident occurred. Mrs. Baerman was at home, two blocks away, with five other children: Esther, 12 years old; Lydia, 10 years old; Eleanor, 6 years old; Bruno, 2 years old, and Hilda, 18 months old.

Various Notes.

Archie McDonald, who since August 1 has had charge of the Pfister hotel flower stand, reports a busy week. The Retail Druggists' Association held a three days' convention at that hostelry.

A. F. Kellner left October 22 for the upper part of Wisconsin to get a focus on green goods, both on the root and cut. He will return toward the end of the week.

Wm. Zimmermann, when asked about business conditions, said: "I'm kept busy most of the time."

Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, went in heavily on chrysanthemums for this season, and the quality of stock cut to date shows that he made good.

Walter Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., was on the sick list for three days last week.

C. C. Pollworth is one of those who say there will be no further shortage of carnations.

Currie Bros. Co. reports being rushed with bulb orders. E. O.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business last week was slow and were it not for the orders for funeral designs, which continue to be quite plentiful, things would indeed look flat. Wednesday, October 16, there was a heavy frost, which killed thousands of outdoor plants. It was the first real, sure-enough frost of the season, but it did its work well. In the middle of the week the weather was cool and crisp, but towards the close the sun regained its power and the days became more like spring.

With the supply of dahlias, cosmos and other outdoor flowers materially lessened, chrysanthemums, roses, carnations and other higher priced flowers are more in demand, although the chrysanthemums crowd the others out of favor. These are football days and few of the Washington high school girls will view a game without having on a chrysanthemum as near in color as possible to that of the flags of their favorite team.

American Beauty roses are bringing from $1.50 to $4 per dozen, according to quality and length of stem. Radiance is running from $4 to $12 per hundred and is looking good. There are more orchids on the market this week than are needed to fill all demands, but the price on dozen or broken lots remains at $6. Gardenias are quite plentiful at $1 and $2 per dozen. Lily of the valley, which is now as good as it is possible to grow it, is bringing from $3 to $4. Violets are not yet coming in as good shape as could be desired, and continue to shatter at touch. With the weather so changeable, one day warm, the next cold, it is risky to handle them in too large quantities. The asking price is about $5 per thousand.

Various Notes.

One of the handsomest specimens of Myriophyllum proserpinacoides, or parrot's feather, is to be seen growing from the bowl of the fountain at the north front of the Treasury Department. It is so unusual in its appearance as to attract much attention, especially from tourists. The Department has for several years attempted to grow this vine to make a showing, but it was not until this year that it took the beautiful shape it now has.

Gude Bros. Co. is distributing thermometers bearing an advertisement. They form a neat souvenir and the requests for them received by the company greatly outnumber the supply.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Robey, of Anacostia, D. C., are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the arrival of a little girl.

W. E. McKissick, manager of the local branch of the Pennock-Meehan Co., is showing some specimens of Irish Fire Flame, a single rose just appearing on the market.

October 31, all licenses issued by the assessor of the District of Columbia to florists and commission merchants for last year will expire, according to a notice published by the district assessor, and the dealers must promptly renew them if they desire to continue their business. C. L. L.

Fairville, Pa.—William Broomhall is erecting a greenhouse in which to force tomatoes.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

HAVE you noticed that the spick-and-span establishments are the prosperous ones? Don't make the mistake of stating it the other way around.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

TALK about there being no longer any profit in the business! A Philadelphia grower is reported to have taken $1.50 per plant off 2-year-old Killarneys last season, while a western grower got $1.32 off young stock.

THE Tennessee law makes it illegal for any florist to ship, sell or deliver within the state any plants of whatever description without having been previously inspected by the state entomologist and plant pathologist, and a certificate placed upon each bundle, package, bale, box or carload shipment.

THIS season is sure to be the big season for florists. There may be some congestion at times in the wholesale cut flower markets, but with the great body of the trade outside the big cities the demand is certain to be the best ever. The spring plant trade, the big item with those who are the backbone of the business, will be the heaviest ever known. Those who are not so situated that they can participate in the retail demand can nevertheless share in the business by working up a big stock to wholesale—there are many hundreds of florists who can sell much more than they have facilities for growing.

BEWARE!

The Subscription Swindler.

Once more The Review warns the trade against traveling subscription agents. The Review agents all are well-known men, permanently located in the territory they represent. Don't pay money to strangers.

A petty swindler is traveling through the country collecting subscriptions where he can, sometimes signing the name M. B. Cook, sometimes Thomas, Clark, Bruer, etc. He has thus far always used the same initials, M. B. With him it is anything to get the money, for he is a swindler. He has been through New England, New York and Pennsylvania. When last heard of he was in Cincinnati, but that was two weeks ago.

Don't pay money to strangers. Mail your subscriptions direct to The Review office and be safe.

DESTROYING SOW BUGS.

Having with interest read at various intervals complaints and remedies about sow bugs in carnation houses, I wish, without meaning to discredit any of the commonly known remedies, namely, sugar and Paris green, and because probably our experience can help someone else, to tell how we handle this pest.

We have been bothered with sow bugs for several years. They seem to come into the houses with the new soil, breeding in the decayed manure. We tried sugar and Paris green, using more and less of one or the other, also mixing same with rye flour, but always with unsatisfactory results, never finding enough dead bugs, although at night plenty would be in sight.

After many trials with various remedies we now clear the pest in the following way: We apply molasses with a paint brush to the sides of the benches. This will bring the bugs there to feed, for this smells sweet and so attracts them. Then, after dark, we proceed with an ordinary empty water pail and scrubbing brush and go along and brush them into the bucket, after which they can easily be destroyed.

When we mix Paris green with the molasses they will go back to feed on the plants. This anyone will find a really sure way and with us it is the most satisfactory. R. S.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Favored by clear and slightly warmer weather, stock has been coming in more freely than for some time and, with the opening of business for the week, the market was easier than for several weeks. Prices weakened only slightly, however, as the demand continued excellent and no stock has gone a-begging for the want of a buyer. In the cases of the better quality stock the prices held firm. There are more mums coming in at the present than has been the case and, while the best are bringing good prices, there are those of poor quality that the wholesalers are selling for whatever they will net. Those of medium grade are also finding an excellent market. The full range of colors is available, but white is a great deal more plentiful than good yellow.

Roses also are more plentiful than for some time and, although there is no oversupply as yet, prices are hardly so strong as a week ago except on the best grades. Beauties in the long lengths are of excellent quality and in good supply, but short Beauties are extremely scarce and not enough can be had to supply the demand. Killarneys are rather light in color with most growers, but, with larger cuts being made, the supply is equal to the call without seriously affecting the prices. Richmond is in first-class shape and sells well as a substitute for medium and short Beauties. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Radiance, Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Taft are enjoying their usual good demand and some of the wholesalers assert that the novelties are evidencing a

ANY SIZE—ANY COLOR—ANY QUANTITY—ANY PRICE

Our Mums are grown by specialists—and that makes a very important difference. The stock is of quite a different character from that grown simply as a catch crop—a space filler. It means uniform stock in quantity—the ability to supply 500 all of the same grade and variety instead of mixed. The good mid-season varieties are ready this week.

No trouble at all to fill orders for Long Beauties—stock that is good in every particular. Short Beauties never are plentiful at this time of year, but our present supply of Long and Medium is the largest and finest of the season to date. Order direct.

FANCY ROSES

The trade knows that there are no finer Roses than ours and this year we have fully doubled last year's supply—from new glass. Can take good care of a lot of new trade. Note we have a full line:

CARNATIONS

Carnations show marked improvement in quality. The flowers have been clean and good; now they are of increased size and the stems have lengthened out. At the same time the supply has increased. You will like our Carnations.

ORCHIDS

We offer the finest quality of Cattleyas at prices that make it possible for every retail store to do a nice business with them, and at a good profit. The best trade everywhere calls for Orchids. Don't let the flower buyers go elsewhere because you have no Orchids. We can keep you supplied. A fine large crop is on.

VIOLETS

We now have large daily supplies of Violets that are excellent for so early in the season. Let your orders come. Don't you want a daily shipment?

greater popularity than has been noted before.

Carnations have also increased in supply, but there is hardly what anyone would term an overabundance; while mums are taking the eye of the majority of buyers, there has been no waste of the carnations as yet and good prices are being realized. White is in heaviest demand, and, while they do not bring the top prices of two weeks ago, they do not go begging. Pink and red are also well taken care of and find a ready sale. Violets are now arriving in larger quantities from both local territory and from the east and during the last ten days have been of excellent quality. There is, however, no general interest in violets and the average returns to the growers are not quite up to last year at this date.

The local growers are getting into their full crops of Cattleya labiata and much fine stock is on the market. There also is a full line of the miscellaneous orchids, but most of these come from a distance. Valley has become plentiful. Easter lilies are less abundant than they were.

There is nothing new in green goods. There is the usual demand and no particular shortage or oversupply.

Various Notes.

E. H. Hunt, Inc., which many years ago succeeded to the first cut flower commission business established in Chicago, has ceased to handle cut flowers, the entire attention now being devoted to florists' supplies. It is understood that the mail orders for cut flowers still being received as the result of long connection with the trade are now being turned over to Erne & Klingel. Mr. Erne, of the latter firm, was for sixteen years with E. H. Hunt's cut flower department.

The many Chicago friends of L. P. Walz will be shocked to hear of his sudden death, which occurred in Seattle, October 16. Before removing to the Pacific northwest about nine years ago, Mr. Walz had long been prominent in the Chicago retail trade. A brief account of his Seattle career will be found in this week's obituary column.

The new plant erected at Greggs Station by Bassett & Washburn will be put in full operation October 26, when fires will be started under the fourteen boilers that are to be utilized in heating the new range. One boiler has been in use thus far, but with the completion of the entire range of five houses 34x600 feet, the steam will be turned on full force. The new range is given over at the present to 105,000 carnation plants and the first bloom was picked by Master Lawrence Story Washburn, the great-grandson of O. P. Bassett, the founder of the firm, October 20. It is interesting to note that the first flower to be cut was an O. P. Bassett carnation.

Henry Gabel is preparing to start on the road again in the interest of the Chicago Carnation Co.

The Cook County Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting at the Tavern October 17, with an attendance of thirty-seven, President A. C. Kohlbrand in the chair. Four new members were elected and five were proposed. There was general discussion of the project to secure permanent club rooms. H. N. Bruns talked entertainingly for a half hour about the

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

The Mum season is now at its height at Randall's. We have the fine mid-season sorts in all colors and can supply special fancy, large flowers, or smaller grades, as wanted. Any quantity. Prices from $8 per hundred to $4 per dozen.

Novelty Mums.—The pompons are ready. Fine flowers in big bunches, at $1 to $1.50 per bunch. Yellow, pink, white and a number of other colors. This stock had a great run last season.

CATTLEYAS.

Now is the time to feature orchids. Our crop of Cattleya labiata is large and the quality is the finest to be found anywhere in the country. These are home-grown. $4 to $6 per dozen.

ROSES.

Get it out of your heads that roses are scarce. Randall can supply any variety in quantity. Quality excellent. The crops are on.

CARNATIONS.

The carnations we now offer are very much the best of the season to date. Fine, clean flowers and good stems. Can take care of the largest orders. Plenty of stock.

VIOLETS.

Randall's is headquarters for the finest Hudson river violets and also for the home-grown singles. Quality is better than it usually is so early in the season. Prices attractive.

VALLEY.

You always can get valley if you send your order to Randall, and Randall's valley is as good valley as is to be had in this country.

GREENS.

Wild smilax, best quality, $5 per case, always on hand, but three or four days' notice is appreciated on large orders. There are no better fancy ferns. Bronze galax, $4.50 per case of 10,000.

The A. L. Randall Co. has hit upon an effective method of demonstrating the salability of the better grade of ruscus at a fair price. In the store there are two tables, one piled high with the best grade of ruscus, and the other with a lower grade. On top of the pile of the better quality lies one bunch of the lower grade, and on top of the pile of lower grade ruscus lies one bunch of the best. It is said that practically every customer will have nothing but the higher priced article.

deep in the pile. There were 200 tons in the shed and it took eighteen hours' hard work, with all the help available, to move it to the open and extinguish the fire.

Tim Matchen, sales manager for Peter Reinberg, says October 21 was the biggest day of the month at his establishment.

The E. C. Amling Co. says that chrysanthemum growing is receiving a fresh impetus this season, average prices being distinctly better than last year and practically double what was received for the early varieties two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., have been entertaining a niece from Ludington, Mich., who returned home October 21.

D. E. Freres, who has done principally local business heretofore, is planning to increase his shipping this season, believing that best results are obtained by having a balanced business.

President John F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says the stockholders' quarterly meeting, held October 16, was unusually successful and the report showed an increase in business over last year.

John Mangel has installed a new display refrigerator in his Palmer House store, of handsome design, that was constructed by the Decorators' Supply Co., at a cost of $2,500.

Gus Alles, who is N. J. Wietor's right-hand man in the store, says October thus far has been one of the best he can remember.

While the second early mums were somewhat slow in reaching the cutting point, Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, asserts that he has noticed that it did not hurt the quality of the fancy ones but on the other hand added to both the bloom and stem by the slow growth.

church, in Kenwood, was handled October 17.

October 16 Kroeschell Bros. Co. received an order over the long distance telephone from the extreme northern part of Wisconsin. It is interesting to note that the call came at 3:15 p. m., and at 4 o'clock the car, loaded with boiler, grates and smoke pipe, was on its way.

Percy Jones reports a good run on ribbons during the last ten days and, according to H. Van Gelder, almost every order for cut flowers also brought an order for the ribbon department.

One of the week's visitors is Miss Marie Drake, daughter of W. H. Drake, of Kenosha. November 1 Mr. Drake will again come into possession of his greenhouse establishment, which has been under lease, and which he will hereafter conduct as in earlier years. Miss Drake will do the designing and is in town acquiring the latest ideas.

The Market.

Trade is much heavier than at last report, with stock more plentiful in all lines. Roses have improved both in quality and quantity and some extra fancy stock is on the market, with demand to keep it cleaned up at all times. Carnations are coming more plentifully and the quality of most of them is good, with fair stems. Red seems rather scarce and the stems are shorter than on most other colors. The Enchantress varieties are the leaders at present and there is not much danger of a shortage, as some of the later plantings are coming in now. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful, but are still a little shy to fill the demand for them. Some of the early varieties, such as Pacific, Estelle, Monrovia, October Frost, etc., are about all cut out. Early Snow has been fine and has created quite an impression on most of the growers. No doubt it is one of the best in market at this time. Some fine Virginia Poehlmann are to be seen and Touset is getting to be plentiful. Pacific Supreme is coming fine and is one of the best pinks we have at this date. Yellow is quite scarce this week, as everything in the way of a yellow mum was cleaned up October 19 for the football game, Michigan vs. O. S. U. Halliday and Appleton will soon be in and they will be welcome. Valley has been more plentiful and there has been quite a good demand for it. Violets are coming more plentifully and the quality is much better. The singles are coming with better stems and will soon be up to the winter standard.

Various Notes.

E. Metzmaier has been quite busy lately on funeral work.

Sherman Stephens reports good business, with mums coming on well.

Charles A. Roth reports business good.

The Livingston Seed Co. is making a run on bulbs and reports some heavy orders for funeral work.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting some fine mums. The carnations and roses are good at the country plant.

Guy H. Woodrow, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., is seriously ill, having been laid up with typhoid for about six weeks. While the fever is broken, he is not able to retain any nourishment and his family and friends are much alarmed over his condition. J. M.

The Market.

Delightful fall weather still prevails, and has a tendency to bring in enough stock to supply the trade in most lines. Last week's business started in with a boom, but towards the end of the week it was somewhat quiet. Fall openings are seemingly out of date now and their absence has helped to quiet business. Parties and receptions are still in order, but as a general rule they do not consume as much stock as do the openings. There were quite a number of weddings last week and many of the florists report a good many for this week. Funeral orders for the smaller designs have been numerous of late. The MEYER Green

SILKALINE

Used by Retail Florists for mossing funeral designs, tying bunches, etc., is

THE ONLY ARTICLE THAT SHOULD BE USED

by Growers for stringing Smilax and Asparagus, as it will not fade or rot in the greenhouse. The Meyer Silkaline was the first green thread to be introduced among Florists and Growers. It is handled by the best houses everywhere, but it should be ordered by name—Meyer's Silkaline—to be sure of getting the genuine article. Do not accept substitutes.

If your jobber cannot supply you, order direct of the manufacturers. Price for any size or color, $1.25 per lb. Sizes "F" fine, "FF" medium, and "FFF" coarse.

into consideration, trade is not as good as the week previous.

White roses have been overabundant, while in other colors they were not any too plentiful. The Beauty crop, among Dayton growers, at present is short and in most cases does not meet the demand. Chrysanthemums are the favorites of most buyers and up to the present time there has not been nearly enough to accommodate the trade. This week, however, the scarcity of mums is expected to be a thing of the past, as present indications point to big cuts. The yellow ones will come in especially well for the Hallowe'en trade, and already some nice orders are being booked. Present indications also look quite encouraging for a big crop of the large and small mums for All Saints' day, which is close at hand. The carnation supply has slackened up considerably, but in quality they are fine, and the demand has been such that none go begging. Giganteum are plentiful now, and callas are commencing to put in their first appearance. Cosmos and dahlias, among the outdoor varieties, are about the only thing left, with the exception of the hardy chrysanthemums, which are putting in their appearance.

Various Notes.

Mrs. T. M. Waters, of Eaton, O., opened her new home to a large party of friends October 20. The house was beautifully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums, everything being in touch with the season of the year.

Edward McCowan, employed by the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., visited the Miami Floral Co. October 20. He says stock at the Hill establishment is looking fine. Just at present carnations are a little scarce with them.

Mrs. B. Haschke had a large dinner party decoration last week, in which she used quantities of chrysanthemums, both large and small, the color scheme being pink and white.

Alberta and Strafford Engle narrowly escaped a serious accident last week.

After the completion of this boiler house, it will be made to serve as a central heating plant by making connections with the present piping systems of all of the older houses, and the two boiler cellars in the older houses will be abandoned.

A new boiler house, 16 x 70 feet, is being built by the Schmidt & Botley Co., in which will be installed an eighty horse-power boiler and a Morehead trap. The present boilers in the cellar will be abandoned. This concern has extensive nursery and farming interests and is quite busy getting stock into the cold storage house for the winter.

A McCray refrigerator, 5 x 16 feet, with triple insulated walls and a capacity for 3,600 pounds of ice, has been placed in the packing room of the Leedle Rosary Co. and is proving a great saver of both labor and stock.

The Leedle Floral Co., in contemplation of further enlargement next season, has increased all boiler connections from 6-inch to 8-inch pipe and incidentally installed an 8-inch Castle hot water circulator, supplied by the American Auxiliary Heating Co., of Boston. From such preliminary tests as have been afforded by the mild weather, it is judged that from three to five more houses can be added to the present range eastward and all be readily heated by the present boiler and circulating capacity. The season's propagation is rapidly approaching a finish and, in spite of adverse weather conditions in the start, splendid crops of roses have been safely housed.

Charles W. Unglaub has completed the transfer of his residence property and adjoining greenhouses to C. Pearl Bethard, of the Ferncliff Floral Co., which will give the latter a total ground area of 96 x 150 feet for a local retail business in plants and cut flowers. The Rising Eastern Market.

The surplus in pink chrysanthemums, in violets, in carnations and in roses of low degree forms the serious side of a fair market. Although there has been no frost of killing blackness, the wholesalers have been relieved of the burden by a shortening of the supply of dahlias and some other outdoor flowers. The public is turning from the dahlia to the chrysanthemum, a fact the wholesalers are quick to perceive and act upon. The lower grades of chrysanthemums and the pink, owing to the quantity of Pacific Supreme, have sold cheaply, but really fine stock has been in demand at excellent prices. Pompons in white, yellow, pink and bronze are becoming important. Valley, gardenias and orchids, including Cattleya labiata, have been good stock. The trading in valley has been heavy. Gardenias have been actually scarce, while cattleyas have shared in the request for all orchids, further induced by the low prices, now slowly advancing.

It is still too warm for violets. The situation has not been helped by the arrival of Marie Louise and Lady Campbell, now coming in sufficient numbers to demand mention and to further depress the violet market. Good roses and rose novelties are not overabundant, but ordinary grades are, and they suffer. So, too, do many carnations, for the divine flower is at a disadvantage when competing with the autumn queen in warm weather.

There is an excellent shipping demand that carries much fine stock out of town. The suburban teas take some more, while the leftovers are disposed of at prices that represent just that much more than nothing at all.

East Washington Lane.

When it became known that the Zieger Floral Co., of Pittsburgh, was to run the greenhouses of F. & H. Mergenthaler, interest was keen. The question the street asked was: "Could they do it?" Nobody was willing to answer in the affirmative. Everybody knew the place. It had not been laid out—well, let us say, to the best of advantage, and it was out of repair. Then, every retailer can see the grower's mistakes, but sometimes even the cleverest retailer is not cut out for a grower. This was something over two years ago. Mr. Zieger had enthusiasm and energy, and he pitched in with every ounce of both. Perhaps the result is best voiced by Henry Bauer, who said: "The place looks better every time I see it." Boilers have been reset, pipes relaid, leaks remended, posts jacked and propped, roofs puttied and painted, gutters straightened and corked, the hundred-and-one repairs and improvements made. Roses, for which the houses were not adapted, have given way to mums, asparagus, sweet peas and bulbs. The place is already earning a reputation for quality. Those who know of the discouragements and the hard work take off their hats to Messrs. Zieger and son.

Various Notes.

The eight new houses of the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood, are 150 feet long by an average of forty feet wide, not 40x100, as incorrectly stated last week.

A critic objects to my oak spray note last week. Let me try again. Prepared oak sprays are increasing in favor with the decorators during the chrysanthemum season. They are preferred to the natural sprays for their

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There has not, in this vicinity to date, been enough frost to kill the dahlias and cosmos. The market during the last week has been overstocked. One buyer took away seven truck-loads on Friday, October 18, for the department stores. Of course the prices were of his own making, but, after all, this outlet is a godsend. Where would the market be if this surplus were not disposed of?

The early mums have come and gone. Lighter shipments are forecast for this week and next, until the later varieties assert themselves. But there will be no shortage. There seems to be no limit to the number of growers, or the quantity of stock that depends for its sale on the New York market.

The rose flood is rising and most of the growers will be in full crop within a few days. There is some splendid stock in nearly every variety, and the list is longer this year than ever. The American Beauties are now of superb quality and abundant. Prices remain away below normal, for the demand grows slowly. The mild weather holds society still at the country estates.

There are plenty of orchids in variety, with prices barely steady and the selected stock rarely going above 40 cents. Carnations are no longer scarce and the stock is already up to winter quality, but prices are disappointingly low. Gardenias are scarce, valley steady and lilies down to $3 per hundred. There are plenty of sweet peas and already a surplus of violets. There seems to be no demand for them. Many thousands last week remained unsold. The street merchants are no longer permitted to offer them on the corners, as in other seasons, and the Greek element has been widely depleted because of the war with Turkey, many flower sellers being among those who have sailed to join the armies.

Chrysanthemums in pots are displayed in almost every wholesaler's window. These, added to the offerings of the regular plantsmen, have held the average price for blooming plants of every kind on a lower level than in other years.

Scott Bros., of Elmsford, are arranging for the dissemination of their new red carnation, Wm. Eccles, this season. Their faith in its merits is so great that they have prepared to propagate an extremely large quantity. This firm has made rapid progress in the last six years and has now, nestling in the Westchester hills between Tarrytown and White Plains, one of the most complete nursery and greenhouse plants near New York. There are six greenhouses devoted to carnations, mums and bedding stock, the largest house, 35x250, being filled by Wm. Eccles and two new English varieties, British Triumph and Lady Northcliffe, for which they have the American agency. There are over thirty acres devoted to nursery stock. Their new fern, a seedling of Whitmani, promises to be a decided acquisition. At present the cut of chrysanthemums is large and there are many new varieties and seedlings. Among those of special beauty are Rowland Hill, a rose pink with silver reverse; Mrs. E. G. Brooks, crimson; Mrs. J. Karins, rose yellow; Mrs. J. Weisman, buff yellow; Mrs. J. G. Day, bronze yellow. An immense bronze and a large pink seedling, with many others of their novelties, will be exhibited at the fall shows, now so close at hand. Car-

Peter Wagner, of Flatbush, arrived home from his European trip last week.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, is a visitor this week.

Senator Joseph Heacock, of Wyncote, was a recent visitor.

The autumn visit of the N. Y. & N. J. plant growers to the Long Island growers, October 17, was a most interesting occasion. The big sightseeing auto and the cars of Messrs. Schultheis and Dupuy were filled to the limit. The start was made at 10 a. m. and darkness fell before the trip could be completed. There were present Messrs. Christian Madsen and Knud Christensen, of Woodbridge, N. J.; Julius Roehrs, Jr., Rutherford, N. J.; F. W. Langan, Astoria, L. I.; Anton Schultheis, Jr., College Point, L. I.; Henry Bauman, West Hoboken, N. J.; Herman Eiesser, Guttenberg, N. J.; John Bottger, Elmhurst, L. I.; John Miesem, Elmhurst, L. I.; Henry Schmidt, Union Hill, N. J.; Joseph A. Pankok, Whitestone, L. I., and the representatives of the trade press. The day was perfect. An excellent dinner at Neiderstein's was served as usual, the tables being decorated by President Marquardt. Everywhere the condition of the stock was excellent and abundant evidence of large supply for the fall and winter season was observed. Calls were made on A. H. Hews & Co. and the Whilldin Pottery Co., at their branch depots in Long Island City, and on W.

N. A. G. BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

A bowling tournament has been arranged for in connection with the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners, which will be held in Newark, N. J., November 19.

The tournament will be rolled on the Tuxedo Academy alleys, Halsey street, Newark, N. J., on Monday evening, November 18, and Tuesday forenoon, November 19.

Teams of three men, members of the local societies or clubs they represent, and members in good standing of the N. A. G., will roll on Monday, the tournament beginning promptly at 8 o'clock in the evening. A silver challenge cup, to be known as the Aphine cup, will be contested for in the team tournament. Entries will close for teams on Saturday, November 16, and should be sent to M. C. Ebel, secretary, National Association of Gardeners, Madison, N. J., before that time.

The individual tournament will begin at 9 o'clock sharp on Tuesday morning. To be eligible to this tournament, bowlers must be members of good standing in the N. A. G. The president's cup, offered by President Thos. W. Logan, will go to the bowler making the greatest number of strikes during the tournament.

There will be many other prizes offered, both for teams and individuals.

For any further particulars address the secretary of the association.

Joseph Manda, Chairman,
Committee on Bowling.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Again we were warned that a heavy frost was due, but the night passed and we did not see anything of it. We are now past the average time for our first killing frost and the weather is fine. There is an abundance of fine dahlias as a result. They are finding a good reception, too. Hill Crest School Farm has a block of over two hundred and fifty varieties. There are many interested visitors to this field every day now. This is the first year that there has been such a field in this vicinity and this may account for the interest shown. Mums are arriving in quantity now and the stock on the whole is good, although we have seen no yellows that were what they should be. They are selling at about $3 per dozen and are pretty well cleaned up. We read of the shortage in roses in the northern cities, but there are plenty of good ones here. The carnations, however, are not so plentiful and the quality is rather indifferent. Violets are scarce and cut no figure in the market. Cosmos is plentiful and some of the florists are using it freely. A few light rains have fallen in places, but there has been no general rain. Where the rains have come we have seen some strange results. The elms and some of the red maples thought that spring was surely here and have bloomed. Today I saw two or three lilacs that were opening their blooms, and good blooms they were too. A neighbor has a pear orchard that is in full bloom.

Various Notes.

Herman Ryneveldt, of Ryneveldt & Sons, Holland, spent three days in our city last week. He reports unusually heavy rains this fall in Holland. As a

Two times in one day last week The Review was called on the telephone by leading Chicago Retailers who had orders to deliver for a funeral in the same New England city. The town was not represented in this Department of The Review and the Retailers who had the orders didn't know whom to wire them to.

It will be apparent that had any retailer in that city had a card in these pages he would have got those orders—and probably many more for the same funeral.

The orders would have gone direct—the Retailers wouldn't have needed to phone The Review office.

Is your town represented?

Look at the alphabetical list of cities, page 51 of this issue.

If your town isn't represented, it makes a fine opening for you.

If it is represented by someone else—you can account for who is getting the business.

result he says that they are being seriously hindered in planting the bulbs and in digging the stock that ripens late.

The Joys were closed three days recently on account of the death of Mrs. McCallister, mother-in-law of Thomas Joy.

There is a great deal of fall planting going on here now. The general report is that the bulb business is heavier in Nashville than ever before.

When we called at Mr. Geny's a few days ago we found everything topsy-turvy and the paperhangers and painters were at work. The place looks different now that the work is done. In the workroom all hands were busy on floral designs. Three palls and a lot of smaller designs were in the making. They report good business of late, especially their out-of-town business.

We had an interesting flurry here last Sunday. There is a law on the statute books, passed in 1804, forbidding the opening of any house of business on Sunday. It has, of course, been a dead letter. Last Sunday some fifty warrants were sworn out against as many firms, including druggists, candy shops, and one of our florists. What the outcome will be is hard to say.

The Cumberland Seed Store has again closed. The proprietor, Mr. Odell, says that his health demanded that he do outdoor work. He is selling autos.

McKay, Reece & Co. say that business continues heavy. They are sold out of some items already. Mr. Ewing, the manager of their flower and garden seed department, says that they are doing more in these lines than ever before.

Mr. Bently, our state entomologist, has finished his inspections for the year. He has just issued a bulletin giving the law of the state of Tennessee covering nursery and florists' stocks, as well as a brief of the laws of other states. This will be sent free to all who apply to G. M. Bently, Knoxville, Tenn.

The Market.

During the last week the market was still overcrowded with cut stock of all kinds, and the wholesalers are having trouble in unloading it even at low prices. The retail business is not dull, but the overproduction is the cause of the trouble. Cut chrysanthemums of all the early varieties are now coming in quite heavily, with extra fancy grades at $20 per hundred. The horse show this week, at the Coliseum, should create a heavy demand for these.

Roses of all varieties are a glut and all the wholesale houses have a large supply, with the top price not over $6 per hundred. The extra fancy sorts are not so plentiful as those of the lower grades. There are great quantities of carnations, the bulk of them good flowers, but short-stemmed. Enchantress, Beacon and White Wonder are the choice stock. Prices are low on these also, owing to the big supply; $2 per hundred is the price for extra choice stock.

California violets are not selling well, on account of their short stems and pale color. The weather has been too warm for them during the last week. Thirty-five cents per hundred is the best price on them in small lots. There is still a big cut of cosmos and dahlias, but the returns from them are poor. Easter lilies have been scarce of late, but valley is plentiful and of extra good quality, with the usual prices.

From reports, the retail trade was only fairly good last week, though some firms had heavy funeral orders to work up.

Various Notes.

Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York, and Tim Waters, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, spent a few days here last week.

President Fred H. Weber, of the Florists' Club, has appointed Robert Windler, Carl Beyer and Conrad Bergstermann as a publicity committee. They will hold a meeting and report to the Florists' Club at its next meeting.

President Richard Vincent, of the Society of American Florists, expects to make arrangements to deliver a lecture on the great International Show held in London at the December meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club. Arrangements for this feature will be made at the November meeting of the club.

The C. Young & Sons Co. has issued the catalogue of fall bulbs. Charles Young says the call for bulbs has been excellent in both local and shipping trade.

Fred H. Weber has booked a few good-sized wedding decorations for this and next month. Dave Geddes, who is with Mr. Weber, has fully recovered from his recent sickness and is again at his post in the store.

F. M. Davis, who is manager for the Missouri Rose Nursery, on the St. Charles and Walton roads, says they have had a good season in hardy, field-grown roses and have been consigning a large cut of Cochet roses to this market. They were handled by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., who has a branch store in East St. Louis, on Illinois avenue, has had a nice business since the season opened.

There were a great many fancy cut mums at H. G. Berning's last week and a big lot of good carnations. All seasonable flowers were plentiful.

The fine weather during the last week made transient trade in the downtown district good. Grimm & Gorly, Alex. Siegel and the Riessen Floral Co. have great window displays of cut stock. They say they are well pleased with their trade since the season opened.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has all fixtures in place and filled with new supplies of all kinds, in which trade has been good. This young firm is handling large consignments of excellent cut stock, with a good demand.

Fred Foster had a two-day opening at his new store, at Delmar avenue and Kingshighway. The announcement of the opening in the daily papers drew a lot of people to the store. Mr. Foster says business has been good.

O. K. Sanders, who manages the retail store on Clara avenue for the Sanders Nursery, has the place in fine shape and the show house filled with fine decorative plants. He has made application for membership in the Florists' Club.

force, was married Saturday, October 19, to Miss Cora M. Reed. He is a favorite with the buyers in the wholesale market and is being congratulated on all sides.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., whose consignments are mostly from home growers, says the stock is fine, especially the roses. Carnations and violets, too, are good. The large working force was kept busy last week receiving new supplies and attending to the wants of the local trade.

William Schray & Sons will, as usual, have a fine lot of chrysanthemums, both cut and pot plants. Julius Schray is the grower in this department. This firm supplies a great many of the retail stores in this line.

Geo. H. Angermueller had some fine rose consignments during the week. The bulk of them were Killarneys and fancy long Beauties. Fred Alves says there is too much stock in now for the demand.

Word has been received from A. Brix, of the Brix Floral Co., that he has recovered from his sickness. He is still in Europe, but expects to be home by the end of November.

A visit to the plant of the Oakland Floral Co., at Oakland Station, St. Louis, Sunday, October 20, was a great treat. Pierre Schneider, the manager, met us at the station and showed us through the houses, where we found 23,000 feet of glass and everything under it clean and in fine shape. Mr. Schneider is having great success with a house of mums, the varieties being Halliday and Touset, which are now being cut. The carnation houses are in the best of shape, with excellent plants of Enchantress, Sangamo, White Wonder, White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress and a fine white seedling. This cut is always in big demand in this market, owing to its high quality. This company is also noted for its fine cut of sweet peas, which will be in next month. Only the best varieties are grown here. They also grow a fine strain of snapdragon, including Silver Pink. After inspecting the place, we were invited over to Mr. Schneider's home for lunch and found the stork had preceded us in the visit and left a fine baby girl. The visitors were Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Beneke, who spent a pleasant afternoon. J. J. B.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

At Rochester two seedsmen, Chas. H. Vick and G. W. Crosman, are active in flower show matters.

The Champaign Seed Co. has been incorporated at Champaign, Ill., with a capital stock of $10,000, by Leo B. Ranson, May Ranson and Bert C. Henness.

One pessimistically inclined might almost think that peas, both sweet and culinary, are going out of cultivation, to read the reports, but, somehow, we don't think they will.

The catalogue makers are not worrying about prices so much as they once did—nor are they advancing the retail prices so fast as the cost of seeds, and the overhead, advances.

Not so many years ago the Holland bulb salesmen made their American trips in the spring, while the bulbs were in bloom. Now they start before the fall shipments are out of the cases.

At Cleveland the Templin, Crockett, Bradley Co., capital $10,000, has been incorporated to deal in seeds, by R. L. Templin, R. J. Crockett, P. A. Bradley, Mary E. Templin and Carl R. Brown.

According to Denver newspapers, "if there is anything in a name, the Colorado Seed & Nursery Co., which has opened for business at 1515 Champa street, ought to flourish, for it has at its head C. R. Root."

Henry Noble, of Noble Bros., the seedsmen at Foosland, Ill., reports that their new warehouse at Gibson City is almost completed. It covers a space 100 feet square and is built of brick, with a concrete foundation. Joseph McMurray will be the foreman in charge.

Prof. F. R. Crane, the agricultural extension agent of the Great Northern railroad, has bought a farm of 305 acres near Crookston, Minn., on which he purposes to establish a seed growing industry in charge of his two sons and to be known as the Crookston Red River Valley Pure Seed Co.

Magill & Co., Fargo, N. D., began business in 1882. They now occupy an elevator and three warehouses adjoining the Northern Pacific right of way, doing a large catalogue as well as wholesale business. The corporation is officered by H. E. Magill, president, and C. E. Nugent, secretary and treasurer.

The Gregory Farm Seed Co., of Bay City, Mich., has increased its capital stock to $30,000 and is making preparations to occupy offices in the new Bromfield & Colvin building, at Third and Adams streets. The company recently elected the following officers: President, V. L. Tupper; vice-president, J. F. Jozwiak; treasurer, E. J. Schreiber; secretary and manager, F. H. Gregory; assistant secretary, C. M. Baumgarten.

The seed trade will learn with regret of the death of Anthony van Namen, at Zwyndrecht, Holland, who passed away September 29, at the age of 62 years. Mr. van Namen was head of the firm of Van Namen Bros., of Zwyndrecht, also chairman of the Dutch Seed Trade Asso-
